DEMAND HALT TO FIRING ON U. S. VESSELS

ORDER PROBE OF HOPKINS-RUSSIA WARTIME DEALS

Reports Say Former Roosevelt Adviser Helped Reds Get 'Bomb Powder'

ARMY CAPTAIN LEVELS CHARGE IN INTERVIEW

By Francis J. Kelly

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Congressional investigators got orders today to check into broadcast charges that the late Harry Hopkins helped the Russians speed large shipments they called uranium and "bomb powder" out of the United States by air during the war.

The order came from Senator McMahon (D.-Conn.), chairman of the joint congressional committee on atomic energy. He directed the committee's staff to look into the matter, checking military security angles particularly.

The charge was leveled by former Army Captain G. Racey Jordan in a radio interview conducted by Fulton Lewis, Jr., Friday night. Jordan said his statements were based on his personal knowledge gained when he was a lend-lease inspector at Great Falls, Mont., in 1943 and 1944.

The sensational nature of Jordan's statement, involving the name of Franklin D. Roosevelt's principal confidential adviser, brought demands from several lawmakers for a thorough airing of the matter.

It also brought expressions of strong doubt.

Robert E. Sherwood, who was close to both Roosevelt and Hopkins, called Jordan's story "incredible."

"Utterly unbelievable," commented Stephen T. Early, former press secretary to Roosevelt and now undersecretary of defense.

Jordan said that despite Hopkins' injunction, he reported about the Russian shipments to Maj. Gen. Junius W. Jones, then air inspector general. Jones said today he does not recall Jordan, and has "no knowledge of the incident or anything like it."

Jordan related that he was stationed on the route taken by lend-lease planes for Russia; that the Russians handled three "large shipments" of what their chief listed as uranium and called "bomb powder." Uranium is the raw material for the a-bomb. Jordan said he did not know the significance

ACCUSED SLAYER OF TWO IS HELD

Reportedly Shot Wife, Daughter While Other Children Watched

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 3.—(AP)—A 51-year-old "dangerous killer" was arrested today as his brother kissed him on his tear-stained cheek and asked: "Bud, why, did you do it?"

Sheriff James E. Thompson said W. F. Bean would be charged with murder in the slaying of his wife and young daughter. Three other children saw the slayings. One of them was wounded.

Officers took Bean, whom Thompson had called "a dangerous killer," into custody at an isolated farm outbuilding near the frame house in which the shootings occurred Thursday night. He had been the object of a four-state search.

Bean walked quietly from the building when Thompson shouted for him "to come out if you're in there."

His brother, J. R. Bean, who was on the search, ran toward him. "The sheriff called to me to get back," he told newsmen.

"But I kept on running. I threw my arms around him and kissed him on the cheek and asked: 'Bud, why did you do it?'

" 'I had to, to save my own life,' was what he replied to me, sobbing.

Dormitory Fire Fatal To 3 College Students

Two Others Missing, 21 Injured In Blaze Of University Of Oklahoma Campus; Many Escape By Leaping Through Windows

NORMAN, Okla., Dec. 3.—(AP)—A flash fire in a wooden dormitory at the University of Oklahoma burned to death three students today. Two others were unaccounted for and 21 were injured, two critically.

More than 300 escaped uninjured.

Two of the dead have been identified. they are Sammy J. Larue, son of Sam J. Larue, Rt. 3, Clinton, Okla., and Maurice Ahearn, Killingsworth, Conn.

There were 349 men students in the dormitory.

Awakened suddenly in the early morning hours, many of them jumped from the windows of the sprawling two-story wooden structure, formerly used as a Navy barracks.

Long after the flames had died away, leaving only the building's concrete supports standing like tombstones in a graveyard, University officials worked feverishly to identify the dead and missing.

It was a tedious job because an unknown number of dormitory residents had departed for the week-end. Officials narrowed the list of those unaccounted for to three, in addition to three whose bodies were recovered but unidentified.

They declined to name any of the City of Monroe employes of the parks and streets department weren't on a coon hunt but just the same they unearthed two in a few hours time in widely separated places.

The services of Fred Campbell—he who is ever depended on to remove objectionable trees for the city—were required by the Twin City Motor Company on their new site, North Third and Breard streets, where a tree was in the way of building progress.

Campbell's helpers attacked the tree with an axe, and the very first blows brought out from a well-secreted hollow cavern, an enormous coon, that seemnigly started to break a world's record as he scampered with lightning speed across the street, bare-

Four-Year-Old Girl Will Go Home At Christmas—To Die

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Four-year-old Patty Owens is coming home—not for Christmas, as she believes, but to die.

The little girl, who was born in Chicago, now lives with her parents and two brothers in San Francisco. She doesn't live at home, though. Home for Patty is an oxygen tent in a room at the University of California Hospital.

The family of Robert Owens went to California two years ago in hopes of curing Patty of a wracking cough. But the pretty youngster had developed fibrocystic disease of the pancreas and lungs. Doctors now say she may not live until Christmas. There is no hope of recovery.

For almost a year, Patty has been in an oxygen tent. She must have a special compartment on the train to accommodate the tent.

But the plucky youngster takes that for granted. She is excited at the prospect of the journey, and has packed her tiny toy suitcase so her dolls will have a good trip.

When the little girl and her family arrive Tuesday morning, they'll go to the home of Patty's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Boynton.

There, Patty will eagerly await the arrival of Santa Claus.

MOUNT ETNA IS BELCHING FLAME

Extensive Damage Done To Homes, Orchards, Forest On Sicily

CATANIA, Sicily, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Earth shocks jolted the Mt. Etna area at intervals today and flames belched from the main crater high above farm lands newly seared by its molten lava, but the threat of a major disaster appeared diminishing.

Cracks from which the lava spewed—about 6,000 feet up on the 10,758-foot peak—acted as neutral safety valves. However, damage to farm homes, orchards, vineyards and forests already ran into millions of lire.

Reports tonight to Catania, an eastern Sicilian port 18 miles southeast of the crest, indicated flow of lava from the cracks was slowing down. Nine or 10 of these cracks opened under pressure yesterday, particularly on the northwest slope. Most of the smaller streams were reported to have come to a full stop.

The largest stream, which early today was moving down the northwest slope at two miles an hour toward the town of Maletto, split into two columns at noon. One moved on at a reduced rate toward Maletto. The other forked off toward Bronte, five miles to the southwest. At last reports the bulging masses of liquid fire still were three miles from Maletto, which is shielded by a rock ridge, and farther from Bronte.

The main stream, boiling and erupting gas bubbles, looks to be more than a mile wide and 16 feet high. Striking pine woods belonging to Rosario Pappalardo, mayor of Pedara, the lava set the trees afire as if they were matches. The flow slowed upon meet-

EIGHT HURT IN 2 AUTO CRASHES

Two Separate Mishaps Occur After Slight Rain, In Heavy Fog

Eight persons were injured, one seriously, last night in two separate automobile accidents. One crash occurred on the Jonesboro road and the other on the Sterlington highway following a light shower of rain and in overhanging fog.

Sid Bonnet was in the St. Francis Sanitarium suffering from a severe case of shock, minor lacerations on the chin and face and possible internal injuries, according to his attending physician. Bonnet was unconscious when admitted to hospital.

Bonnet was a passenger with Leon Williams, 21, Rt. 2, West Monroe, whose 1941 Ford crashed into a pulpwood truck driven by Cliff Nolan on Sterlington road, two and one-half miles north of the Louisville-DeSiard intersection.

The accident occurred around 6:30 last night. Williams and Bonnet was taken to the hospital by Hall ambulance.

Nolan, his wife and two children, were in the Wright-Bendel Clinic. Nolan sustained a possible fracture of the left hip and pelvis and his wife suffered lacerations on her left leg. The two children, Barbara Jane, 14,

TRUMAN SEEKING CABINET ADVICE ON TAX PROGRAM

How He Plans To Raise Revenue To Erase Deficit Kept Secret

PREVIOUS INDICATIONS HINT HIGHER TAXATION

By Ernest B. Vaccaro

KEY WEST, Fla., Dec. 3.—(AP)—President Truman sought the advice of cabinet and other high level administration officials today on the tax program he will submit to congress in January.

How he proposes to raise revenue to meet a deficit expected to run above $5,500,000,000 this fiscal year is a closely-guarded secret at the temporary "White House."

The president told a recent news conference in Washington that he knew of no way of wiping out this deficit except by increasing taxes. And he blamed the deficit on the tax cut made by the Republican-controlled 80th congress.

He would not say then how he planned to hike taxes.

Press Secretary Charles G. Ross, asked today if Mr. Truman had changed his mind on the necessity for new taxes if the budget is to be

PROSECUTION OF EDITORS VOWED

Peron Says He Will Take Action Against 2 Largest Argentine Papers

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Dec. 3.—(AP)—President Juan D. Peron said today he is going to prosecute the editors of Argentina's two largest newspapers for reporting a speech accusing him of self-enrichment in public office.

At the same time a military court of honor stripped Lt. Col. Atilio Cattaneo, a former member of the general staff and a congressman, of his army rank for making the original accusation Nov. 6.

Peron declared the two newspapers, La Nacion and La Prensa, "to a certain degree supported this uncalled for calumny." He made clear he would bring charges against their editors under a new law permitting jail terms up to three years for insulting the president.

He did not directly name the man originally making the accusation. Last night, however, Cattaneo, a member of the minority radical party, announced he had been summoned before a military court because of a speech in which he said Peron was richer now than when he became president in 1946. Peron himself was an army colonel when he entered politics.

Cattaneo said he had been summoned to the war ministry, where a military court of honor was formed. Despite his insistence that he enjoyed immunity as a member of congress, he was stripped of his rank as a re-

Man Acquitted For Murder Is Rearrested

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 3.—(AP)—A warrant was issued today for the rearrest of James Comber, 31-year-old bartender acquitted last Thursday of murder and manslaughter charges in the death of a 53-year-old sales executive.

Judge Joseph Sloane signed the new warrant charging assault and battery and aggravated assault and battery at the request of Assistant District Attorney Americo V. Corteese. It was turned over to County Detective Arthur J. Curning for immediate service.

Following Comber's acquittal on the more serious charge, Judge Sloane censured the all-woman jury and said that its verdict constituted a mischarge of justice. The jury is to be investigated by the district attorney's office.

Hubert E. Madden, the victim, died last March 26 after leaving the Moravian dining club in downtown Philadelphia where Comber was employed.

The commonwealth contended that Comber, who while off duty, had visited the club in the role of a patron, beat and kicked Madden to death in a drunken fight. The jury concluded that "acute alcoholism" was the contributing cause of death.

Hoover Is Guilty Of Murder

Death Penalty Mandatory For Slaying Of Tennessee Millionaire

DEFENDANT'S DAD SAYS HIS SON 'GIVEN RAW DEAL'

By Keith Fuller

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 3.—(AP)—An all-male jury here convicted Louis Eugene Hoover today of the murder of millionaire James A. Mahoney of Bristol, Va.-Tenn., in a French quarter hotel (the Monteleone) during Mardi Gras season last February.

The conviction makes a death sentence mandatory but no date of pronouncement was set before the court adjourned.

The wealthy Mahoney was beaten to death the morning of Feb. 22. His wallet and personal effects were missing. The state put a concessionaire, Milton "Lucky" Baker, on the stand who testified that Hoover showed him a wrist watch and some money, a few hours after the killing, saying: "I made a score. I had it pretty good."

The 25-year-old Hoover blanched and stiffened but otherwise held his composure when the verdict was read. All the way down the long marble corridor, down the steps to the ground floor, and across a court yard to the

HOTEL FIRE SPARES GUESTS' LIVES

A million dollar fire roars through the four-story Loraine hotel at Sapulpa, Okla. Firemen said the only known casualty was a guest who broke his leg in jumping from a third floor window. Britain Charges Over Million Held In Soviet Forced Labor Camps

REDS REMAIN SILENT TO OPEN CHALLENGE IN U. N.

By Tom Ochiltree

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Britain challenged the Soviet Union today to let the world see what has happened to 1,500,000 Latvians, Esthonians and Lithuanians the British charge have been driven into Russian forced labor camps.

The Russians remained silent on the challenge during bitter British-Soviet debate in the United Nations assembly.

In a counter blast, Soviet Delegate Alexander Panyushkin charged the British were disseminating "Goebbels-like propaganda" against the Russian government. Joseph Goebbels was Nazi Germany's minister of propaganda.

Assembly President Carlos P. Romulo struck all references to Goebbels from the general assembly's record including British Delegate G. T. Corley Smith's angry reply. Smith said: "We had no other connection with Goebbels than at the wrong end of a bomb."

After Romulo finally succeeded in terminating the heated debate, the assembly approved a refugees resolution supported by the western powers.

The measure provides for the naming of a U. N. high commissioner to handle refugee problems after the International Refugee Organization (I. R. O.) passes out of existence early in

Frenchman Expelled From Poland Killed

HAMBURG, Germany, Dec. 3.—(AP)—A Frenchman newly expelled by Poland was killed while on his way home by train through the American zone of Germany today. French officials said they believed he threw himself off the train.

The dead man was Guy Auffrey, formerly an employe of a Polish firm. He was one of nine Frenchmen ousted by Poland in reprisal for France's expulsion of 27 Poles recently.

The French rail traffic officer at Helmstedt said Auffrey apparently smashed a window to throw himself out. The train was proceeding with doors locked when he excused himself from the compartment he occupied with friends. When they searched for him they found a smashed window in a lavatory. The body was found later beside the railway near Offenbach, in the American zone.

The expulsions followed charges on both sides of espionage and sabotage as a result of which 26 French nationals have been reported arrested in Poland. Those expelled with Auffrey were four French men and four women.

The French consul-general in Hamburg, Andre Gaillard, expressed surprise at Auffrey's death.

"He had a French wife in Poland," he said, "and it was certain that she would be allowed to leave the country to rejoin him."

W. MONROE FIRST TO BRING SANTA

Gala Pre-Christmas Celebration Attracts Several Thousand

West Monroe held the distinction of ushering Santa Claus into the Twin Cities this year.

A jump ahead of the gigantic balloon parade, scheduled to be held in Monroe December 7, the West Monroe Business Men's Association sparked a gala display Friday night which attracted a crowd estimated to number above 4,000.

The jolly old fellow with the big red nose proved as generous as ever with the gifts and prizes—with promises of more when Christmas arrives.

Santa Claus, in the pre-Christmas appearance, was viewed by the wide-eyed kiddies as he stood on top of a half-ton truck loaded with Christmas gifts.

In addition to the visit by Old St. Nick, another colorful portion of the evening was filled with the ceremonial lighting of the city's decorative Christmas ornaments.

Two blocks of Trenton street were roped off to make room for the crowd. Lights were shining the full length of Trenton.

The Ouachita Parish High School Band and Choir were on hand to assist in the celebration. The band played old Christmas favorites, and the choir sang, "My Two Front Teeth," "Santa Claus is Coming to Town," and "Oh, Little Town of Bethlehem."

Charles Wall, Jr., president of the WMBMA, made a welcome speech during the hour program, and Miss Mary Lou Miller gave "The Christmas Story."

The lighting and prize giving was arranged at a cost of $2,00 a spokesman for the sponsoring association said. One thousand if it had been saved from last year.

Havoc Reigns In Virginia Town Without Electricity

RADFORD, Va., Dec. 3.—(AP)—There were dark hours in Radford today.

A fire burned a wall in the fire department.

Officials of the First and Merchants Bank had to get a short term loan from the People's Bank of Radford so they could begin operations.

Three textile plants couldn't work on their textiles.

The Radford News Journal decided to forego its regular Saturday edition, then reconsidered and publshed an abbreviated edition in late afternoon.

The whole trouble was no electricity in part of the city. A car, by snapping off a power pole, did the job at 2:35 a. m.

It caused a short circuit in the fire department switchboard. That started the fire there.

The First and Merchants Bank had plenty of money. But it was locked in an electric time lock vault. The vault wouldn't yield so the First and Merchants restocked temporarily from the People's Bank.

Just the simple matter of lack of current delayed operations at the newspaper, hundreds of homes and the three industrial plants.

A side issue was the plight of dozens of dance-bound girls at Radford College. They had sent their evening gowns to a cleaner who promised return of same in time for a dance at Va. Tech tonight. The cleaner got caught on the electric famine.

The only one physically injured when the car hit the pole was Mrs. Owen Morris, 22, of Portsmouth, Va. She broke a leg.

Electricity came back on at 1:40 p. m.

Girl's Plea For Health Stirs Nation

BROWNSVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Little Betty Lou Marbury, who sought a nation's prayers, goes to her rural church tomorrow to ask God to restore her health.

And across the country others will be praying, too, their souls stirred by a far away child's simple faith and plea. Financial help also was on the way.

As prayers are said far away, Betty plans to be at the Holly Grove Baptist Church—six miles from her white farm homeframe farm home which faces a dusty, gravelled road near here.

The church now has no regular pastor. A student pastor comes over from Union University at Jackson, Tenn. But Betty's playmates and her family's friends will be there to join her in prayer.

The 10-year-old fifth grader has a malignant lesion that her doctor says may force amputation of her right hand just after Christmas. When she heard the dreadful news, she sat right down and scrawled a letter.

"I want those who may read this letter," she wrote the Memphis Commercial Appeal, "to pray that I may not have to lose my hand and that I may soon completely recover.

"I beleave the Lord will answer their prayers."

The number of folks who read the letter was larger that this farm child could visualize. Since it appeared in papers throughout the country Thursday, she has been swamped with letters, telephone calls and telegrams.

Encouragement . . . sympathy . . . financial help . . . promises of prayer . . . and suggested remedies—all these were given.

Pastors in Brownsville, Memphis and elsewhere promised special prayers.

"We've got the whole country behind us," exclaimed her father, Clay Marbury, a farmer. "That's what it takes—everybody praying."

Betty herself said she is more positive than ever that she will get well. And the townpeople are doing their best to make her forget:

A school party yesterday, a movie today, church tomorrow and always gifts, cards and visits.

Her doctor says everything that medical science can do is being done for this bright, pretty youngster. But malignancies are not easy to cure.

State Department Says Recent Shellings Contradict 'Law Of Nations'

TECHNICAL RIGHTS OF AMERICAN SHIPS TOLD

By John M. Hightower

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—In a strong note of protest, the United States has demanded that the Chinese Nationalist government order its warships to stop illegal firing on American vessels running the China coast blockade.

The state department disclosed today that the rebuke was delivered yesterday to Chinese Foreign Minister George Yeh in British Hongkong.

Whereas Secretary of State Acheson had emphasized in a news conference Wednesday that he wished all American ships would stay out of the "hazardous" Shanghai area, today's note hammered the reverse side of the case—insistence that Nationalist warships should not illegally attack American vessels.

The protest was directed specifically against the attack Monday on the Isbandtsen line's vessel, the Sir John Franklin. It was entering the Yangtze river leading to Shanghai. Previously the state department had prostested an earlier attack on Isbrandtsen's Flying Cloud in the Shanghai area.

The new note made these major points:

1. The United States, from the beginning of the blockade last June, has declined to admit its legality for many reasons.

2. The attack on the Sir John Franklin was carried out "indiscriminately and wantonly" and was "unjustifiable and contrary to the law and practice of nations."

3. The United States government therefore holds the Chinese Nationalist government "fully responsible for any losses sustained by American Nationals as a result of these reckless acts."

4. The United States views seriously the attack on American life and property and requests that the Nationalists prevent another "incident of this nature."

The department appeared to draw a distinction between what a nation has

Let's Pack 'Em In

Two fine football teams have been selected, an outstanding show has been planned for the halftime intermission, various other entertainment features have been arranged by the Monroe Lions Club and thus the Junior Sugar Bowl game promises to be a gala affair—if the public gives it the support it so richly deserves. Certainly no less than a packed stadium will get the job done next Friday night.

The Lions Club selection committee has gone to considerable expense in assuring fans of Northeast Louisiana an interesting football game. The Lees-McRae Bobcats of Banner Elk, N. C., will meet the Wharton County Junior College eleven of Wharton, Texas. The Lees-McRae team is the champion of North Carolina junior colleges, with nine consecutive victories. They have an exceptionally strong team in every department of play, having amassed 227 points to only 69 for their opposition. The Wharton record is equally impressive. They suffered only one loss during a season of play against that tough Texas junior college opposition, and that loss came in the first game of the season. Both teams are rated with the top junior college elevens of the nation.

This will be the third annual Junior Sugar Bowl game, and it has centered national attention upon Monroe, thanks to the Lions Club. Advance stories on the game have been carried by the Associated Press and other wire services to all parts of the country and Monroe has received publicity which cannot be bought. The sports-minded public elsewhere has accepted the game as a major attraction; certainly we here at home should do no less.

Only five days remain in which to purchase tickets for the game. We hope the stadium will be a sellout long before the opening whistle.

Pearl Harbor Day

The eighth anniversary of Pearl Harbor Day—as did its seven predecessors—will pass almost without notice. At Honolulu, scene of the attack, the day will be largely forgotten. On the mainland there will be no observance of the anniversary by a people concerned with new problems.

The eight years which have elapsed since December 7, 1941, have not been happy years. A great war has been fought and presumably won, at heavy cost in lives and money. The peace which was expected to come with victory has not yet arrived.

U. S. military forces still are in control of Japan. Germany remains a pawn in a desperate game between the west and Russia. Communists have taken over China.

Mankind has taken up the sword, forgetting the admonition that it will perish by its action. Man is not striving for that day when "nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."

Pearl Harbor Day shall remain a day of infamy until man learns the futility of conflict, and moves definitely in the direction of peace.

Public Deaf To Warnings

There is no evidence the American people want socialism. Nor is there any convincing sign they believe the country is heading that way.

Indications are numerous that they do not take seriously repeated warnings from many quarters that the all-powerful state is just around the corner. The recent New York senatorial election, in which big government was the issue, affords the latest example.

That election, in the view of seasoned observers, suggested strongly that there is little political capital in these warnings of a rush toward socialism. Earlier this year some conservatives in and out of the Republican party seized upon the word "statism" to express what they deemed to be the philosophy of big government. But now the Gallup poll reports that more than two-thirds of the people have no idea what the term is supposed to mean.

The voting majority may or may not be right in choosing to ignore the alarms. After all, no one really knows where the nation is heading. And that is not a condition peculiar to our time, although admittedly trends may be more difficult to measure accurately in this confusing age.

But suppose there is real danger to freedom in the present course of government. How could the peril be made understandable to the people?

They have listened so long and so often to cries of doom that their resistance is high. Terms like "socialism," "regimentation," "dictatorship," "big government" and "statism" fall on deaf ears.

The latest to sound warning is James F. Byrnes, former secretary of state. For the second time this year he has spoken out in opposition to what he considers the ruinous trend of present-day government. Yet there is slim likelihood Byrnes will win many converts. Those who will hail his speech are those who agreed with him before he made it.

Byrnes said some pretty strong things. Examples: "Too many people are thinking of security instead of opportunity. They seem more afraid of life than of death. . . . Big government is more dangerous than big business. Little government can regulate big business . . . but it is difficult to regulate big government."

Yet even at best his words have a too familiar ring. They carry an echo of speeches long dead and forgotten.

Imagine yourself possessed of the power to foresee the future and predict perhaps that we are indeed moving toward socialism. What could you say to the American people that might turn them into another path?

The evidence up to now leads one to believe that no words will do the trick. If the United States is really becoming socialistic, it begins to appear that the people are unlikely to take note of the fact or do anything about it until they have suffered some specific loss of freedom. Some particular freedom, of course, that they cherish highly.

In the pain of that loss, they may realize what is happening to them in time to choke off the further growth of centralized power. Always assuming, naturally, that they do not want socialism.

Meantime the warnings will go on—with about as much effect as follows from declarations in Moscow that the United States is bent upon war.

Thurman Sensing,
Director of Research, Southern States Industrial Council:

DOWN SOUTH

LIVING OFF OUR FAT!

A man can live off his capital—for a limited time—and give every evidence of being prosperous. So can a nation.

Here in the United States of America we are living off the resources accumulated for us by our forefathers through one hundred sixty years of hard work and thrift and energy and initiative. To many who do not look beneath the surface, there is every evidence of prosperity in the United States. But a nation cannot be prosperous—no more than can an individual—that is mortgaged to the hilt and still living beyond its income.

There has been no prosperity in the United States, as a nation, for almost twenty years. Hard times hit us in 1932 and we started to gradually eat into our capital. We kept it up until an emergency hit us in 1941—and then we really had to mortgage the old homestead. The operation being over in 1945—and apparently successful—we made some show of making a payment on the mortgage. When this payment is analyzed, however, we find it was made almost altogether with money borrowed on the mortgage in the first place.

Now, during the last two or three years and for the foreseeable years ahead, we have entered upon a policy of continuing to increase the mortgage, of continuing to live off our accumulated resources. We have apparently said to ourselves, "Our debt is so big we can't pay it anyway, so let's continue to add to it."

And so we have the outward signs of prosperity—but we have all the inward signs of bankruptcy. There is a limit beyond which such a policy cannot go—and when we find out what that limit is, the chances are it will be too late to avoid collapse—both of our economic system and our form of government.

This delusion of prosperity is encouraged, sad to relate, by many of our public leaders whose continuation in office depends upon its acceptance by the people. They take pride in calling the attention of the people to the enormous increase in the national income during the past decade. They ignore the corresponding decrease in the value of the dollar. They do not point out the fact to the people that a nation that continually lives beyond its income is inevitably headed for bankruptcy, regardless of the size of that income.

It is, of course, quite easy to get the individual to disregard the financial situation of the nation so long as he himself is prosperous. It is even less likely that the individual will question the source when he gets "something for nothing." And so the business man ignores the destruction of free enterprise all around him, so long as he is making money and so long as it passes him by. The farmer willingly bows to state control of what and how much he can plant, so long as the government guarantees him a price for what he does raise. The worker on relief and pensions and social security of all sorts does not question the source so long as he gets them.

The administration is expected to make the pretense at least of asking for increased taxes during the next session of congress. This is just as if a doctor insisted on bleeding his patient when he had already lost too much blood. Taxes are already so high that the wellsprings of our economy are drying up. If we increase taxes we shall rapidly kill the incentive for continuation of the private enterprise that has earned the funds that have made possible the provision of subsidies, both at home and abroad. If we do not raise taxes but insist on continuing to live beyond our income and on continuing to hand out subsidies at home and abroad with a lavish hand, we cannot escape eventual bankruptcy .

This is an apparent dilemma that leads to ruin in either direction—but it is apparent only. It can be escaped by a resurgence of the independence and self-reliable and initiative of the individual citizen upon which the past prosperity of this country has been based. It can be escaped if the people of this nation will accept the responsibility for their own welfare and not look to their government to provide it. Otherwise the dilemma is not apparent; it is real!

In Washington With

BASCOM N. TIMMONS

The Liberal party of New York has already launched a campaign a year in advance to defeat Representative Vito Marcantonio, the only American labor party representative in congress and the Communist party's favorite on Capitol Hill.

The Liberal party has publicly urged a coalition of it, the Democratic and the Republican parties behind one candidate to oppose Marcantonio.

In recent congressional elections, with the Democrats and Republicans backing separate candidates, Marcantonio has won a plurality, but not a majority of his Harlem-Yorkville district.

A similar three-way coalition between the Democrats, Republicans and Liberals recently knocked off Benjamin J. Davis, Jr., a Communist who was seeking reelection to the New York City council. Davis had won until the three parties all fought him with the same man.

In 1948, the three parties merged behind a single candidate and defeated Representative Leo Icacson, the only other American laborite to serve in congress.

The Liberal party enjoys its independence from both the Republicans and Democrats and exhibited it in the recent New York elections. In the senate race, the Liberal party backed the Democratic candidate, Herbert Lehman. In the mayor's race for New York City, the Liberals supported the Republican candidate, Newbold Morris. But the Liberal party, which gained national recognition when it ran Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., for congress after he had been denied the Democratic nomination, has been a leader in organizing united drives with the Democrats and Republicans to remove candidates who apparently cannot be defeated in three-man and four-man races.

In announcing the drive to remove Marcantonio from congress, where he is serving his sixth two-year term; Murray Baron, New York county chairman of the Liberal party, said, ". . . .the public will justifiably resent our failure to unite and thus almost certainly bring about the long overdue retirement from congress of this Kremlin mouthpiece."

There are indications, however, that there might be difficulty in working out a tri-partisan alliance against Marcantonio, even though the leaders of all three opposition parties would like to see him leave Capitol Hill.

The new leadership of Tammany Hall, under Carmine G. DeSapio, has indicated that it would join such a move, but with the nominee a Democrat, since the Democrats poll the largest number of votes in the district except those cast for Marcantonio under the American Labor Party emblem.

Thomas J. Curran, the New York county Republican chairman, has said he always favored retirement of Marcantonio, but he would not join in nominating as a coalition candidate some Democratic nominee with a previous record of supporting Marcantonio.

Since Marcantonio won the Democratic nomination everytime he was elected up until 1948—and usually won the Republican nomination, too—virtually all the leading Democrats in the area, and many of the Republicans as well, have backed Marcantonio's candidacies in other years. This means Curran's statement would appear to eliminate a coalition with the Democrats except on the basis of the nomination of some poltiical independent.

It was necessary to change the law affecting nominating primaries in New York to prevent Marcantonio from entering the Democratic and Republican primaries in his congressional district. The law was altered before the 1948 election, and Marcantonio was forced to run only on the American labor ticket. He won a plurality of votes cast, but not a majority.

Marcantonio was the American labor party's candidate for mayor in the recent New York election.

The mayor vote in his congressional district stood: Marcantonio 35,900; O'Dwyer (Democrat), 34,600; and Morris (Republican-Liberal), 18,700.

"These results," Liberal Party Leader Baron said, "indicated that only an undivided coalition can insure the defeat of Representative Marcantonio in the 1950 election. The Democratic and Republican parties are invited to join with the Liberal party in a public commitment to effect a tri-partisan coalition behind any acceptable candidate, whether designated by the regular party organization or an independent nominee enjoying the confidence of all three parties."

PITCHING HORSESHOES

Neiman-Marcus Department Store
Dallas, Texas
Gentlemen:

May I register a complaint.

Yesterday afternoon I was sitting in my office, minding my P's, Q's, manners and business, when an expressman walked in and handed me a box big enough to house a midget. It was wrapped in Santa Claus paper, and there was a fancy sticker pasted on top with Christmas greetings from Neiman-Marcus.

"Gosh!" I said. "I didn't know they cared."

I stopped what I was doing and ripped off the wrapping, and there in a sea of silver excelsior I found a dozen gift packages, each looking like what the well-dressed Christmas tree will wear.

I picked up the phone. "Don't call me for the next ten minutes," I said to the switchboard girl. "I'm in conference."

Having spent a couple of years in Texas, I of course had heard a good deal about your Aladdin's lamp of a store and so, as I untied the fluffy puffs of ribbon on the first box, my head began to swim (Australian crawl, mostly).

Box No. 1 contained several cubic inches of exactly nothing.

"Evidently a mistake in the shipping department," I thought, and went on to No. 2. It was filled with grade A, super-crinkly tissue paper.

No. 3, however, contained an impressive collection of diamonds—that is, little cards with pictures of diamonds which you were willing to let go for a fraction—say, six-fifths—of their value.

No. 4 was a heavier box, and I scissored it open with renewed hope. But you gentlemen packed it, and you know what was in it—a mail order catalogue!

Well, by this time I realized I had been hoaxed by an advertising gimmick, and so I filed the rest of the packages in my wastebasket. And by the time I had cleaned up the mess of excelsior and cardboard, I was ready to go down to Macy's basement, buy a pair of socks and say, "That for Neiman-Marcus."

Now, it's generally conceded that you gents operate one of the smartest stores in the country, and it's probably presumptious to tell you how to run your business. But it does seem to me that your Christmas promotion stunt violates the first rule of salesmanship—never build a customer up to a let-down.

Perhaps I can highlight the dangers involved in this procedure by telling you of another fellow who made the same mistake. . . .

One afternoon while we were rehearsing the Aquacade at the New York World's Fair, a skinny galoot walked up and asked for a job.

"What sort of act do you do?" I asked.

"I'm unsinkable," he said.

I did a triple take. "What do you mean, unsinkable?"

"Just that," he said. "Because of the air in my arteries, it's impossible for me to sink—even with a slab of concrete on my chest."

"This I've got to see," I said. "Get into the pool and start floating—I'll dig up a concrete slab somewhere."

The rehearsal came to a stop. My swimmers hoisted themselves from the water and sat on the lip of the tank, while Marshall Wayne and a dozen other fine divers squatted on their springboards. Stagehands located a concrete slab in back of the stadium and handed it to Johnny Weissmueller and Stubby Krueger who, at a signal from me, lowered it onto the stomach of the self-declared cork.

He sank—like a slab of concrete.

I waited half a minute and then, as bubbles came fizzing to the surface, I got panicky and yelled, "Drag him out!"

Wham!—into the water went Weissmueller, Holm and my whole cast of Aquabelles and Aquabeaux. Down to the bottom they porpoised and finall, after a long hundred seconds, they got Nutsy Fagin out from under the concrete, up on dry land and over a barrel.

"I don't mean to pry," I said when some of the dampness was out of him, "but did you ever try floating with a slab of concrete on your chest before?"

The dehydrated joker shook his head.

"Then what gave you the cockeyed notion you were unsinkable?"

"I just thought I'd take a chance," he said. . . .

And there you have it, gentlemen—the story of a salesman who promised more than he could deliver—and it may explain why I'm allergic to presentless presents.

Next Christmas, if I'm still on your list, send me a postcard or, if you want to spread yourself, a wall calendar. As I see it, it's better not to play Santa Claus at all than to put on false whiskers and come down the chimney with nothing but hot air in your bag.

Sincerely,

BILLY ROSE.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

EDITORS' ROUNDTABLE

LILIENTHAL AND THE AEC

Editors, in substantial majority, regret the resignation of David Lilienthal as chairman of the atomic energy commission. But a small minority argues that his "radical" leanings and opposition to necessary secrecy disqualified him for the position. A slightly larger minority reserves opinion on Lilienthal's AEC record, but feels that the departure of so controversial a figure may result in greater harmony in our atomic energy program. . . . Majority opinion is that Lilienthal resigned for the primary purpose of more freely advocating less secrecy in the industrial development of atomic energy.

Greensboro (N. C.) Daily News (Ind.): "Amazingly effective management of an incredibly difficult job is the realistic description of what Lilienthal did. . . . He took over the leadership of the AEC when our atomic program was in poor shape. . . . Under General Groves, the Smyth book leaked many 'secrets' and top-flight scientists, feeling that the leadership of the atomic energy program was out of sympathy with them, were leaving the project in droves. . . . He does not resign under fire. Sen. Hickenlooper's charges of 'incredible mismanagement' fizzled out.'

Savannah (Ga.) Morning News (Ind.): "The political whitewashing he received at the hands of a congressional investigating committee was far from convincing. . . . That body exonerated him altogether along party lines—in spite of evidence that 'leaks' and 'loose handling' of the affairs of the atomic energy commission was submitted in testimony and other evidence to the congressional probers. Apparently exonerated, Lilienthal, with a show of piety . . . announces that as a private citizen he will advance his 'personal opinions' with more freedom than was possible when he headed the commission."

Little Rock (Ark.) Arkansas Democrat (Dem.): "So much secrecy cloaks the commission's work that it is impossible to judge fairly of Mr. Lilienthal's services there. From the little that is known, we think the nation could easily have had a worse man than Lilienthal to head this vitally important group. But we also think that a better man for the job can be found, after the uproar over the commission last summer."

Philadelphia (Pa.) Bulletin (Ind.): "Lilienthal's resignation . . . is a distinct loss to the nation. . . . Senator Hickenlooper and his colleagues in the senate who have kept up a heavy barrage against Mr. Lilienthal . . . can take credit for depriving the country of the AEC chairman's services. In his letter of resignation, Mr. Lilienthal merely skirted the subject of attacks against him, but it is doubtful if he would have resigned had he not known that he would be forced to do battle again next June when his reappointment would have come up for confirmation."

Wichita (Kans.) Eagle (Ind.): "Resignation of Lilienthal . . . is a result of policies imposed upon him with which he disagreed. Too much secrecy about the development of atomic energy in America was one of them. . . . Senator Hickenlooper also belives there is too much secrecy. . . . We would . . . stand in a better light before world opinion if we were putting in the formulae of our peaceful atomic discoveries into general circulation, holding back only their military applications."

San Diego (Calif.) Tribune-Sun (Rep.): "Mr. Lilienthal . . . has felt that he should be giving the public more of the benefit of his information. But this information is restricted in the interests of national security. . . . The president has issued sharp orders that security laws are to be enforced. This order came so close upon the heels of Mr. Lilienthal's resignation that it is difficult to say that there is not a cause and effect relationship in the two incidents."

San Diego (Calif.) Union (Rep.): "Whether there is any connection between President Truman's action . . . and the resignation of Lilienthal is new material for the capital political speculators. The direct inspiration of the president is said . . . to have been a television speech of Senator Johnson, of Colorado, in which he declared that we have A-bombs six times as powerful as those used on Japan. Senator Johnson says he was stating only what had been publicly offered in testimony during recent congressional hearings."

Salt Lake City (Utah) Tribune (Ind.): "At any rate, it now appears that the president believes that the safest way to handle the atomic situation is by clamping greater secrecy on the achievements and objectives of America's atomic energy workers, Mr. Lilienthal will very probably take an opposite view in future discussions of the problem."

William E. Gilroy, D. D.:

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Into a city there came a man to be the minister of a particular congregation. Members of this congregation held a doctrine not commonly held by Christians in general, and referring to this the new ministed said, apparently not considering that there was anything reprehensible in the remark, "I'll give it to them, and I'll give it to them strong."

The man may have been in other respects a good and wel-intentioned minister, but in this he showed the unquestionable mark of a false prophet. There was no evidence that so far he was concerned he believed at all strongly in that particular doctrine. In fact the implication was that he did not, but was spekaing out of the voice of expediency and worldly wisdom. When a minister sets out to please his people primarily, and to say what they want him to say, rather than above al things to declare the truth of God that in his hear of hears he knows he ough to declare, he has taken at least the first step toward becoming a false prophet.

There is a story of a prominent church member, in a front pew, who interrupted his minister as he preached, to protest, "It's not food you're giving us." the minister turned on him, as he replied, "No, it's not food, brother, but it's medicine; and you need it."

Now, of course, only a competent physician has a right to decide when a patient needs medicine instead of food; and professed physicians of the soul may be as incompetent and subject to error as physicians of the body. Nevertheless there is point to that story.

The prophets of ancient Israel had to utter truth that was not only unpalatable to those who heard them, but who so angrily resented the prophets' words that they inflicted the most horrible forms of persecution upon them, as in the case of eremiah.

There is, of course, the type of false prophet who seems to take a delight in uttering perverse things. I knew one such who never seemed to be happy unless he was insulting somebody. The true prophet, in contract, has a deep sense of restraint and responsibility. The man who would speak for God must consider his words. Love fo rthose to whom he speaks is as essential as his disregard of their judgments when he speaks with conviction.

Deep in the Hebrew prophet, besides his faithfulness to God was his intense love of his people and nation. When he saw kings ruling unwisely and the people plunging toward disaster, it was with pain rather than pleasure that he sounded his warning. His was the true patriotism in contrast with the false patriotism of those who had only honeyed words and boasting.

There are many today having the same spirit as did eremiah when he wrote (eremiah 8:11), "Peace, peace, when there is no peace."

The true prophet, religious, political, and social, is concerned with realities, not appearances, and with healing the nation's ills, not slightly, but effectually.

OUR CHILDREN

The TEACHER'S FUNCTION

In extending the function of the school so that it touches the life of the community in all its varied phases, we are likely to submerge the teacher unless we clarify his function in our minds and so allow him to fulfill it.

The parents group is essential to the well rounded educational system because it brings to it the healthy outlook of people who must meet life in its crudeness, its cruelty, its sublimity day by day. They bring to the school a knowledge of the needs of their children which is essential to the intelligent administration of the school. They should be welcomed and their contribution to the welfare and progress of the school put to good use.

In doing this the teacher should not be burdened with the details of the service this implies. When parents hold meetings they should not expect teachers to prepare a program of entertainment. The meeting should be a business meeting, not a "show." When tickets are to be sold, the parents should sell them and not expect teachers to do so. The practice that is followed by some groups of handing each teacher a number of tickets as "your quota," and expecting the teacher to sell them or pay for them, is harmful to parent-teacher relationships while it burdens the teacher.

Services that the parent-teacher groups provide for the children should not be added to the teacher's duties. They have too many as it is. For

Who makes the most money from motion pictures? Well, before you start bandying about the names of our most famous cinematic tycoons, it might be well to consider the "take" of a guy named Uncle Sam. Not only does he get the lion's share of all those fantastic salaries, he also does right well in harvestng lucre at the box office. In fact, according to published statistics, he collected the tidy little sum of $34,074,207 in ticket taxes during the month of October alone. That figures becomes the more amazing when you compare it with the net earnings of the Hollywood production companies. Uncle Sam gleaned at least four times as much as the total amount netted by all of the picture-making companies, big and little, in the industry! And then, of course, he'll also collect, come next March 15, another whopping slice of their aforesaid net.

I hear that the ads for Ingrid Bergman's now famous new picture will carry the line, "Made Under The Inspired Direction of Roberto Rossellini." Frankly, I'm getting woefully bored with all the foofaraw about Rossellini's "genius' 'and "inspiration." Consider the record. Ingrid's Italian boy friend has, as a matter of fact, made two or three better than average pictures, albeit the last one seen in this country was too "arty" to please the average theatre-goer. But he hasn't any monopoly or directorial ability. I can name you off-hand a score of American directors who, during their careers, have made several great pictures each—and I can name you twice as many, who, given a chance, could undoubtedly achieve just as "arty effects. If we're going to capitalize on such high-flown adjectives, why not use them on some of our own ultra-capable directors whose over-all records for achievement are head-and-shoulders above the record of Signor Rossellini?

In today's mail is a letter from a young lady who works for the Gary, Indiana, Sheet and Tin Mill. She reports that when Alan Ladd was in Gary for location work on the picture "United States Mail," all the gals in her office wrote him a letter, inviting him to pay them a visit. Ladd, they opined would be too busy to either make the visit or pay any attention to their letter, but events proved them half wrong. He didn't come to the mill, but he did send each gal who signed the invitation a large, personally autographed photo of himself, and a note explaining why he couldn't make the requested visit. And my correspondent wants me to know that he won forty devoted fans who will never miss seeing any one of his films.

The Nation Today

JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The government has announced a new policy to try to cut down—it cannot wipe out—racial discrimination in housing.

This is the background, with an explanation from government officials on what the new policy means.

It has been a widespread practice in this country for property owners in a community to discriminate against whole groups of people because of their race, religion or color, particularly Negroes and Jews.

They may agree among themselves that none of them will ever rent or sell his house to a Negro, for example. This is a so-called "gentlemen's agreement." Sometimes it is called a "restrictive covenant."

Suppose one of the people making the agreement broke it and sold to a Negro. What could the others do to stop him? Nothing. It was only a verbal agreement anyway.

But there is another kind of agreement—it's still a restrictive covenant—which is called a "recorded" agreement. Meaning, it has been filed in writing in a court as part of the court record. For example:

Say you buy a house today. In the deeds to the house it is plainly stated that the owner, in this case you, cannot sell to a Negro.

This may happen in a new house you buy today or in an old house that's changed hands 10 times in 20 years.

That restrictive covenant was in the deeds when the house was first bought. It was recorded 20 years ago. When you, the 11th owner, buy it today, the deeds with their restrictive covenant are still part of the court record and have been for 20 years.

But suppose you decide to sell to a Negro and your neighbors want to go to court to prevent the sale, arguing that under the agreement you can't sell to a Negro.

Can they go to court to stop you? No. That was tried a couple of years ago. But the supreme court ruled such "recorded" agreements have no standing in a court. In other words, the agreement is not worth the paper it's written on if someone wants to break it.

Now we come to the new policy, which involves the federal housing administration (FHA).

FHA is a government agency which insures loans for people who want to build private homes or even whole private housing projects. In the past year it has insured one-third of all the private housing built.

Some time in the future—maybe 60 or 90 days—FHA will set up a rule which says:

No one can get an FHA loan if he is a party to one of those restrictive covenants "recorded" after the rule went into effect.

Suppose, after the rule goes into effect, you want to buy a house whose deed, recorded in a court years ago, carries the restrictive covenant. Can you get an FHA loan to buy that house?

Yes, says Franklin D. Richards, head of FHA. Why? Because the covenant was "recorded" before the new FHA rule went into effect. The rule will bar loans only to those putting such agreements into a court record after the rule becomes effective.

But what of verbal agreements among house-owners in a community to discriminate, say, against Negro home-buyers? That will have no meaning, an FHA lawyer said.

But, in order to get an FHA loan, will you have to agree not to discriminate against Negroes or any other group if you ever want to sell your place?

No, say FHA officials. Why? Because the government can't tell anyone what to do about selling his house. It is only ruling it will not give loans to people taking part in recorded agreements in the future, or, rather, after the rule goes into effect.

Why is the FHA adopting this new policy? Merely, the officials say, to keep the FHA in line with that supreme court decision which held that recorded agreements have no standing in court.

In short, the government plan, as officials explained it, is not going to touch restrictive covenants already in effect but will try to prevent new ones from being made, or as many as it can.

The government can't prevent restrictive covenants, even newly recorded ones, being made by people who get loans from banks or other private agencies. It can act only where FHA loans are concerned.

example: Lunch is being provided by the parents group and it asks the teachers to serve the children. That is an imposition. The teacher needs her lunchtime for rest, for time to eat her own lunch freed of duty. To take the teacher's lunchtime to serve children's lunch is to make the teacher unfit for the teaching she should do that afternoon, and teaching is her function.

Asking teachers to volunteer for such duties as entertaining, serving meals, selling tickets, leading meetings, giving lectures does not relieve the situation. Such volunteering is rarely voluntary. The teacher who does not volunteer is likely to be marked "uncooperative," and that is likely to cost that teacher a promotion or a salary increase.

Teaching takes all that a teacher has of energy, strength and ambititon. By the end of the school day, she is as weary, as flat as an empty sack. She must have time to rest, to change her thinking, to recuperate for the next day's work. She must live her own life in sound, healthy fashion or she cannot teach to the standard we require.

Of course the social work must be done, but let somebody else have a chance to do it. It is not the classroom teacher's function.

Plain-spoken opinions on a universal problem which parents face are given in Dr. Patri's booklet No. 302, "Annoying Habits." MAY OUST THREE N.C.A.A. MEMBERS

Expulsion Recommended Due Violations Of 'Sanity' Code

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Expulsion of seven "active members" for violation of the so-called "sanity" code today was recommended to the National Athletic Association.

Identity of the seven schools whose fate will be decided at the N. C. A. A.'s 44th annual convention in New York, January 13-14, was not disclosed by Secretary-Treasurer K. L. (Tug) Wilson in an outline of the convention program.

At the same time, Wilson revealed that three code amendments have been proposed, the foremost being a suggestion for a year-around training table by the southeastern, southwest and southern conferences. Dartmouth called for a tightening on recruitment and a ban on athletic trial camps.

Wilson's memorandum to the N. C. A. A. membership pointed out that the seven schools had failed to maintain standards in accordance with the code which places strict limitations on financial aids to athletes.

Twenty-three other schools still are under scrutiny by the N. C. A. A.'s constitutional complaint committee, but only the seven were established as caught with the goods within the four-month warning deadline before the convention.

However, the recommended expulsion, along with the code amendment proposals, are subject to review by the executive committee and can be achieved only by a two-thirds vote of the delegates present. Full N. C. A. A. voting potential is 305, requiring approximately 200 for binding action.

Barred members would face schedule boycott by the members in good standing.

An N. C. A. A. spokesman declined to divulge whether the seven schools were major institutions, or to what conferences or geographical sections they belonged.

The code limits aid to athletes to three levels:

A. On the basis of need, not to exceed tuition and incidental fees, administered by a regular campus agency for granting aid to all students.

B. On the basis of high scholarship.

C. On the basis of qualifications of which athletic ability is not one.

The Southwest Conference was a party to two of the three recommended code amendments, both of which concerned the training table for athletes.

Besides joining with the southeastern and southern conferences in a recommendation for an all-year training table, the southwest loop also proposed a training table during the season of a given sport. (The code now permits a school to provide athletes an evening meal within the season).

The south, which has been open in its criticism of the code's strictness, has a combined membership vote of 38 within the three conferences involved in the all-year training table proposal. It could muster a total of 64, if the third (south) and sixth (southwest) districts all went along.

The executive committee which must channel the agenda to the convention floor is composed of seven members, including: James H. Stewart, executive secretary of the Southwest Conference; Asa S. Bushnell, commissioner of the Eastern College Athletic Conference; Reaves A. Peters, secretary of the Big Seven; Hugh C. Willett of Southern California; E. Le Roy Mercer, University of Pennsylvania; Robert A. Fetzer, North Carolina; and N. W. Dougherty, Tennessee.

The all-year training table is an attempt to regain the feeding feature of room-and-board allowances knocked out by the sanity code. The southwest proposal for a training table within the season of the sport involved was interpreted as a compromise in face of expected opposition to the all-year table.

Dartmouth's proposed amendment on recruiting suggested a ban on traveling expenses for hot-shot high school athletes, along with "excessive" entertainment of such college prospects.

Concerning trial camps, the Dartmouth proposal would outlaw "any athletic practice session or test at which one or more prospective students reveal, demonstrate, or display their abilities in any branch of sport."

The sanity code, as it now reads, does not ban try-outs.

The N. C. A. A. bowl games committee will submit to the convention a previously-announced program calling for association controls of post-season football contests.

Green Speaks Favor To 'Welfare State'

LONDON, Dec. 3. — (AP) — William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor (A. F. L.), told Britons today he would "rather have the United States as a welfare state than a Wall Street state."

Green, participating in ceremonies opening a new medical and rehabilitation center in South London, said Britain has made "great progress" in health and social services "and we are working to that end in our country."

Britain installed a cradle to grave health and social welfare program in July, 1948.

"The reactionary press of our country call it all socialized medicine and charge us with trying to change America into a welfare state," Green said. "I say that we would rather have the United States as a welfare state than a Wall Street state."

The rehabilitation center was built with nearly $200,000 given to British trade unionists by the A. F. L. and the Congress of Industrial Organizations. It was opened by Julius C. Holmes, of the U. S. embassy in London, and is a branch of a hospital owned by the trade union organizations of Britain.

Where does your family fit in the above pattern? About one-third of America's families and single individuals had money incomes of less than $2000 during 1948, according to a recent report of a subcommittee of the Joint Committee on the Economic Report. Chart reflects the report's data, which will be basis of hearings in Washington Dec. 12 to 16 on the problem of low-income families. The report cautions that low cash income does not necessarily indicate poverty, especially in the case of farm families which provide for many of their needs at home. On the other hand, city families with higher cash income may have trouble meeting basic needs.

HOOVER

parish (county) prison he showed no emotion.

But at the entrance to a remote section of the jail reserved for convicted murderers, Hoover wilted, threw his arms about the accompanying deputy sheriff and burst out sobbing.

Three hours later, Sheriff John Grosch, reported that the prisoner was still sobbing and had refused to eat.

As Hoover left the courtroom, he told his sister, Mrs. Juanita Patterson, "so long, honey." The Louisville, Ky., woman cried softly holding a handkerchief over her face.

For seven hours last night the jurors studied the case of the former Louisville, Ky., parking lot attendant who was charged with the murder of 55-year-old Mahoney. The jurors were locked up at 1 a. m. (C. S. T.) today resumed deliberation at 9 a. m. (C. S. T.). Just an hour and ten minutes later they announced the verdict.

Later Hoover's father told newsmen, "it came as a shock to me. I thought at the most he would be given manslaughter. That boy got a raw deal. There are four or five liars involved in this case."

The court had told the jurors that they could find the defendant guilty as charged, guilty without capital punishment, guilty of manslaughter, or innocent.

Behind the walls and bars of the prison a strange drama unfolded with no one but an old guard and some prisoners as witnesses.

Sheriff Grosch said Dale Simpson, death-cell prisoner awaiting the electric chair for killing a New Orleans detective, tried to comfort and console the broken, sobbing Hoover.

Grosch said he was not permitting even Hoover's father and sister to visit him in his state of shock, but that the condemned Simpson's calm consoling words seemed to be helping the shaken Hoover occupying an adjacent cell.

From start to finish, the state wove a net of circumstantial evidence around Hoover, presenting witnesses who testified seeing him in the hotel corridor a few yards from the door of Mahoney's room shortly after the established time of the killing.

Other witnesses quoted Hoover as saying "I'm afraid I committed a murder" and as identifying the victim as Mahoney.

The motive of robbery was strongly suggested in evidence given by Baker. Earlier testimony placed Hoover with Mahoney prior to the killing.

When Hoover was arrested, Police Supt. Joseph Scheuring said Hoover admitted being with Mahoney the night of the slaying and that he had taken a bath in Mahoney's hotel room, after which Mahoney dried him with a towel.

Later Hoover took—voluntarily—a truth serum tset and while he was under the influence of the drug (Sodium pentothal) the police executive said Hoover told of fighting with Mahoney after the millionaire had made "a slighting remark" about Hoover's wife as the two men lay nude on the hotel bed.

But when the effects of the drug wore off, Scheuring said Hoover reiterated that he could not remember a fight.

A witness for the state was Alberta Stroh, Hoover's divorced wife. She testified that after their marriage in her home town of Yates Center, Kansas, they came to New Orleans where Hoover subsequently persuaded her to become a "B drinker" in a Canal street bar. She explained the duties of a "B drinker" include enticing male customers to buy drinks and after they became intoxicated to obtain their money.

On the stand she said she quit the job because she was too softhearted to "roll" the customers and for quitting it Hoover hit her in the stomach. So she left him.

The defense presentation was brief.

Defending attorneys rested after calling only four witnesses. Their testimony tended to instill doubt that the man seen with the millionaire a few hours before his nude, bloody body was found, was Hoover.

Defense counsel repeatedly pointed up the argument that no finger-prints had been found in the room.

In a bitter attack on the testimony of Hoover's wife, Attorney Sam Zelden said, "she made the trip to testify against him and in effect she came here to send him to the electric chair."

Says Joker In Cotton Acreage Act Harmful

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Rep. Oren Harris (D.-Ark.) said today a "joker" in the new cotton acreage act has placed many southern cotton growers in a serious predicament.

"The situation is so serious," he told a reporter, "that he threatens to put some farmers out of the cotton business."

Harris said he and Representative Cooley (D.-N. C.), chairman of the house agriculture committee, have met with agriculture department officials to see what can be done to rectify the situation.

The situation, Harris said, is this:

The new cotton bill provides that the county percentage factor be applied to all cotton growers in the county. The county percentage factor is the ratio of cotton acreage in the county to the total crop land in the county. If the county percentage factor is 10 per cent, then a farmer can put only 10 per cent of his crop land into cotton.

"Take the example of three farmers in a county with 100 acres each of crop land. Suppose one had a cotton history of 12 acres, the second 24 acres and the third 48 acres. If the county percentage is 12 per cent then each would be limited to 12 acres," Harris said.

He said he understood the situation is most serious in North Carolina, Florida and Virginia. He said it is serious in many counties, including those in Arkansas.

Secretary Brannan and other agriculture department officials are to be in Memphis next Monday and Tuesday to discuss the situation with field men and growers.

ACCUSED SLAYER

You know there were six bullet holes in the ceiling of the house. My brother said he had been drinking at the time of the shooting."

Then members of a posse stepped up and took Bean into custody.

Bean's wife, Fannie, 35, and daughter, Dorris Jean, 11, were found dead in the house by their landlady. A son, Donald Ray, nine, was critically wounded. Donald's twin, Bonnie Fay, and seven-year-old Thelma were lined against a wall, weeping.

The landlady, Mrs. Mary Rice, told police she was met at the door of the home by Bean, who she said, left carrying a .22 caliber rifle and threatening to kill himself. He had the rifle when captured.

Bonnie Fay told police the shootings followed an argument between the parents as the mother fixed her hair to go to her work as a waitress.

"Daddy got his gun....and started shooting,"she said. "I think he shot her about five times. . . .

'He put more bullets in the gun and turned it to my little brother. He shot him through the side. Then he said to my little brother—he went over to him—he said: "it was an accident."

"Then he shot my sister. She was standing by the door screaming."

Officers first searched the weeds near the house, looking for Bean's body. Thompson said Bean told him he had been in the outbuilding since Thursday night and hadn't eaten since then.

UNION'S PROBE KEPT EXCLUSIVE

Left Wing Leaders Say Hearings Will Be Biased If Restricted

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—President Philip Murray today refused to hand over the C. I. O.'s investigation of its 10 left-wing unions to a panel of outsiders—including John L. Lewis or anybody else.

Two left-wing leaders complained that the proposed hearings of charges of Communist leanings would be biased if conducted by committees of rival right-wing unionists as planned. Murray said regular C. I. O. practice was being followed.

Abram Flaxer of the United Public Workers and James Durkin of the United Office and Professional Workers had suggested that the hearings be turned over to somebody outside the C. I. O. They suggested public figures like Chief Justice Fred A. Vinson, a panel of law school professors, or independent labor leaders like John L. Lewis, who once headed the C. I. O. but is on the outs with Murray.

The Flaxer and Durkin unions will be the first to have hearings under the schedule set up by the C. I. O. executive board.

The C. I. O. convention in Cleveland last month ousted two unions charged with following a Communist program rather than C. I. O. policy. The convention authorized the C. I. O. executive board now under strong anti-Communist control to expel any other leader or union refusing to adhere to C. I. O. policy.

The ousted unions were the United Electrical Workers and the Farm Equipment Workers. A rival anti-leftwing union is being formed in the electrical field, and the farm equipment workers' jurisdiction was handed over to Reuther's Auto Workers.

Since the convention, Morris Pizer, head of the Furniture Workers, has announced he intends to clean house of all persons refusing to follow C. I. O. policy.

In letters to Flaxer and Durkin, Murray said today that the hearings would follow C. I. O. procedures for investigating internal affairs. He wrote:

"* * * It has always been C. I. O. practice, never departed from insofar as I am aware, that charges against the international unions or their officers be heard by a committee of executive board members.

"The executive board, and only the executive board is empowered by the C. I. O. constitution to take action against unions whose policies and activities are consistently directed toward the achievement of the program or purposes of the Communist party.

"The executive board will, accordingly, review the findings of the committee as to whether your union is such a union, and, with due respect to the recommendations of the committee, itself make the final decision as to what action is appropriate."

In a separate letter to Flaxer, Murray said:

"Your lengthy and argumentative denial of the claim that your union has consistently directed its policies and activities toward the achievement of the program and purposes of the Communist party, rather than the objectives and policies of the C. I. O., should, of course, properly be made in the hearings * * * and I need not comment on it."

Earlier, Rieve had said that his committee would hold closed sessions, that neither side would be permitted to bring lawyers in, and that the findings would be submitted to the C. I. O. executive board.

tired officer and the right to use the uniform.

He said he would protest in congress, when that body meets May 1, that the constitution had been violated. He said as a congressman he was not liable to prosecution for a political statement.

He said he is "prepared to prove my statement" that the president was spending 3,000,000 pesos ($330,000) on a country home.

Alberto Gainza Paz is editor of La Prensa. La Nacion has two co-directors, Dr. Luis Mitre, 80, and his son, Dr. Bartolome Mitre. Dr. Luis Mitre is a grandson of Gen. Bartolome Mitre, a former president and national hero.

Peron chose a dramatic setting for the announcement. For the first time in two years foreign correspondents were invited to a news conference. It was held in the White Salon of the presidential offices, which usually is reserved for such state occasions as the signing of treaties.

Dressed in a tan summer suit and red bow tie and flanked by his full cabinet, Peron told the correspondents he had been maligned by political opponents who accuse him of getting wealthy off the public purse. His presidential salary is 12,000 pesos ($1,333) a month.

Seated beside the president was a notary public with a sworn statement Peron said he made when he entered office in 1946. It showed Peron listed as his possessions a country estate worth 50,000 pesos, an automobile, a share of his father's estate and a farm owned jointly with his mother. He described as a "terrible calumny" the charge he had bought the country estate for 3,000,000 pesos since becoming president.

He declared he had been assurances if he has any more money on leaving office he will give it away and, in fact, already had deeded his country place to Buenos Aires province.

He said La Nacion and La Prensa had "echoed these false charges" and added: "I am going to prove my case with documents, so the opposition and newspapers will stand accused as calumniators."

The bookkeeping departments of both newspapers, among others, were occupied recently by a congressional committee seeking the source of anti-Peron political funds in the 1946 presidential election. Both newspapers consistently attacked Peron before his election and since.

Tow Truck Breaks Up Lengthy Traffic Jam

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 3.—(AP)—A tow truck solved a six-mile long traffic jam west of here today by pulling a stalled swing bridge to shore.

The bridge, located at Bayou Des Allemands on important Highway 90 west of here, stuck for more than four hours when it swung aside at 11 a.m. (C. S. T.) to let river traffic pass.

The first vehicle in line on the New Orleans side was the tow truck driven by Joseph Miller of Lafayette, La., when the engineers could not repair the bridge, Miller volunteered to pull it around to shore. Hours passed. The line of cars extended for three miles on each side of the bayou.

State police received permission from the state highway commission for Miller to try to swing the bridge. A line was passed from the truck to the bridge, the truck started to pull, the bridge came back into place and the traffic jam began to dissolve.

ing huge masses of cold lava left by the eruption of 1759.

The villages of Chiavazza and Giardinazzo were by-passed in the night, but apple and pear trees in the area were destroyed. There have been no reports of deaths.

Maletto is a town of 3,600.

Bronte, with a population of 18,000, is the residence of the Duke of Bronte, a descendant of Admiral Horatio Nelson, British naval hero. Orchards on the duke's estate went up in flames.

Both Maletto nd Bront are among the towns on the highway that belts the huge base of Mt. Etna, Europe's highest volcano. Authorities expressed concern for the Mt. Etna railroad, which lies on exposed ground.

A four-second earthquake came at dawn. Tongues of flames licked upward from the snow-circled peak. Then came clouds of steam, smoke and vapor.

A youth who saw the show said: "there was a great roar, then silence. It was like looking at a color movie without sound."

Shortly after noon, the rumbles renewed. The whole summit was covered by a thick fog, reddened by the light of explosions. A rain of ashes continued throughout the day. Toward evening, the display lost intensity.

Special police detachments were dispatched to the danger area from Catania to handle the curious who thronged in from fashionable resorts to watch the eruption.

FAMED BETHLEHEM STAR IS GLOWING

Gigantic 81-Foot High Electric Star Lights Mountain Side

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Dec. 3.—(AP)—The famed star of Bethlehem—symbol of peace and good will toward all men—glowed in this steel city tonight.

At 6:30 p.m. (E. S. T.) the gigantic 18-foot high electric star threw its light against the backdrop of south mountain. It will remain lighted until Jan. 2, a beacon to thousands of Christmas season visitors.

Industrial Bethlehem is a myriad of lights today. Many other lights gleamed into the night along with the 3,000-bulb star. And, as always, the sky glowed with the red-orange flames from the city's steel furnaces.

On the middle arch of the hill-to-hill bridge that connects this eastern Pennsylvania city's north, south and east sections is a 60-foot Christmas tree, composed of 60 individual, tiny spruces.

Along the seven miles of the city's streets are strung some 40,000 electric stars, bells, candles and wreaths. Both business and residential districts glittered.

Floodlights illuminated the old belfry of the Central Moravian Church—scene of the annual candlelight service on Christmas Eve.

A public service in Zinzendorf Square—only a few steps from the spot where Bethlehem was named 207 years ago—opened the Christmas season for the U. S. A.'s Christmas city.

six, saying it would cause undue worry among relatives of some students who may not have been in the building but have not been located.

Firemen continued to dig through the ruins, while University workers sought to contact the missing students or their families. Anxious parents were swamping the university switchboard with telephone calls from all over the country.

With the origin of the fire, which enveloped the building in less than ten minutes, still undetermined, estimates of the damage ran beyond half a million dollars.

The office of Dr. George L. Cross, university president, placed the loss at around $500,000. Property Custodian L. J. Hughes said it would be between $600,000 and $700,000, not including students' personal losses.

University Fire Chief Claude Summers said campus dormitories are inspected monthly. He said the dormitory destroyed today was inspected Nov. 8.

Summers said a night watchman's timeclock was punched 45 minutes before the first report of the fire was received.

The fire department received the fire alarm at 2:55 a. m. C. S. T.

Here are some letters:

"Dear Good Fellows: I know you helped us last year and I appreciated it very much. Can you help us again this Christmas? Unless you do there won't be any Christmas for us.

"I would like to have a shirt, size 15 and a pair of socks size 11. My mother needs some hose size 10 1/2. If you can help us we will call for it if you all will tell where and when to come. Anything given us will be much appreciated."

"Dear Good Fellows: I'm asking a favor of you. We are farmers and did not make a crop. No income at all. I'm in bad health and stayed in Conway Hospital part of the summer and didn't get to raise anything to can, so I'm in need of food and clothes. Please lend a helping hand so we can have a little Christmas. There are three in the family, my husband, myself and daughter 17."

"Mr. Good Fellows: I am asking for your help again. Please don't turn me down as you was so good to us last year, and my children and I did so appreciate it all.

"My little girl is 5; and the little boy 9. Anything you can do for them will be appreciated.

"You may not know how it is but it is heart breaking to have one's kids ask what Santa will bring and to have to make some excuses and quiet them down. I am trusting in God that we shall not be overlooked this year. God bless you one and all."

4 Critically Burned; Four-Year-Old Boy Dies

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 3.—(AP)—One of four persons critically burned today in a blazing hay barn near Simmesport, La., died tonight.

Dead was four-year-old Weber Bordelon. Dr. C. Grenes Cole, Orleans parish coroner, said death was the result of shock following second and third degree burns on 60 per cent of the body surface.

His mother and sister pulled Weber and his three-year-old brother, Carl, from the blazing hayloft and were seriously burned themselves. All of them were brought to Charity Hospital in New Orleans.

The father, Eddie Bordelon, assistant police chief at Simmesport, said the boys apparently were playing with matches in the hayloft. Instead of running out of the blazing structure they ran to its center, he said.

Unaware of the disaster at his home, Bordelon was racing to the fire in the fire engine when he met a neighbor bringing Mrs. Bordelon and one son to the clinic. The barn was destroyed and the side of the dwelling was scorched. The Bordelons have four other children.

TRUMAN

balanced, replied:

"Not to my knowledge."

John R. Steelman, assistant to the president, completed a round of conferences for Mr. Truman in Washington today with tax and economic advisors.

He has talked with, among others, Secretary of the Treasury Snyder, Secretary of Commerce Sawyer, and Leon Keyserling, acting chairman of the president's council of economic advisors.

Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross announced here that Steelman obtained from them and the heads of all the government departments and agencies "written suggestions" for the budget, the economic message and the "state of the union" address Mr. Truman will make to congress in January.

Awaiting Steelman's return by plane Monday, the president relaxed at the beach where he swam with his daughter, Margaret. She and Mrs. Truman are leaving Tuesday. Margaret to go to New York to resume her voice studies. Mrs. Truman is returning to Washington.

In the afternoon, the president had a group of Shrine and Masonic leaders as guests. They installed him as honorary grand master of the Missouri Lodge of Masons. Then, they made him an honorary member of the Shrine Temple at Miami. The ceremonies occurred on the lawn of the "little White House."

Press Secretary Ross refused to hazard a guess today on the size of the next budget. Some administration officials say it may run as high as $45,000,000,000. Budget director Frank Pace told White House reporters recently it would run "between $41,000,000,000 and $45,000,000,000.

The budget Mr. Truman submitted last January estimated expenditures this year at nearly $42,000,000,000. Estimates vary now as to how much more they will run. And, commitments under the European recovery program, the Atlantic pact and other defense measures adopted in the cold war may run spending even higher next year.

Mr. Truman's advisors are aware that any attempt to increase taxes will encounter strong opposition in congress, especially in an election year. But, many of them are urging him to request them and blame any increases in the deficit on the opposition.

The president already has decided to include in the "state of the union" message a strong new appeal for anti-lynching and the other civil rights measures he campaigned for in 1948 and asked of congress last year.

Up at 6:30 a. m., Mr. Truman took a walk around the naval submarine station before a light breakfast of grapefruit, bacon, toast and black coffee. He worked on official papers that left for Washington by courier plane an hour later.

The president's daily visits to the beach have given him a deep tan. He says he feels rested and relaxed.

He attended an "off the record" birthday party for Matthew J. Connelly, as guests of White House correspondents, last night.

THREE DANGEROUS MEN AT LIBERTY

Violent, Insane Trio Escape Mental Hospital; Reported 'Very Dangerous'

SALEM, Ore., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Apprehension spread over western Oregon today where three violent, insane men were at large.

Police warned that the three, who escaped from the state mental hospital here last night, were "very dangerous." All available police were ordered out in an intensive search.

Four actually broke out of the hospital, but police tracked one down in a brush patch two miles from the hospital and subdued him. They fired several shots at what they thought to be other moving figures in the brush. Later they admitted the other three got away, apparently headed north.

Except for another of the patients in the criminal ward, 55 insane might have escaped. He tricked the escaping four and was credited with saving the life of one of the hospital guards.

The escape started with one patient feigning sudden illness. When Attendant Ed Rollins went into his cell, he overpowered Rollins and seized his keys.

He unlocked the cells of three others. One of them telephoned Attendant Tom Smith that something was wrong with Rollins. When Smith rushed in, he was choked from behind by a towel that was wrapped around his neck.

"Everything started to go black. Suddenly a fifth patient ran up and said, 'let me finish the job.' I thought I was done for, but he let up on the towel while pretending to tighten it," Smith said later.

The four gave Rollins' keys to the fifth patient and told him to unlock the cells of 51 others in the criminal ward. As they left running, he threw the keys away, shunning the chance to escape, Smith said.

Eight others did wander through an open door from the criminal ward, but were captured before they got out of the building.

The four used Smith's keys to go through an outside gate into the darkness.

CALLED SERIOUS

a right to do in its own waters, and an attack which violates international law and extends outside that area. It contends this now has occurred.

At the news conference Wednesday Acheson had said that he considered the latest attack in some respects at least a violation of American rights. Therefore he considered that if the Isbrandtsen line wanted to claim damages the American government would back it up.

At the same time he singled out the Isbrandtsen line as the one Pacific ship operator which had sent its vessels into Shanghai. By way of indirect rebuke he praised the "wisdom" of all those operators who had stopped sending their ships there.

In New York, the Isbrandtsen line declined comment on the protest. However, last night Vice-President Matthew S. Crinkley said in a speech that its ships would continue to enter Shanghai, based on the state department's view that the blockade is not legal.

Crinkley accused the department of timidity and carelessness in not doing more in support of its policy.

While the nationalists tried to halt sea trade to the Communist-held area, their hopes grew feebler in the field. The Reds relentlessly pushed on in western China, cutting a two highway arteries to the new Nationalist capital in crowded Chengtu.

In his news conference Wednesday, Acheson was careful to draw a sharp distinction between legal rights involved on both sides in the ship case.

He said patrol vessels of any government had a right to operate under recognized rules to prevent a foreign vessel from moving through territorial waters. On the other hand a foreign vessel outside territorial waters had the right to operate unmolsted and not be chased or fired on.

He said that at least some of the firing on the Sir John Franklin had occurred outside Chinese territorial waters and was therefore illegal and a violation of American rights.

Then, in the note made public today, Acheson stressed another claim of illegality by the Chinese—that is that the conduct of the Chinese warship was contrary to international law and amounted to "indiscriminately and wanton firing." Acheson based his case on the reports sent in by the skipper of the Sir John Franklin.

The note informed the Chinese that the American craft, ordered to stop, signaled that it couldn't because of shallow water but added "please board me underweigh or accompany me to deep water at Fooching buoy."

Thereupon, according to this account, the Chinese ship opened fire and a second Chinese lifted anchor and joined in pursuit of the Sir John Franklin, now under full speed. Both Chinese ships were shooting.

Finally, the Chinese were told in the note, the Sir John Franklin's engines were stopped 13 miles from Kiutoan Spit buoy and it prepared to anchor, the pursuing Chinese being so informed. The Chinese, however, kept shooting and the Sir John Franklin resumed flight.

From the legal point of view as Acheson had previously explained it at news conferences, two points stand out in this account. One is that the Chinese warship began firing without warning upon a vessel which had agreed to be boarded. The second is that when it tried to stop and anchor the firing continued.

In these respects particularly the case appeared t. differ from that of the Flying Cloud. Of that incident, State department officials said that while they deplored the danger to American lives they had no legal basis on which to hold the Chinese government responsible for damages.

In other words, there appears to be a difference between what the State dpartment might consider a legal attack on a vessel in China's territorial waters which was made after full warning, and an illegal attack which broke one or more of the rules of international law.

QUEEN'S NEPHEW GOES TO COURT

Pleads Innocent To Operating Jeep While Intoxicated; Trial Set

PERTH, Scotland, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The dapper little Earl of Strathmore, bachelor nephew of Queen Elizabeth, was charged in court today with driving a jeep while drunk. He pleaded innocent.

The case was set for trial next March 10. Court reporters said a jammed docket and a forthcoming holiday recess accounted for the delay.

Police witnesses said the Earl, 31, was picked up by a patrol car dispatched to the Perth-Aberdeen road last night to investigate reports that a motorist was driving erratically.

Near the village of Balbeggie—six miles from Perth—they found two cars which had collided, one of them the Earl's jeep. He was alone. Nobody in either car was injured.

The Earl was called to the dock today under his family name of Timothy Patrick Bowes-Lyon. His address was given as Glamis (pronounced Glarms) Castle, ancestral home of the Strathmore family.

The castle is the birthplace of Princess Margaret, and once was the royal residence of the 11th century thane of Glamis MacBeth, who gave Shakespeare's great tragedy its name. It lies 20 miles northwest of Perth on the road to Aberdeen.

Strathmore stood silent during reading of the charge that he drove the jeep "while under the influence of drink to such an extent as to be incapable of having proper control of the vehicle."

A Perth lawyer, Norman C. Hunter, then entered a plea of not guilty for him. He was freed pending trial.

The Earl, who was a black watch officer during the war, followed the court proceedings closely, but said nothing.

Friends said the Earl had spent some time in a Perth hotel Friday and that they assumed he was bound for Glamis when the collision occurred.

Strathmore became the 16th Earl of the line upon the death of his father last May 25. The 15th Earl was the eldest of the queen's three brothers.

Mississippi River Bridge Site Pending

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Dec. 3.—(AP)—A site for a proposed new Mississippi river bridge may be selected Tuesday.

Chief Engineer A. E. Johnson, of the Arkansas highway department, said today the Arkansas-Mississippi bridge commission would meet then at Clarksdale, Miss., to discuss the matter.

The commission was set up to plan for a bridge over the Mississippi in the general vicinity of Helena, Ark. It would be between the present bridges at Memphis and at Lake Village-Greenville.

Johnson said sites being discussed include Helena, where a toll ferry now is operated; Montezuma Bend, five and one-half miles downstream from Helena.

The bridge will cost an estimated $5,500,000, not including approaches. Johnson said it had not been decided whether the project would be paid for by state allocations or through tolls.

Chicago Hotel Is Robbed Of $22,000

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Two bold robbers who apparently were familiar with its internal operations late yesterday robbed the sprawling Stevens hotel of $22,000 in cash and checks.

They escaped after slugging the general cashier H. W. Kipper, 47.

The robbery occurred as Kipper stepped from a service elevator at the fourth floor, where the hotel's offices are located. The service elevators are inaccessible to any but hotel personnel, and Kipper was following his daily routine of collecting from the lobby cages and going back to his office.

Kipper told police he saw the two men as he left the elevator. One struck him on the back of the head with a gun, the other took from him the brief case containing the funds.

They pushed him toward the offices and fled down a backstair.

Audrey Lindgren, hotel advertising director, said $15,000 was in checks and that probably $7,000 was in cash. Receipts had been swelled by room payments of 4-H club members whose national convention has just ended.

The hotel is the world's largest.

Tangerines are early varieties of the orange.

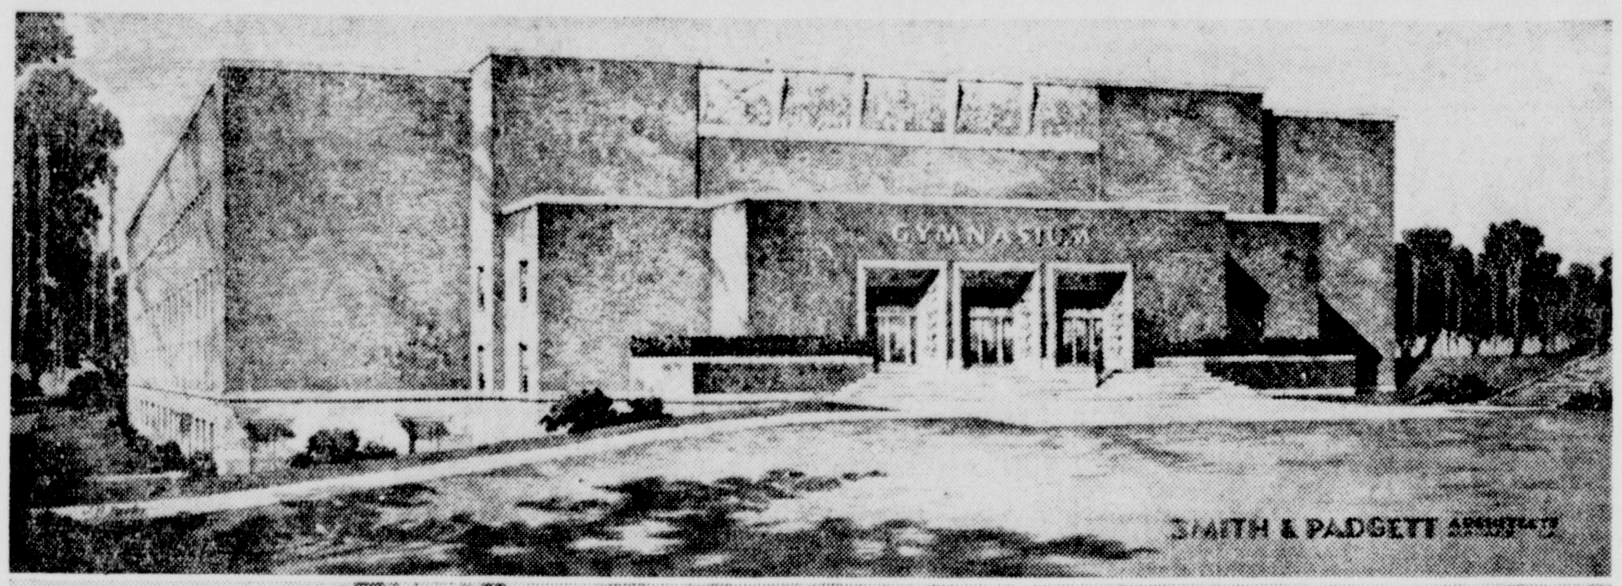
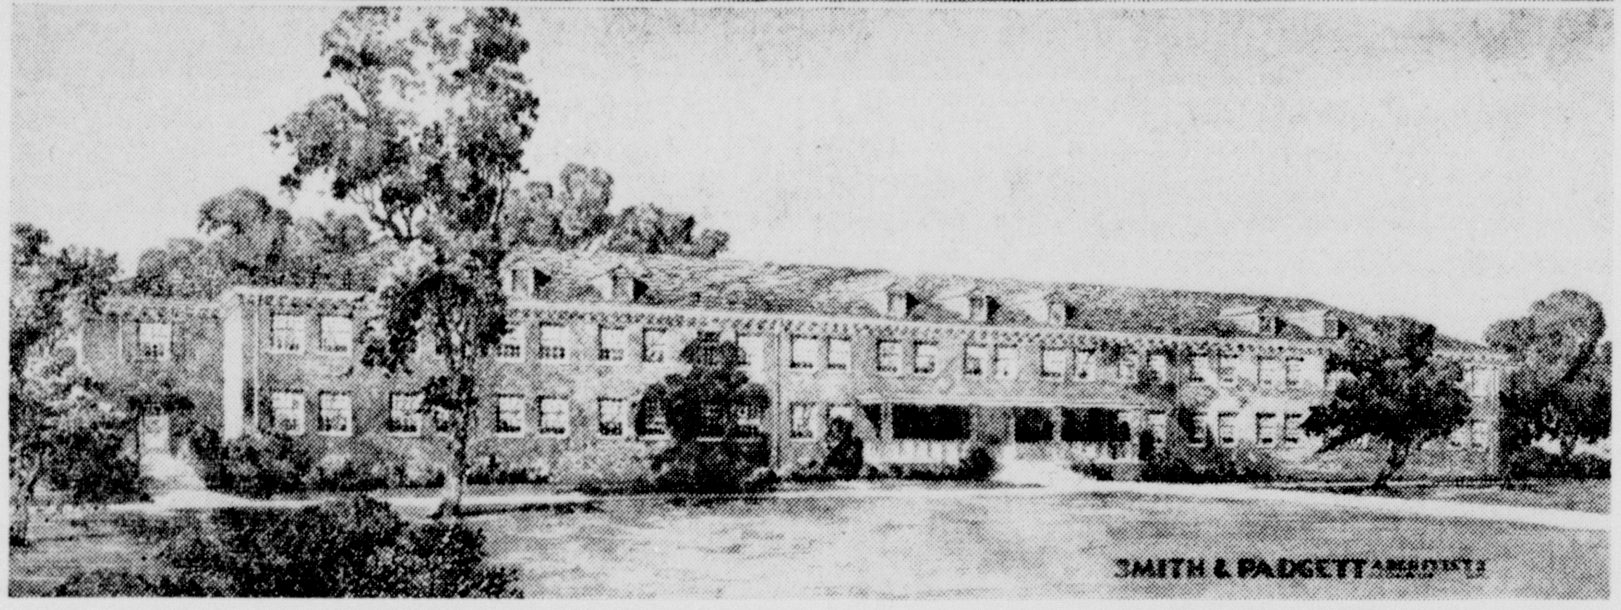
NEW TECH BUILDINGS TO INCLUDE GYMNASIUM AND TWO MEN'S DORMITORIES





Louisiana Tech's current building program is scheduled to include a new gymnasium, for which plans are being prepared, and two new dormitories for men, both of which are now under construction. The architects' drawing of the gymnasium is shown at the top. The lower sketch pictures one of the two dormitories, which are to be alike. Estimated to cost $750,000, the gymnasium will seat more than 4,700 persons and will contain one main basketball court and two cross courts for practice. One half of the seats will be permanent and the remainder of the bleacher type. The building also will include two large classrooms and two small classrooms, as well as offices for personnel of the departments of athletics and physical education. Plans for the gymnasium are expected to be completed by January 1 and it is hoped that construction can begin by March 1, 1950. The gymnasium will face south on a site now devoted to tennis courts. The two dormitories will be built at a combined cost of $560,000, with each housing 88 students. Architects for the gymnasium and dormitories are Smith and Padgett of Monroe. The Tudor Construction Company of Alexandria is erecting the dormitories.

GIRL ABOARD SHIP MISSING

Withered Rose Only Clue To Disappearance Of Attractive Australian

LONDON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—A withered red rose and a trayful of cigarette stubs were the only clues British authorities had today to the mysterious disappearance of a pretty pajama-clad girl from a South-Seas liner.

The girl was 20-year-old Gwenda McCallum of Sydney, Australia, who was last seen in her cabin late on the night of Oct. 30 as the Orient liner Orcades steamed from Sydney to Melbourne on its way to London.

When the ship docked here last Wednesday, ministry of transport officials were called to investigate the shipping company's report that Gwenda met "death by disappearance."

Alister Cameron, 30-year-old British civil servant in Fiji, said Miss McCallum came aboard at Sydney without money and stayed "either accidentally or deliberately" until after it sailed. He had met her at a Sydney hotel. He said he paid her fare as far as Melbourne.

Cameron told investigators he stayed with the girl until 1:30 a. m. after accompanying her to her cabin and lending her a pair of pajamas. She was missing the next morning.

Cameron said when he looked into her cabin the next morning, he saw a withered red rose on a long stalk. It had not been there when he was with her the night before and he wondered where anyone had managed to find a red rose.

He said he also noticed an ash tray full of cigarette stubs, "though I do not smoke and while I was with her, neither did Miss McCallum."

The only article missing from the cabin, Cameron said, was the pair of pajamas he had lent the girl.

Conservation Setup Might Be Changed

BATON ROUGE, La., Dec. 3.—(AP)—A proposal to recommend replacing Louisiana's commissioner of conservation with a three-man commission was rejected today by a legislative committee.

The joint committee, named by the 1948 legislature, is studying the state's oil and gas conservation laws. It is due to report its findings to the legislature in May.

The proposal was strongly supported by State Senators Charles E. Tooke, Jr., of Shreveport, and Oscar Guidry of Church Point, both members of the committee. Tooke said a three-man commission, although more expensive, would best serve the public interest.

The committee also voted to recommend two changes in the law. One would permit courts to disregard findings of the commissioner where "a substantial number" of appeals were taken from his rulings. The other would require measurement of gas production on a uniform basis of 14.65 pounds atmospheric pressure per square inch.

The committee applauded the work of Conservation Commissioner S. L. Digby and recommended a "very substantial increase" in appropriations for the conservation department. Members said the increased funds could be used to increase the department's technical staff.

Industry representatives, who attended a hearing of the committee here last night, had opposed all three of the proposed law changes.

Committee Chairman John J. McKeithen, Caldwell parish representative, said today's session ended public meetings of the group. Henceforth, it will concern itself with writing its report to the legislature, he said.

The late John L. Baird in England is credited with being the first to demonstrate color television, the year being 1928.

DOROTHY DIX

Sadistic Husband

Man Takes Pleasure In Torturing Wife

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been married four years to a young man of good character who professes to love me, but we have never in all the years we have been married had an hour's enjoyment together. I have worked constantly since we have been married and we have no children. I do not understand my husband's attitude toward me. If I plan something for our enjoyment, he sulks, argues, fights and does everything to ruin the evening. If some one comes to the house to see us, he tells about what a sloppy housekeeper I am. If one of our friends pays me a compliment, he remarks: "You ought to live with her for a while." I have killed my own personality completely to keep peace with him, but to no good. What's the answer to this terrific problem of how to get along with a man who says he loves you, yet does everything to make you miserable?

DOROTHY DIX

VERILYN

ANSWER: I suppose the real explanation of your husband's conduct is that he is a sort of sadist. Oscar Wilde once said that "all men kill the thing they love," and, while that is not strictly true, it is true that many men get a neurotic pleasure out of torturing their wives even when they are fond of them.

FEELS INFERIOR

This is particularly the case when the man secretly feels that he is his wife's inferior in looks, or mind, or disposition, or achievements. Then he justifies himself to himself and thinks he shows off before others by trying to humiliate her.

Then there are men of cruel natures who enjoy torturing others. They get a kick out of inflicting pain and seeing their victims writhe in agony and, of course, the wife is always the pre-ordained victim of these inhuman monsters.

What pleasure a man can find in making his wife needlessly unhappy no normal mind can understand. But their perverted souls do. There are plenty of husbands who never say a pleasant word in their homes; who never mention anything their wives do except to knock it; who go out of their way to insult her family and her friends; who apparently begrudge her the food she eats and the clothes she wears; and who make marriage for her a good understudy of the Inquisition.

I think any woman is foolish who stands such treatment. Especially is she foolish to endure it if she has no children whose welfare would depend upon having a father to provide for them. The wife of such a man should just put on her hat and quit cold.

It is no woman's duty to offer herself up as a goat for any man to torment for his diversion. The martyr's halo isn't a proper headgear for any woman who has sense enough to make her own living.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am a married woman of 35 and have five children, the oldest 12 years old. My husband makes just barely enough salary to meet the bills for our absolute necessities of life. I do all the work in our five-room bungalow—washing, iron and baking. I am dissatisfied and tired of trying to make both ends meet. I am an absolute slave and wish I could get a divorce. What do you think?

MARRIED

ANSWER: If you have to slave to make ends meet when your husband brings in the money would you have an easier time of it when you had to do the cooking, washing and ironing for your five children, and also earn the money to buy the food you cook and pay the rent of the house you sweep?

I grant you that it is hard for a woman to be married to a man who has not the gift of money-making; who has to stretch every penny to its utmost limit; who has to work beyond her strength, slaving for her children, and who lives always in the black shadow of unpaid bills.

But if such a woman's husband is good and kind to her, and if she knows that he is doing the very best he can, she has no just cause to divorce him, and she is a poor sport if she does not play up to him and do her part as cheerfully as she can.

The real silver lining to your cloud is your children. It will not be many years now before they will be able to help you, and that will turn your liability into an asset. Nine-tenths of the successful men of today are the sons of fathers who did not know how to get along in the world. Cheer up and carry on with your job and you will yet ride in your limousine when your boys are grown.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a young man about to be married. I want my wife and my mother to be fond of each other. How can I secure that blessed state of affairs?

ALFRED A.

ANSWER: By not trying the disastrous experiment of having them live together. Separation is the solvent of the in-law problem. In the case of mother-in-law and daughter-in-law an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

Experience has shown that not once in a hundred thousand times can a mother-in-law and daughter-in-law live in peace and harmony under the same roof. Almost invariably they make each other perfectly miserable with their jealousies and suspicions, and they tear to pieces the poor men over whom they fight like snarling dogs over a bone.

DOROTHY DIX cannot reply personally to readers, but will answer problems of general interest through her column.

BALLOON PARADE SOON TO ARRIVE

Lengthy Procession Will Be Lead By Santa Claus December 7

I love a parade, you love a parade, everybody loves a parade! And what a parade it will be when the merchants of Monroe bring it to Monroe next Wednesday, December 7. Advance reports say that Santa Claus himself is coming with almost 50 of his big balloon toys to wish everybody Merry CHRISTMAS with one of the best celebrations in years.

When the big day comes, people from miles around Monroe will flock to see the procession of a mile and a quarter, with Santa leading a host of brilliantly uniformed bands, all the balloons, and 200—yes, 200—funny clowns. What a show this will be!

Herb Fink, merchants chairman, says that a phone conversation with Santa revealed that each giant balloon toy has a special air pump fastened to his stomach, so that the balloons can travel completely flattened out, and suddenly grow to a height of fifteen feet or more and sometimes to a length of 100 feet. Dracula Dragon, 70 feet long, rolls out of his special box with a loud hiss and begins to fill up proudly. To date he has never attempted to swallow anybody alive. Each of the giant toy soldiers eat 42 pounds of airblown candy a day, and their chests stick out so far they almost fall on their faces sometimes. Clara the Cow moos with delight every time there's a parade, and they all sing together "I Love a Parade," sometimes so loudly that fences blow over and Santa has to scold them all. Be there to see them all, it's going to be a great day for everyone!

The parade will begin promptly at 4:00 p. m. and will proceed up DeSiard street west to Grand, south on Grand to Grammont and east on Grammont to Sixth street.

The bright, modern, metal Christmas decorations and lights, which the merchants of Monroe have purchased for the pleasure of visitors here this year, will be completed just in time for Santa Claus' visit.

Stores will close at the regular closing hour on the day of the parade.

Major H. W. McClary of Northeast Junior College will act as parade marshal, assisted by the other members of the N. J. C. military department.

Noted Playwright Dies Of Heart Attack

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Philip Barry, 53, noted playwright, died today of a heart attack at his Park Avenue home.

The dramatist's physician, Dr. Dana Atchley, said Barry had not been in ill health.

The doctor said he was called to the Barry home about 2 p.m. (E. S. T.) and death occurred "about four p. m.

At Barry's bedside were his wife, Ellen Semple Barry, and their two children, Philip, Jr., 26, and Jonathan, 23.

Barry was a native of Rochester, N. Y.

Barry had been writing plays for more than 25 years.

His pen produced such Broadway hits as "The Animal Kingdom," "Liberty Jones," "Philadelphia Story," and "Without Love."

His most recent play, "Foolish Notion," was produced several years ago.

A family spokesman said Barry was working on another play at the time of his death.

The playwright was being assisted by his con, Philip, Jr.

The other son, Jonathan, is a student at Yale University's medical school.

In the radio broadcasting trade any daytime dramatic story in serial form is labeled a "soap opera" largely because the original sponsors were soap companies and some still are.

L.S.U. OKAYS TEACHERS LAB

Construction Authorized On $1 Million School For Teacher-Trainees

BATON ROUGE, La., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Louisiana State University today authorized construction of a $1,000,000 school as a laboratory in which to train prospective teachers.

The teacher-trainees, students in the L. S. U. college of education, would conduct classes in preparation for formally assuming this duty after graduation.

The project was approved by the university's board of supervisors which authorized L. S. U. President Harold W. Stoke to hire architects, select a site and handle detail arrangements.

In a report to the board, Dr. Stoke said "high priority" in university planning is being given to expansion of its medical school at New Orleans. He said also that ceremonies next April will mark dedication of several new buildings on the campus here.

Dr. Stoke commented briefly on a recent report on an audit of the university's books by the state supervisor of public funds. The supervisor had suggested that L. S. U. should return about $1,000,000 in unexpended funds, under the 1948 appropriations act.

Dr. Stoke said the language of the act is ambiguous and should be clarified. He reiterated his opinion that "the university's position is sound" in the matter and "far more practical."

In other actions, the board accepted: 1,200 volumes from the library of the late Rene L. Derouen of Ville Platte.

$500 advance royalties and 10 percent of future sales on publication of plans for L. S. U.'s low cost model home.

$5,250 and $7,500 grants for cancer detection and research and a total of $5,956 in grants for other medical research.

The failure of the Communist instigated general strike in Italy is another forceful indication that the western democracies have contained the Red offensive and are gaining in Europe's cold war.

This was the second serious defeat of its kind the Bolshevists had suffered in a week, the other being the flop of a Communist-supported general strike in France. The two setbacks are particularly significant in that Italy and France have been the chief Communist strongholds in western Europe. Moscow has leaned heavily on the Red organizations of these two important countries.

The Italian strike was called by Communist leaders ostensibly to protest the death of two peasants in fights with police growing out of invasions of farmlands by squatters. However, the proclaimed purpose of the move was of small moment.

The real importance rested in the demonstration that the Italian public no longer runs for cover when the Reds crack the whip. This transformation has taken place under Premier de Gasperi since his Christian Democrats defeated the Communists in the 1948 election.

Coincident with this of course has been the development of the grave conflict between the Kremlin and Marshal Tito, of Yugoslavia. That fiery Balkan state had been another stronghold of communism, and Tito was one of Moscow's pets.

So we find the Communist offensive held along a line from north to south through central Europe. But that isn't the whole story by a long shot, for there is bitter discontent among the Russian satellite states. Wholesale purges and liquidations are being carried out in most of these eastern European countries. The situation is particularly tense in Poland and Czechoslovakia, but Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria also are having their troubles with disaffection.

As a complement to these developments the defense ministers and chiefs of staff of the twelve Atlantic-pact nations have met in Paris and without fuss or feathers have agreed to a general defense plan involving western Europe and America. This plan still has to be approved by the Atlantic council. After that a billion dollars worth of American armaments will be released for defensive purposes in Europe, provided President Truman certifies that the plan is acceptable to the United States.

Definitely the tide has turned in the European cold war. However, while that is a matter of extreme gratification it needn't encourage complacence. One of Moscow's chief aims has been to produce economic chaos among the Democratic nations, and she has succeeded to an extent which likely far exceeds her expectations.

Still bolshevism hasn't profited politically. For while the redism theoretically thrives on economic distress, the peoples of the western world have recognized Moscow's scheme with the result that they have turned even more firmly against communism in most cases. Possibly bolshevism has gained some time which we shall see reflected in the far eastern offensive.

But democracy is doing well in the west.

More and more "video" is becoming the accepted short term for television just like radio developed from wireless.

British Combine Conflicting Ideas While Fighting Chaos

By Jack Smith

LONDON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Britain's Socialist government appears to be borrowing an idea from both the Russian Communists and the American capitalists in its attempt to solve the economic crisis.

The idea: that the harder a man works the more pay he should get; that the hard worker should make more than the laggard even if the two work side by side as members of the same trade union.

In Russia they call their hard workers "stakhanovites" and make heroes out of them. They get extra pay.

In America management tries to push along and reward the workers who really produce.

In Britain Socialists generally have long argued that any two factory workers in the same job should get the same pay. In the past trade unions even have put dampers on members who plug too hard.

The subtle but significant change first became apparent a couple of weeks ago when Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison said in a speech:

"The man or the team who do a better day's work than the next man or team should be entitled to correspondingly better earnings.

"They should be looked up to as people who are helping to earn the nation's right to full employment and social and military security."

A few days later, Prime Minister Attlee in approving the British trade union council's decision to exercise "restraint" in claims for general wage increases said:

"This is not a 'wage freeze' in the sense that no one can earn any more. The decision is to suspend any movement or wage rates unrelated to the level of output. But it leaves the door wide open to higher earnings through improved productivity and greater efficiency."

Attlee said he wanted labor and management to study the whole problem of incentives—of how to induce people to work harder.

Both statements focused attention again on the key problem of incentives in a Socialist state.

Britain cannot get out of the red without a great increase in industrial production. That entails, among other things, harder work by most workers.

The Conservatives have said that socialism kills off the will to work hard. Their argument is that many feel there is no good reason to work hard when the state gives them a high degree of job security and does a lot of other things for them.

The big question is how to put the idea into operation.

Attlee, pretty much tossed the job to the unions and management.

Sir Stafford Cripps, chancellor of the exchequer, has said openly that incentives are more of a problem for industry than for government.

The Trades Union Council, representing 8,000,000 organized workers, has been wrestling with the problem for many weeks and in a statement last week asked for "payment by results." But it did not make any more specific proposals.

Attlee has given specific approval to cash bonuses for more production. Many firms are asking the British treasury for details of such schemes.

In a typical plan, operated by a heavy machinery plant at Tipton, Staffordshire, workers take ten per cent of the first 20,000 pounds ($56,000) profit made by the firm and 20 per cent of anything above it. Shareholders get a straight five per cent on share capital.

The treasury provides the information cheerfully. Nevertheless there is doubt whether Cripps, the treasury boss, is in full accord with Attlee and Morrison on the idea of payment by results.

Cripps several times has expressed opposition to wage increase demands by "anybody at all."

If Britain begins paying union members by results the nation will be adopting a Communist policy adopted in 1935.

In 1935 the Russian miner Stakhanov mined 102 tons of coal in one shift—14 times as much as the Russian "Norm"—and became a hero overnight. Soon "Stakhanovite" Russians were getting extra pay and extra privileges.

The Russians embellished the idea by punishing laggards who fell below the average in production.

Conservatives sometimes recall an old Crippsian warning. Cripps said if Democratic methods failed to get Britain out of crisis, then other methods might have to be adopted. He did not elaborate.

The general view among responsible Laborites, however, is that Britain will press on with its modification of the Stakhanovite system first—without punitive measures.

SANTA WILL BE AT LIONS TREE

North Monroe Club To Sponsor Kiddies Party On School Campus

The North Monroe Lions Club is announcing its program which contemplates spreading cheer into many cheerless homes of youngsters hereabouts at the holidays.

This year a live evergreen, 21 feet tall, has been planted on the Central Grammar School campus. On Monday, Dec. 19, Santa Claus will make his initial appearance on his throne and the tree will be gaily lighted. He will greet eager kiddies from 6:30 p. m. to 9 p. m. each evening and on Friday, December 23 at 7 p. m. he will have a big party with fruit, candy and gifts for all children, regardless of whether rich or poor, whose ages are from one year to 10 years of age.

Only one proviso is made. In order to receive a gift one must have a card which must be presented. Application for these cards must be made not later than Wednesday, December 21, as it is necessary to know how many presents are to be required.

Last year a total of 1,346 white children and 800 colored children received fruit and gifts at the North Monroe Christmas tree. Santa Claus then visited the children's ward in St. Francis Sanitarium with gifts. The members of the police department and city firemen also were remembered by Stanta through this means.

The Lions Club received 120 letters in which they were complimented for their efforts, which has encouraged the club to endeavor to repeat the original success on an even bigger scale this year.

Make New Attempts To Avert Maritime Strike

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The government made a new try today at averting a long-threatened east and gulf coast maritime strike.

The federal mediation and conciliation service arranged a meeting with the A. F. L. Masters, Mates, and Pilots Union. The union has three times postponed a walkout at government request. The present truce expires December 16.

Officials were gloomy over chances for an agreement. They said the shipping employers and union seem as deadlocked as ever.

The main issue is a union demand for a hiring hall system for all ship officers below the rank of chief mate. A similar system was recently put in effect by west coast shippers. Under the hiring hall plan a union usually sends its available men to jobs in rotation.

Ship owners on the east and gulf coasts maintain that all deck officers should be selected by management and not by the union.

There are other demands, but officials said the union has withdrawn a request for a five per cent wage boost.

STAGE SET FOR THIRD JUNIOR SUGAR BOWL

JUNIOR COLLEGE CLASSIC SLATED FOR FRIDAY NIGHT

Lees-McRae And Wharton To Furnish Fireworks In Lions Club Grid Spectacle

The stage is about all set for the third annual Junior Sugar Bowl football battle which will pit Wharton Cuntry Junior College of Wharton, Tex., against Lees-McRae College of Banner Elk, N. C., here Friday night at 8 o'clock at Brown Field.

The Wharton Pioneers and the Lees-McRae Bobcats are due here the middle of the week to make final preparations for their Monroe Lions Club classic which promises to be even more attractive this year than for the two previous games—judging from early sale of advanced tickets which will be on downtown sale this week at Lockhart-Blair Sports Shop and Walgreen's Drugs.

The Bobcats, champions of their North Carolina conference, come here with a record of only one defeat in the last two seasons and they are currently riding a string of nine straight victories.

GOVERNORS GET INVITATION

Invitations to attend the third annual Junior Sugar Bowl here have been extended to governors of North Carolina, Texas and Louisiana, C. D. McAdams, publicity chairman for the local bowl!

McAdams said last night that Gov. W. Scott Kerr, of North Carolina, Gov. Allen Shivers, of Texas, and Gov. Earl K. Long, of Louisiana, have been invited to attend the Junior Chamber of Commerce's annual grid battle.

"We of the publicity committee," McAdams said, "hope all three will be able to attend the affair."

It's an enviable record that the Pioneers also are able to boast. Wharton in the last two seasons has won 21 out of 23 games, and registered triumphs in two bowl games last year, defeating Paris Junior College 28-0 in the Oleander Bowl at Galveston, and drubbing Henderson, 49-0 in the Dime Bowl at Conroe, Tex. Wharton had a guard and en end on the junior college All-America last year and three mentions, two of whom are back this year shooting for the mythical first string. They are Quarterback Edward Lechler and Left Half Bill Morrow.

The sponsoring Monroe Lions Club will by-pass its regular Tuesday luncheon this week, holding their next session instead at a stag supper honoring members of the rival football squads Thursday night on the roof of Hotel Frances. Miniature silver footballs will be presented at that time to each member of the contending squads, and the Junior Sugar Bowl trophy, to be awarded the winner, will be on display.

The Wharton publicity department has been the first to come through with detailed information concerning its personnel and records.

So for the fans desiring to get down to the facts, about Wharton at least, the Pioneers' drum-beaters send the following information:

Head Coach Johnnie Frankie, former Rice Institute star, joined the W. C. J. C. staff in the spring of 1948, and began his first coaching in the fall. His 1948-49 teams were south zone conference champs of Texas in football, basketball, and baseball. An ex-Rice tackle, Frankie coached three years at Texas A. and M., before joining the Pioneers. He has previously coached at Houston high schoos.

Tom Pickett, Wharton's assistant coach, lettered at Texas A. and M. in 1941 and 1946, and in between he spent three and a half years in the army air force during World War II.

The Pioneers have scored 270 points against 168 for the opposition this year, with Bill Morrow leading the Wharton touchdown parade with 16. Don Johnson has proven an expert in the kicking department, successfully kicking 26 extra points and one field goal this year.

The W. C. J. C. outfit has rolled up a total of 3,645 yards offensively for the season, getting 2,898 on the ground and 747 in the air. Morrow sparked the running attack, carrying the ball 185 times for 863 yards ,an average of 4.7 yards per try. Lechler has sparked the passing, completing 46 out of 89 tosses.

Coach Frankie is a two-platoon man and his starting lineup Friday will depend entirely on whether his team kicks off or receives. His defensive combination averages 191 plus pounds for the full eleven. His probable offensive line averages 187 plus, and his ball handling backs average an even 165.

Fourteen members of the Pioneer squad tip the beams at over 200 pounds, and the top man in this department is 265-pound Roy Harrell Smith, a six-foot-five tackle from Tomball, Tex.

Other giants of the Wharton squad are Guard Paul Victor Adrian, 215; Tackle Lawrence Albert Dietrich, 225; Center James Damon Dokos, 205; Tackle Campbell Hardin, 240; Tackle Joe John Knoff, 220; Tackle Charles Gene McCaleb, 207; End Allan Jimmy McLeod, 205; Guard Allen John McDonald, 202; Guard Harry Pantermuehl, 215; Tackle Lawrence Henry Perkinson, 205; Tackle Ben Sobotik, 210; Tackle Eddie Stephenson, 220; and Guard Anton Raymond Zahn, 229. Plenty of others come in at around 190 and 180, and the lightest of the squad is Drew Robert Teyault, a freshman back, who weighs in at 130.

Lees-McRae will be the first representatives from so far east in the Junior Sugar contest, while Wharton will be the second to come here from Texas. Hillsboro represented Texas against Northeast Junior College of Monroe in the first game in 1947. Last year it was Little Rock Junior College against South Georgia College.

WHARTON EXPLOITS TWO PLATOON SYSTEM

The Wharton County Junior College Pioneers of Texas, who meet the Lees-McRae College Bobcats of Banner Elk, N. C., in the third annual Junior Sugar Bowl football game here next Friday night, are exponents of the two-platoon system that has carried them to two bowl victories and triumphs in 21 of their 23 ball games in the last two seasons. Coach Johnnie Franklin's Pioneers were victors in the Oleander Bowl at Galveston and the Dime Bowl at Conroe last year, and his defensive and offensive lineups for this year are pictured above. At the top is the Wharton offensive combination, and left to right, in the line, are Right End Jasper Casbeer, Right Tackle Tiny Hardin, Right Guard Aubrey Bedford, Center Lelland Stevens, Left Guard Dave Maglitto, Left Tackle Robert Chuoke, and Left End Henry Pearson. The quarterback is Edward Lechler, junior college All-America nominee last year, and the others are Left Half Bill Morrow, Fullback Charles Oslen, and Right Half Julius Smolik. In the lower photo is the defensive combination, and left to right, standing, are Charles Parker, left line backer, Left Half James Greene, Safety "Sonny" Staruska, Right Half Clinton White, Fullback Bobby Medlin, and kneeling, Left End Lamar Cooper, Left Tackle Gene McCaleb, Left Guard Jimmy McLeod, Right Guard Ben Sobatik, Right Tackle Harrell Smith, and Right End Frank Northcutt.

Scramble Ahead In Big Ten Battle For Cage Laurels Held By Illinois

By Jerry Liska
(Associated Press Newsfeatures Writer)

CHICAGO—With due respect to defending champion Illinois, the 1950 Big Ten basketball race apparently will be as hotly contested as the recent conference football chase.

Along with the Illini, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Ohio State and Indiana all are pegged as formidable title contenders.

There is scarcely a coach without a rebuilding job of some size on his hands, although Wisconsin's Bud Foster appears well fixed with nine lettermen back including Center Don Rehfeldt who led Conference scoring last season with 229 points.

The Badgers, who finished seventh last season, lost only one regular by graduation, Guard Doug Rogers, and have four able prospects for back court duty.

Illinois has seven lettermen returning, but Coach Wally Combes lost brilliant Dike Eddleman, 6-foot, 7-inch Fred Green and Guards Dick Foley and Jim Marks from the title squad which won 10 and lost two in conference play last season. Captain Bill Erickson is the big gun this season, while Wally (Ox) Osterkorn is a 207-pound hustle guy.

DICK SCHNITTKER
Ohio State's Hotshot

Minnesota is missing towering Jim Mc Intyre, but crafty Ossie Cowles still has a superb shot and play-maker in bouncing Whitey Skoog. A 6-foot, 4-inch "shorty," Maynard Johnson, replaces the gangling Mc Intyre at center.

Cowles warns his conference colleagues that without too much height, his Minnesota team will play to win, even if it means cutting rival skyscrapers down to size with a zone defense or stalling tactics. Footballers Bud Grant and Jerry Mitchell are important cogs.

Ohio State may prove extremely high-powered with sharp-shooting Dick Schnittker and Bob Donham aided by two promising sophomores, Bob Moore and Dick Wharton. But Coach Tippy Dye figures his Buckeyes may have only one capable sub, Ted Jacobs.

Indiana lacks height, but Branch McCracken has nine lettermen headed by 6-foot, 4-inch Lou Watson. Despite this seasoned array, Sophomore Bob Masters from Lafayette, Ind., home of arch-rival Purdue, may win a starting guard berth.

Michigan's Ernie McCoy is rebuilding around five lettermen, including Mack Suprunowicz, who was third in Conference scoring with 178 points last season. McCoy's big job is to find successors to Pete Elliott and Bob Harrison, a stellar defensive tandem.

Iowa will rely heavily on sophomores, especially at center where Coach Pops Harrison is hoping that 6-foot, 9-inch Chuck Darling from Denver can make the grade. The Hawkeyes have plenty of height with Darling, Frank Calsbeek and Glenn Dillie, who stand 6 feet, 6 inches, and Don Hays, a 6-5 lad. Calsbeek, Dille and Hays are lettermen.

The conference sleeper may be Northwestern where Dutch Lonborg, in his 22nd coaching season, has a team composed mainly of players who learned the ropes as sophmores in the league cellar. Foremost is Ray Ragelis.

Purdue, which broke even in 12 league games last season, also may surprise with eight lettermen back. Mel Taube's seasoned Boilermakers include all-conference guard Howard Williams, who finished fourth in league scoring last season with 172 points, and Center Andy Butchko, who was 10th with 139.

Conference teams again will play 12 league games each, the championship campaign beginning Jan. 2 with Illinois at Wisconsin. On Jan. 7, the chase moves into full cry with Illinois at Ohio, Iowa at Michigan, Northwestern at Purdue and Wisconsin at Indiana.

3 Teams Tie For Class "A" Honors

(By The Associated Press)

The Louisiana state championship in class A football lies between Destrehan, Neville and Dequincey.

Highly-rated Pontchatoula was knocked out of the running last night when Destrehan defeated Ponchatoula 25-7. Destrehan's Harry Bleakley maneuvered the Wildcats to score in the first quarter and then passed for two more in the second half.

The game was one of three sectional class A playoffs.

Neville High School (Monroe) won the north Louisiana championship by upsetting the favored Homer High School 20-0. Neville had lost to Homer in an early season inter-district contest, 21-0. In last night's contest, Fullback W. T. Brown scored all three of Neville's touchdowns.

Dequincey already had assured itself a berth in the playoffs.

Now there will be a drawing for opponents between Destrehan, Neville and Dequincey. One of the three will receive a bye and will meet the winner of the game between the other two.

TIGERS GET NEW BOXING SCHEDULE

L. S. U. Slates Minn., Miss. Teams For 1949-50 Bouts; Face Six In Dual Meets

BATON ROUGE, La., Dec. 3.—(AP)—There's plenty of leather between Louisiana State and the successful defense of its national collegiate boxing championship this year.

Coach J. T. Owen announced the schedule today. It includes six dual meets and two tournaments. In between the Bengal Boxers will battle among themselves in inter-squad bouts.

Coach Owen is too wary to be optimistic, although every member of his 1948 squad is back again. They are the same boys who last year won the National Collegiate, Southern Invitational and Sugar Bowl tournaments and swet all seven of their dual meets.

Defendin their national championships will be 125-pounder "Peewee" Moss of Beaumont, Tex., and 130-pounder Tad Thrash of Lake, Miss.

Lloyd Jones of Lake Charles—team co-captain with 145-pounder Buddy Bourgeois of Plaquemine—will try to retain the Southern Invitational crown he grabbed last year in the 165-pound class.

Inter-squad bouts are scheduled for Dec. 16 at Plaquemine and Dec. 21 at Shreveport. The freshman team takes on McNeese Junior College in Baton Rouge Feb. 3 and Mississippi Southern March 3 at Hattiesburg, Miss.

The Tiger varsity mittmen are scheduled to go in two other tourneys—the Southern Invitational March 17-18 either in Baton Rouge or Columbia, S. C., and the N. C. A. A. tournament March 31-April 2, possibly in Baton Rouge.

Their first dual meet is with Syracuse, Dec. 28 in the Sugar Bowl matches at New Orleans. The rest of the dual meet schedule:

Jan. 27—Mississippi Southern at Baton Rouge.

Feb. 9—Miami at Miami, Fla.

Feb. 17.—South Carolina at Baton Rouge.

Feb. 24—Maryland at Baton Rouge.

March 10—Minnesota at Minneapolis, Minn.

Houston University Whips Loyola 57-33

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec. 3.—(AP)—With a high-scoring second half spurt, the University of Houston slapped Loyola of New Orleans with a 57-33 victory in their basketball meeting here last night.

Loyola held an early lead throughout the first half except for one brief period. But the rampaging Houston cagers bounced back to win convincingly.

Lloyd Hendrix and David Rodriguez paced Houston's scoring with 15 and 14 points respectively.

Reggie Garcia's 7 points was Loyola's top individual scoring.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

by Hugh S. Fullerton, jr.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(AP)—They staged a "house warming" party at the sock exchange the other day and the guys in the fight mob said it was because they had heat in the joint for the first time in two years. . . . Anyway, the mob turned out, and why not? . . . The drinks were on the house (like the rent usually is), there was food there for the grabbing and a profusion of pleasant conversation. . . . Among the social leaders of "our set" observed there were Chickie Bogad and Andy Niederreiter, who used to operate in the same territory for the tournament of champions; Connie McCarthy, Sol Gold, Eddie Walker, Harry Markson, Ray Arcel, Johnny Attel, Lew Raymond and others too numerous (and hungry) to mention, including a little guy who answered without resentment to the name of "Willie Stealems."

Marked Down Market

The sock exchange, in case you haven't heard, is the name applied to the big, barnlike room over a dime-a-dance joint which formerly housed the T. of C. . . . Such private offices as existed are occupied by an outfit calling itself the "American Boxing League" and a trio of more affluent members who have good furniture, a television receiver, a small bar and a lock for the door. . . . The rest of the space is fenced off into little cubicles, each with a desk and phone, for various fight managers and other characters. . . . The phones also are locked as a precaution against unauthorized long distance calls.

Conversational Gambits

The strange thing about the house warming was that you heard so little talk about fights and fighters there. . . . Raymond, who promoted bouts in New Orleans so long he was almost regarded as a native, was getting a big "welcome home" and explained that he is "back to stay—back with the guys I put in the business like Attel and Al Weill." . . . Attel, who staged the whacky Ray Robinson-Kid Gavilan fight in Philadelphia last summer, explained he had retired from that city (without much brotherly love) and is "not doing much but he wist- and is "not doing much." . . . Niederreiter also isn't doing much but he wistfully talks about staging bouts next summer in Ebbets Field or Jersey City's Roosevelt stadium. "There's no indoor arena big enough to run against the Garden," he added. . . . Assorted managers complained that the Intrenational Boxing Club isn't bringing any good fighters into New York and added that a New York fighter can get plenty of work if he'll go to the smaller cities. . . . And inevitably they wound up: "Things are pretty dead right now; there ain't many good fighters."

Eye Opener

Connie McCarthy finally broke the conversational deadlock with a yarn about the time he had Ike Williams fighting Lefty Lachance in Boston. . . . A big bettor—"a big politician, sorta undercover like"—had $5,000 on Williams and went to the dressing room to make sure everything was okay. . . . He found Ike asleep and unresponsive and emerged very much worried about his bet. . . . Connie had trouble reassuring him until Ike knocked out Lachance in four rounds. . . . Then the gambler bubbled over. "Gosh, what would that sonofagun do if he was awake?"

ESTES, LANE GET ANOTHER CHANCE AT STEELE, RYAN

Light-Heavy Champ Wants Opportunity To Return 'Texas Style' Grappling

A rehash of last Tuesday's rousing tag team wrestling scramble at Gus Kallio's Arena will be served up for the mat faithful here next Tuesday night as Balk Estes, world's light heavyweight champ, seeks revenge for the loss of his team to the villainy of Jack "Stinger" Steele and Mike "Rodeo" Ryan.

Estes, who had been running things much his own way here in recent months, was himself the victim of the deciding fall of a relay brawl with Steele and Ryan the pst week. The defeat for Estes and his teammate, Bob Lane of Miami, didn't set so well with the champion and he wants a repeat performance and a chance at revenge.

So the 90-minute time limit feature at Kallio's Walnut street arena Tuesday night will again have Estes and Lane paired against Steele and Ryan with two fall to win.

Upper arm stomps, started by Steele and keep up in relay with Ryan, proved too much for Estes last week and caused his surrender in the deciding fall.

Estes didn't appreciate the rough handling by the "Texas style" grapplers but he didn't register complaints about its legality.

"If that's the way they want to wrestle it's O. K. by me, but Bob and I want a return match," Estes told Kallio after it was all over. "The next time we'll not wait for them to start their rough Texas style of work. Bob and I know that style too, and we're going to do our stuff without waiting to see how Steele and Ryan choose to work. We just want to be sure they'll be back. We'll take them winner-take-all if necessary."

Steele, the former light-heavy title holder from Sioux City, Iowa, didn't appear too anxious to please, but finally consented, saying:

"I like to wrestle with the champions. Each match I get with them brings me a little closer toward the belt again. I'm not asking for any title match yet because I've already learned how Estes is playing hard to get when it comes to putting the belt on the line. But I'll roll him around so in these non-title affairs that the time will come when he'll be begging to risk his crown just to get a man-to-man crack at me. That's when you'll see the fur fly."

Stee' and Ryan declined Estes' offer of a winner-take-all match, saying the usual 60-40 split is still O. K.

"It's not because we're afraid we'll loose that we're passing the chance to take the full purse," Steele said. It just happens that that's the way we want it."

Promoter Kallio also announced he may have two referees working in the tag event.

Adriel Wright, West Monroe, has been assigned to handle the first of two preliminaries, and Bill Barney will work the second. Barney is also due to handle the tag feature, but if it's agreeable with the wrestlers, Wright may be in the ring to give Barney assistance.

Coaches Take Sides On Throw, Possession Rule On Late Fouls

NEW YORK—(NEA)—As the colleges step more boldly into the basketball season there is mounting interest in the controversial rule change awarding both the free throw and possession to a team fouled in the last two minutes.

The change has not yet been adequately tested.

It will not be until some close games develop, but already the coaches are lining up for and against it.

A split in New York finds Nat Holman of City College opposing the change on the assumption that it will prove drastically unfair to the team that is behind.

Frank McGuire of Brooklyn St. John's, on the other hand, is strongly in favor of the change because he feels it will eliminate heated second-guessing by fans.

Involving more than one rule, the change is too lengthy to be stated verbatim, but here is the way it is phrased in an explanatory preface to the rule book:

"Personal fouls that occur during the last two minutes of the second half, and of extra periods of 40-minute games . . . are to be penalized in the same way as technical fouls; that is, the free throw or throws must be taken, and whether made or missed, the ball is to be put in play by a throw-in at mid-court by any player of the free-thrower's team."

Comments Holman: "You might just as well end the game after 38 minutes, because under this rule the team that leads in the last two minutes cannot lose.

"It will always have the ball."

McGuire doesn't agree.

"It is possible for the team that is ahead to commit a foul," he points out. "That's just what happened at St. John's the first time the rule was called this season. We were leading, and we had the ball, but one of our players was charged with a pick.

"The other team, Arnold, made the foul and followed it with a basket."

Before the change went into effect the team that was fouled had the option of shooting the free throw or taking the ball at midcourt. In many a close game the coach was criticized because he did, or did not, waive a foul at a crucial point.

"This change takes the coach off a terrific spot," McGuire says. "More than once I've sat on that bench at the Garden and taken some awful abuse from the fans behind me for waiving or not waiving. This way you can't waive in the last two minutes, and I think the better club will win more often as a result."

A new counter rule is designed to prevent stalling. It specifies that a held ball shall be called "when a closely guarded player is holding the ball in his front court and is not making a reasonable effort to dribble, pass or throw for goal, but is apparently trying to consume time."

Some other collegiate rule changes: In cases of a jump ball, the coach is no longer permitted to send in a tall substitute to control the tap. The man involved in the play must jump himself unless he is injured.

Glass backboards are now regulation, although the rules committee recognizes that it would be impractical to have them installed right away. The rule says that when new backboards are installed they must be transparent.

Basket rings and attaching flanges and braces shall be bright orange.

The SCOREBOARD

By Harry Grayson

DONORA, Pa., Dec. 3—(NEA)—This blast-furnace city sprouting up from the Monongahela River, 30 miles south of Pittsburgh, probably is the biggest little sports center in the United States.

Certainly no town of its size—population 13,000—has turned out more Grade A athletes. Most assuredly that is also true of Donora High, with its no more than 500 students, boys and girls.

Bimbo Cecconi

Jack Jaso

Stanley Musial, the great outfielder of the St. Louis Cardinals, made Donora famous several years before you heard about it through the tragic smog of October, 1948, which gave the steel wire and zinc burg nation-wide publicity it didn't want.

Lee Sala, the middleweight contender, is an alumus of Donora High.

But its remarkable football story wasn't written until this fall, although there have been editions of it annually for more than 20 years.

No fewer than 30 college players further spread the renown of Donora High this autumn.

They were lead, of course, by big Arnold Galiffa, the stickout Army quarterback, ball-handler and passer, and little Bimbo Cecconi, the extraordinary little Pittsburgh tailback, who were teammates at Donora High. Jack Jaso was a first-string Cornell guard.

Down here the home folks name the others off-hand, and Donora High spreads its unusual talent generously and far-flung.

There were Donora High alumni at a dozen colleges. In addition to West Point and Pitt, they were Columbia, Cornell, Virginia Military Institute, Xavier of Cincinnati, Washington and Jefferson, Waynesburg, Grove City of Pennsylvania, Finley College of Ohio and all-conquering St. Vincent's of Latrobe, Pa. Nor did Donora High overlook the Negro institutions, two of its graduates performing for North Carolina Agricultural and Technical.

Pitt and Washington and Jefferson, in particular, would be in a bad way without Donora High. Including three freshmen and a transfer, who had to sit the season out, there were nine Donora High lads with the Panthers during the campaign just closed. Washington and Jefferson had five on the varsity and a freshman.

Little Donora Senior High competes in the tough Double A Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League. It won the championship in 1944, added the Big Five title. It bagged nine of the 11 games in '48, with one of the losses being traced to the calamitous smog.

I'd go into the Donora High basketball players, too, but don't want to keep you all night. Arnold Galiffa is the Army captain, by the way, as well as its first baseman. He also cooks.

For more than a score of years, Donora High has been coached in football by Jim Russell, who scouted for Knute K. Rockne as a Notre Dame undergraduate. An arm injury prevented his playing. Russell's assistants are Moon Clark, who played at Duquense, and Dr. Michael Duda, a St. Vincent's product.

So, you see, Donora High not only turns out sturdy stock.

A big league coaching staff sends the youngsters to college with know-how.

MUSTANGS NEARLY RIP NOTRE DAME WINNING STREAK

Methodist Back Kyle Rote Battles Irish In Teeth-For-Teeth Grid Battle

By Harold V. Ratliff

DALLAS, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Notre Dame's fighting Irish pulled back from the shock of a thundering Southern Methodist offense that had them on the brink of defeat today to drive 57 magnificient yards for a touchdown that gave them a 27-20 victory and an undefeated, untied season.

In one of the all-time thrillers of southwestern football history, the men of Notre Dame stopped a great S. M. U. drive on the seven-yard line with less than four minutes to go to finish four years unbeaten—the first time Notre Dame ever accomplished a glittering feat.

Southern Methodist, picked to lose by at least 28 points, battered and weary, put its greatest game into this battle today, latching onto the flying shirttail of Killer Kyle Rote, the greatest player on the field, to play Notre Dame its closest game of the season.

Southern Methodist battled without its great back, All-America Doak Walker, who was on the sidelines in civilian clothes because of a leg injury, but Walker, in his palmiest days, never played a greater game than Rote.

Kyle smashed and crashed for 115 yards and he passed 24 times and connected on 10 for 146 yards.

And Rote capped it by scoring all three of the Southern Methodist touchdowns and barely missing another. He also kicked for an average of 48.0 yards.

Bob Williams, the Notre Dame quarterback, bested Rote in passing with 11 completions in 18 throws for 165 yards and included in his throws were two for touchdowns. But no one could match Kyle running with the ball.

Notre Dame, as a result of its ground power, led in yards with 442, with 227 of it rushing. But S. M. U. got 307 passing. The S. M. U. total was 409 as a result of a net 102 running.

It was a rough battering ball game with players being carried off the field in a stream.

There appeared little doubt that Notre Dame had the better team but the great Rote, the mightiest runner seen in the Cotton Bowl this year—and possibly for any other year—almost beat the fighting Irish.

It was the first time this year for Notre Dame to be held on even terms in the last half. In fact, the Methodists had the better of it in the final two periods. And as the game ended, the mighty Rote was battering to the Notre Dame 41-yard line in another great S. M. U. surge.

Notre Dame thus finished the season as national champion for the seventh time and the tenth time in 61 years of football to be undefeated and untied.

A crowd of 75,457 fans jarred the giant Cotton Bowl to its foundations, rocking and swaying and going mad at the gridiron drama being unfolded before them.

Notre Dame thus found Southern Methodist its toughest foe. Three times the teams have met and today was the widest margin the Irish ever have been able to win by.

The score was tied 20-20 early in the fourth period as Notre Dame gathered its green-shirted legions for that one great drive that paid off Emil Sitko, Francis Spaniel, Leon Hart (the All-America end who went to fullback in the clinches) and Bill Barrett ripped and tore the S. M. U. line. From the Methodist six the fleet, driving Barrett whirled around left end for a touchdown.

Back came the Methodist horde to drive with the kick off from its 29 down to the Notre Dame four with Rote passing and running until he reached the 28. Here he was hit hard by the giant Hart while attempting to pass and had to leave the game. Sophomore Fred Benners stepped in and passed to H. N. Russell on the Notre Dame five. Russell lost one at center and Benners was hurt attempting to pass when rushed by Hart. Rote then came back in to the game and circled left end for two. Then Kyle tried a jump pass over the line that Jerry Groom and Bob Lally intercepted in unison.

That was the ball game.

S. M. U. tried 35 passes and completed 17, getting five intercepted by the Notre Dames. The Methodists did just what they were expected to do—fill the air with footballs.

Tops at gathering in the passes were the fleet, dangerous toy bulldog—Johnny Champion—who caught six for 117 yards, and Zoni Milam, big Methodist wingman, who snared three for 104.

Bill Wightkin caught three for Notre Dame for 63 yards, one for a touchdown.

S. M. U. and Notre Dame traded drives through half of the first period but finally the Irish got one under way that carried 73 yards for a score. The pay-off was a pass from Williams to Wightkin that ate up 42 yards and brought a touchdown. Steve Oracko kicked the extra point.

Shortly afterward came the most sensational play of the game. It was a 63-yard pass play that carried to the Notre Dame six. Rote handed to Champion who lofted to Milam on the Notre Dame 40. Mike Swistowicz ran him out of bounds. In four plunges Rote had to give up on the one-foot line. Williams tried a daring play to get out of trouble. He stood deep in the end zone to pass but Knight of the Methodists rushed him and the ball wobbled untouched. Officials first ruled it a safety then changed and made it an incomplete pass.

The Irish kicked out but the next time they got the ball—this time on a pass interception by Bill Gay on the Methodist 34—they scored from the Southern Methodist 35, Williams passing over the goal line. Milam, Bob Folsom and Bill Richards batted at the ball—and batted it squarely into the hands of Ernie Zalejski for a Notre Dame touchdown. Oracko missed the conversion. The half ended 13-0.

Midway of the third period the mighty Rote led a paralyzing 61-yard touchdown drive. Stockings to the ground, the Methodists rolled easily to score with Rote making 44 of the yards. He tallied from the Notre Dame three. Bill Sullivan converted.

But Notre Dame thundered back to draw 13 points away again. Jim Mutscheller intercepted a Rote pass on the S. M. U. 22 and a pass from Williams to Hart who lateralled to Spaniel carried to the '12. Barrett, John Landry and Hart powered to the four and Barrett crunched over. Oracko kicked the point.

Southern Methodist then got two quick touchdwons to tie it up. The first was on a 61-yard drive. Rote passed to Champion who ran to the Notre Dame one and Rote plowed center for the score. Again Sullivan converted. The final Methodist touchdown came after a clipping penalty set Notre Dame back to the one and on the kick-out Richards ran to the Notre Dame 14. In three blasts Rote got the score. Groom bounced through to block Sullivan's try for point and the count was tied.

Then came the Notre Dame drive for the winning touchdown.

JENA WILL MEET OAKDALE TUESDAY IN HARDWOOD TILT

Giants, Beaten Only Once This Year, In High School Bowl Contest

JENA, La., Dec. 3.—(Special)—Having closed out their regular 11-game schedule a week ago with a resounding 51-6 victory over the Olla-Standard Tigers, the Jena Giants this week were polishing their war clubs for use against the Oakdale High School Warriors whom they will meet Tuesday night at 8 o'clock in the second annual Hardwood Bowl game to be played in Oakdale.

The Giants rested last week end and had only light workouts Monday and Tuesday while recuperating from minor injuries which showed up after the fracas with the Tigers, but were back in heavy harness for strenuous wrokouts the remainder of the week in preparation for what they consider to be the toughest foe they have met all year.

Little is known in this up-country parish seat concerning the record of the Warriors other than the fact that they have an unusually heavy heavy high school line, a fast-breaking offense running from the short punt formation and were defeated by one touchdown by DeQuincy High School for the southwest district Class A championship.

Ray Thompson, one of—if not the—leading scorers in the state with a season record of 21 trips across the final double stripe, was nursing a bruised shoulder this week which kept him out of most of the Olla tussle. However, despite the injury, he scored three times against the Tigers, once on a brilliant 85-yard jaunt down the sidelines behind a wall of perfect blocking.

Johnny Hill, pint-sized right tackle who was the line star against Olla, was limping on a bruised knee but was expected to round into good shape by game time Dec. 6.

Allen Coleman, substitute halfback and star passer for the Giants who has been hampered the past several weeks with a shoulder injury, saw limited action against Ollo and will be available for duty against the beefy Oakdale Warriors:.

"We're up against the toughest game of the year in Oakdale and will be shooting the works against a strong defensive ball club," was Coach Bill Maxwell's comment.

Jena's startling line will feature an all-letterman front wall "but remember we are only a second-year ball club," Coach Maxwell stressed. This is but the second year of organized participation in high school football by Jena High School, the grid sport having been introduced here in the 1948 season.

Hampered at the beginning of the season with the necessity of rebuilding entirely after it was wrecked by graduation, age-limit and other eligibility limitations, Coach Maxwell has fashioned a rear squadron that has run up a total of 322 points while allowing the opposition a total of 68 points.

Starring in the backfield is Don Taylor, quarterback, who runs the Giant gridmen from the "T", occasionally shifting to a single wing. At the two halfback spots are Ray Thompson and Doyle Carter. And plunging in from the fullback slot is Rex Andrews.

Of the four, not one ever had played in the backfield before this season. It is Taylor's first year of the grid sport; Thompson and Andrews are converted centers, and Carter, the scoot-back, is a converted guard.

Andrews, 210-pound giant, provided the power thrusts; Taylor the "T" deception; Thompson the breakaway runner and Carter, the sharp stabs and end sweeps.

In the forward wall are Junior Smith and Kem Gryder at the terminal spots; T. W. Terrall and Johnny Hill, tackles; Jimmie Humphries and Gerald Davis of Conrad Girlinghouse at guard and "iron-man" Vance Cupples, center and line-backer.

Hundreds of grid fans from Jena plan to accompany the local squad to Oakdale for the Hardwood classic, in addition to the 75-piece marching Black and Gold band and the 50-girl Booster Club, uniformed and marching pep squad.

Miss Lois Watson, music director and band leader at Jena High School, is working with the band and Boosters for a spectacular halftime show which is expected to top anything shown this year by the second-year musical organization.

Los Angeles Rams Will Try To Clinch Western Honors

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Heavy action on the professional football front centers in the west tomorrow when the Los Angeles Rams attempt to clinch the National League's western division honors and the All-America Conference playoffs begin at Cleveland and San Francisco.

The Chicago Cardinals, out of the western division title picture after winning it two years in a row, meet the Rams in the N. F. L.'s top game of the day at Los Angeles.

At Cleveland, the three-time Champion Browns entertain the pesky Buffalo Bills, while the New York Yankees meet the 49ers at San Francisco. The winners meet next Sunday for the All-America championship of 1949.

The Rams, who will be seeking their first divisional crown, have a tough foe in the Cardinals, who held them to a 28-28 tie Nov. 20 at Chicago. Los Angeles has won seven games, lost one, and tied two. A victory would put the Rams beyond the reach of the Chicago Bears, who hold second place in the western division.

If the Rams win the western championship, they will meet the Philadelphia Eagles for the league title at Los Angeles Dec. 18. Philadelphia, 1948 league champion, sewed up eastern division honors last week.

In the A. A. C., the four contenders are all even against each other this season. Cleveland, which finished in first place in regular season play, tied Buffalo twice, 28-28 and 7-7. The Bills wound up in fourth place. San Francisco lost to New York, 24-3, in October, but routed the Yankees a week ago, 35-14, to take second place in the conference.

O. O. Kessing, A. A. C. commissioner, has ordered sudden death overtime in event either of the playoff games are tied at the end of regulation playing time. The first team to score in overtime will be the winner.

If Cleveland wins, the Browns will meet the San Francisco-New York winner at Cleveland for the championship. If Buffalo beats Cleveland, the Bills will play for the title at either San Francisco or New York.

The Chicago Bears, who have won seven games and lost three, play at home against the Pittsburgh Steelers. The Bears must win to keep their title hopes alive.

The Philadelphia Eagles meet the New York Giants at the Polo Grounds, the New York Bulldogs play the Lions at Detroit, and the Grren Bay Packers meet the Redskins at Washington in other National League games.

'AMATEUR NIGHT' HERE WEDNESDAY

Boxers, Weight Lifters, Musicians, Dancers To Show At Kallio's Arena

An "amateur night" will be featured at Gus Kallio's Arena here Wednesday night with local talent participating in boxing, weight lifting, acrobatics, and musical entertainment.

Eleven boxers, two weight lifters, a pair of acrobatic dancers and a musical act have already been scheduled with additional events slated to be tagged on to the show as amateur performers register early this week.

Adriel Wright, 197-pound West Monroe boxer, and Buss Howard, 206, of Ruston, are expected to be matched in an amateur heavyweight scrap. Other boxers listed, ranging from lightweights to middles, are Charles Hart, Don McHenry, Eugene Dean, William Taylor, Preston Christy, Clyde Wainwright, Jack Wainwright, Jimmy Wainwright, and Danny McEnery.

Kallio last night listed acrobatic dancers as James Sisco and Roy Aston, Jr. The weight lifting and strong man acts will be put on by Eddy Manning and Adriel Wright. Roy Kimbell will give musical entertainment.

Also listed is a battle royal involving blindfolded boxers.

Kallio said boxers would not be matched until after they have passed a doctor's physical examination.

6 Teams Enter City Basketball League

The City Basketball League has six teams ready to go when play opens here December 13, but additional clubs will be accepted for membership until next Thursday night.

All ready to go in the Monroe Recreation department-sponsored circuit are Nichols Motors, Red Shield Club, Episcopal Church, Aron's Pharmacy, Studebaker, and Lee-Rogers Motors.

The league, at a meeting the past week, decided to play games twice each week, on Tuesdays and Fridays. All games are scheduled for the Selman Field gymnasium.

So far only three teams have entered the Girls' League which plans to open its season on January 5.

Teams entered in the Girls' loop are Southern Bell, Louisiana Business College, and Lockhart-Blair Sports Shop. The girls will accept additional member teams until December 29.

Entries in any leagues here are accepted at the Monroe Recreation Center.

The Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League, in its 46th season, is the oldest court loop in the nation.

Armstrong Entering Ring For Religion As Touring Minister

By Doretta Salisbury

LOS ANGELES—(NEA)—Henry Armstrong, who held three world boxing championships simultaneously, will soon have another title.

He'll be Reverend Armstrong.

Hammerin' Henry, 37, expects to become an ordained Baptist minister within a few months.

A fiery orator, already his new calling has brought Armstrong before some of the largest Negro congregations in southern California, where he has proved to himself that he has "the gift for givin' the gospel." Currently he is studying and doing associate work at the Morning Star Baptist Church in Los Angeles. His first official sermon was delivered several weeks ago in Pasadena.

Armstrong, who declares he feels more inspiration than stage fright, has speaking dates lined up for weeks, will eventually pray for his sinning brethren on the air.

Armstrong, who has been managing fighters without noticeable success since he returned after the war from USO tours in the CBI Theater, got the call several month sago when life for him was bogging down all around.

"I was visiting at the home of my friend Satchel Paige in Kansas City," he explains, when a young fellow came to the door selling Bibles. Just to help him out I bought one, then tossed it thoughtlessly on the bed."

Later, pacing his room and wrestling with his problems, Armstrong noticed the Good Book had fallen open at St. Luke 24:49. He read: "And, behold, I send the promise of my father upon you: but tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem, until ye be undued with power from on high."

That was his inspiration, he recalls, urging him to turn his work to God.

Armstrong, who in 1937-38 held the featherweight, lightweight and welterweight titles concurrently to be the only boxer ever to achieve such eminence, prepares his sermons in an office almost papered with sport pictures and mementos of his days in the ring.

Drawing from what he calls "a wealth of experience with his fellow men and burning inspiration," he writes lengthy sermons full of Biblical language and blessings. He studies the pages, then throws them away, and then speaks from memory, extemporizing as the occasion warrants. Listeners fill in with lusty amens and hallelujahs.

Busy with his preparation, and in managing his rental properties in Los Angeles, Armstrong doesn't have time to work out any more. He now weighs 165 pounds.

His fondest ambition is to expand his newly-founded organization for young people, the Henry Armstrong Foundation for Christian Youth.

After the holidays, Henry Armstrong will make a rousing nationwide preaching junket, diverting whatever money he obtains into the coffers of the youth group largely for combating delinquency among Negro juveniles.

OLE MISS PLANS CHANGE IN S. E. GRID SCHEDULES

Rotating Schedules Will Get Airing At Southeastern Meet at Biloxi, Miss.

By Sterling Slappey

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 3.—(AP)—A timeworn Southeastern Conference bugaboo—rotating football schedules—began to growl again today, with Mississippi doing the goosing.

It was learned that Mississippi will proposed another rotating schedule plan at the Southeastern meeting in Biloxi, Miss., Dec. 8, 9 and 10.

Practically since the Southeastern—splinter conference which cut itself from the old Southern in 1933—was former, there have been continual rumors and plans for the 12 teams to meet every member at given intervals.

The Mississippi plan would begin in 1952, allowing time for teams to play out already planned schedules.

One major deviation from other plans is that an official conference champion would be designated annually by percentages. The S. E. C. never has an official champion, newspapers simply proclaim the team with the best won-lost record in conference games the unofficial winner.

Another old discussion may come up for a round at the Biloxi meeting—a possible tie up with the Sugar Bowl.

It is known there is definite sentiment at several colleges to agree for the champion to be host team in the Sugar each New Year's Day.

Mississippi's proposal for rotating schedules calls for each team to play three traditional foes every year, plus four other conference opponents.

Every two years the four non-traditional foes would be swapped four other conference teams.

The site and financial settlement of each traditional game would be by mutual consent. The other four games' sites would be alternated annually with the visiting team guaranteed a gate of $25,000.

On dates uncared for under the Mississippi plan, Southeastern teams could arrange other games with each other providing on two teams met twice in a season.

Five colleges—Mississippi, Mississippi State, Tennessee, Kentucky and Tech—are reported in favor of rotating schedules.

There were two Adamses, two Urbans and two Fiaccos on the 1949 Syracuse University football team, but none were related. However, Jim and John Foley, junior backs, are brothers.

"Walk An Extra Block—Save An Extra Dollar"

Ex-Player Now Is Champion Football Watcher

By Frank Eck

(AP Newsfeatures Sports Writer)

NEW YORK—Bob Hall, former Yale quarterback, will have little trouble recounting the thrills of the past football season.

A lawyer and football scout when he's not running off movies of some game, Hall probably has seen more football than any man in the east, and possibly the country, this year. Each Saturday five camera crews under his direction film 2,000 feet or one full game each.

Monday of each week, Hall views about 10,000 feet of college football. Only the highlights of each game are developed. The rest of the film is junked. Prints go to television stations for one showing only. As many as 30 TV cities have seen some of Hall's movies this season.

Hall can tell about illegal plays that come up almost every Saturday but he won't because there's a certain amount of security involved. If not, his camera crews might not be permitted in certain parks.

In the Notre Dame-North Carolina game, movies show that All-America Leon Hart of Notre Dame was guilty of a forward handoff when he "lateralled" to Bill Barrett for a touchdown. The officials missed that one.

Hall's security stretches to such a point that the games are shown only once on TV and then returned to Hall for his private library, which includes all of the 1914 Yale-Harvard game. His crews take pictures in semi-slow motion. To show them in slow motion would tip off a number of plays to coaches of rival teams. Hall, a keen grid analyst, furnishes his own commentary for his movies.

He has been a football addict since being graduated from Yale in 1929 after three seasons as signal caller for the Eli. He coached the Yale backs for three years under Mal Stevens. While attending Yale Law School in '34 he scouted Princeton. That fall the Eli beat the Tiger, 7-0. Hall's scouting helped.

To the Hollywood technique of taking movies of football, Hall has added electronic dictation.

"Football scouts can't afford to miss one play," says the slightly-built Hall. "That's why I've been using a portable dictating machine all season at Yale's home games. It's impossible to watch every play and make notes at the same time. With the portable dictating machine I merely slip a plastic belt into place. It takes 15 or 30 minutes of dictation and can be mailed or delivered immediately to the coach."

Bob Hall, former Yale quarterback, is shown dictating the action during a recent football game to a portable machine. After the game Coach Herman Hickman of Yale listens to what happened on each play. Maybe the gadget will help Herman next season. Hiss Bulldogs won only four games this fall.

Hall believes the new machine, soon will be standard equipment for a football scout or coach. "It eliminates mistakes," says Hall.

AUBURN UPSETS FAVORED CRIMSON TIDE 14-13

BATTERED AUBURN BOUNCES BACK TO WIN 2ND STRUGGLE

Tigers Tally Easy Way First, Then Add Another TD By Sheer Power

By Sterling Slappey

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Auburn, winner of only one game all season, scored the easy way, added another touchdown on sheer power and hung on like the Tiger they are called to outplay and upset mighty Alabama today, 14-13 before 44,000 fans.

Tidwell's passes were put in moth balls because Alabama would be expecting them. And in their places stepped Jim McGowen, Jim Jeffers, Bill Davis and a horde of heretofore unknown backs who battered larger, and more respected Alabama for a major upset.

Auburn scored first, but Alabama power was too much for the score to remain that way and at the half it was a 7-7 tie. But Auburn again took the lead, this time with as powerful a drive as any Southeastern Conference etam has pulled this year. Again Alabama came back with another touchdown.

Then with only one minute and 20 seconds to go, Eddie Salem, who had been one of Alabama's greatest offensive stars all afternoon, missed the point after try.

Auburn scored its first touchdown on Alabama in 43 ylears when Junior Back Johnny Wallis grabbed an Alabama pass and ran it back 19 yards.

The stocky Birmingham boy went across without Alabama getting near enough to object strenuously. Sophomore Bill Tucker kicked the point, giving Auburn a surprising 7-0 lead.

However, that lead lasted just 14 minutes.

During the rest of the second period the game belonged to Alabama. The Crimson Tide ripped the center and guards of the Auburn line and used Al Lary and Ed White on fast, perfectly operated end-around runs.

The drive failed to produce a touchdown but in 13 plays it moved from the Tide's 38 to Auburn's 12.

Auburn held this time, but not on the following push. A fine Salem punt runback gave Alabama the ball on Auburn's 29. White went around end to the 13, and Salem followed with a touchdown on an end run. Salem kicked the point to tie the score.

After the half it was Auburn which looked like a champion.

Auburn's winner started on its 29, moving in 13 plays all the way. Bill Davis went across with two Alabama men on him from 11 yards out. Tucker methodically added the placement which turned out to be the clincher.

Alabama then pulled a near repeat of its second quarter drive. The bulk of the yardage was on a Salem pass to Jim (Bimbo) Melton, good for 41 yards to Auburn's four. Tom Calvin went over.

That called for Salem's unsuccessful, tension-filled kick, which was far to the left.

TULANE OUTPLAYS SPRINGHILL 83-66

Greenies Compelled To Fight All Way To Toke Basketball Tilt

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Tulane had to fight all the way tonight to gain an 83 to 66 decision over a sharp Springhill basketball outfit.

Tommy Bowman, high point man with 24 tallies, carried the Green Wave through the early part of the second half when the visitors were at their hottest. Virgil Risner rimmed 19 points and Jim Riffey 18 to help pace a hot-and-cold attack.

Tulane, in winning its third straight game, took off early but had to work for a 43 to 29 halftime lead. After Riffey meshed the first score of the game, Jules Mugnier's field goal and free toss gave the Badgers their only lead of the night. Mugnier was tops for the Badgers with 17 points on four goals and nine free throws.

The Wave's passing was off at the start of each half. Intercepted passes and good rebound work by Springhill's Hal McCormick and Mugnier aided in the Badger second half surge that put Tulane on edge.

N. C. State 'Hoosiers' Pick Of South

By Robert L. Moore
(Associated Press Newsfeatures)

RICHMOND, Va.—The No.1 troublemaker in the Southern Conference basketball race again undoubtedly will be North Carolina State's vicious Wolfpack.

Even Coach Everett Case admits his defending champions will be strong.

'Our team at present looks as good as any I have had at State,," says Case. "Our main problem is getting the reserves—the new sophomores—fitted into our system. That will take time, but if they stand up under pressure, we should have another good season."

Case's aces have won 81 games, lost only 16 since the little man from Anderson, Ind., turned up at Raleigh, N. C., three years ago, Only three times have conference teams been able to outscore the Pack. Wake Forest did it twice and Duke once.

State's starting lineup is loaded with veterans. Dick Dickey and Sam Ranzino, a pair of sharp-shooting Indiana Hoosiers, man the forwards. Paul Horvath of Chicago exploits his 6-foot, 7-inch frame at center. Vic Bubas of Gary, Ind., and Joe Harand of Tenafly, N. J., have the guard assignments.

The most valuable player on the squad seldom starts. He's Warren Cartier, a 6-foot, 3-inch handy man from Green Bay, Wis. He plays any position.

Another veteran reserve is Charley Stine, forward from Frankfort, Ind. The Wolfpack will get plenty of help from the 1949 freshman team which won 14 of its 15 games. Coming up as sophomores are Bob Cook of Columbus, Ind., and Joe Stoll of Princeton, Ind., two giants who averaged 15 points a game.

WARREN CARTIER
Valuable to State

The Wolfpack has a new coliseum with a seating capacity of 12,000.

Duke, North Carolina, George Washington, William and Mary and Wake Forest have outstanding clubs. Duke's Blue Devils might be singled out as the team most likely to succeed in any bid to knock off State.

Scrapping for Duke varsity positions on Coach Gerry Garad's squad are several sophomores from the 1949 freshman outfit, the finest in the Blue Devils' long cage history. Last year's freshmen won 15 of 17 contests and averaged closed to 70 points a game.

Five Duke lettermen are back, including Ceep Youmans, Dave Scarborough, Tommy Hughes, Bill Martin and Scotty York.

North Carolina's chances may be dimmed by a touch football injury to Nemo Nierman. Hugo Kappler will be one of the mainstays.

George Washington's forces feature seniors Phil McNiff and Johnny Moffatt and Junior Ray Adler.

William and Mary has more reserve strength this season. Big name on the Indians' is Chester Giermak of Chicago, 6-foot 4-inch center who dumped in 740 points last year. Giermak needs exactly 700 points to break the college scoring record for four seasons. The present mark, 2,199 points, is held by Jim Lacy of Loyola.

Wake Forest's Deacons have long been troublemakers.

Maryland's Old Liners, South Carolina's Gamecocks, Virginia Tech's Gobblers and Washington and Lee's Generals may surprise. Jimmy Slaughter, 6-foot, 9-inch center, will spearhead the Gamecocks. Washington and Lee has two dandies in Jay Handlan and Bob Goldsmith.

The league's other six squads have been riddled by graduation. They are Davidson, Furman, The Citadel, Richmond, Clemson and Virginia Military Institute.

C.A.A. Planners Seek New Ways To Safety

(By NEA Service)

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Four bright young government planners have been working for a year on advances in air traffic control designed to prevent the sort of crashes and near-misses lately plaguing the Washington airport.

The steady rise in air travel and consequent overcrowding of the consequent overcrowding of the airlanes over busy centers has worried the Civil Aeronautics Administration for a long time. It decided positive steps were needed. It set up a special committee to examine the problem and the committee wound up by naming the four-man planning team to up-date traffic control and navigation systems.

To get the bold, original thinkers desired for this job, the C. A. A. committee tossed away fusty seniority rules and canvassed its far-flung personnel in an elaborate screening process.

Out of this careful weighing of talent came the members of the present team — Jack Hilton, Tom Dodson, Roy Jones and Simon Justman. This quartet—average age 35—was lifted from obscurity in the C. A. A. ranks and handed one of the toughest assignments in aviation history.

How tough can be gauged from the Nov. 1 collision that sent 55 persons to their deaths over Washington, from the close call Vice-President Barkley's plane had about a week later, and from the constant confusion and danger that surrounds the regular "stacking" of aircraft over landing fields when weather is bad or traffic heavy.

The C. A. A.'s young planners know these troubles first hand. Hilton more than once sweated it out for an hour or so in the C. A. A. control tower at Indianapolis airport, trying to bring in a lost plane that was holding up a big stack of circling planes. He was chief controller there and one of the first C. A. A. men trained in so-called Ground Controlled Approach operations.

Jones, a 20-year veteran of aviation, served as an air route traffic controller for C. A. A. from 1941 to 1948. He began his career with private airlines, learned to fly and do a variety of other jobs, including the writing of a text on navigation. When he joined the planning team he was senior controller at St. Louis.

Dodson was working as chief communicator at the C. A. A.'s desert post in Lovelock, Nev. He felt buried there, for no promotion had been on the horizon since 1942. The new government was reward for his 16 years of radio operating experience in the navy, the F. C. C. and the C. A. A.

Only Justman was already stationed in Washington when team selections were made. As a radar engineer with training in the air force laboratories at Wright Field, Dayton, O., he had been brought into the C. A. A.'s communications engineering section in the capital.

The screening program that culled these men from 160 applicants emphasized five main qualifications. Tests or interviews were used to determine fitness for the exacting task ahead. The five traits looked for:

1. A keen sense of space relationship, a characteristic considered vital to any real grasp of how to juggle hundreds of aircraft in overburended airlanes during the course of a typical day.

2. General intelligence, with stress on analytical powers.

3. Broad interest in all kinds of scientific and social development, to assure that team members would be able to adapt knowledge from other fields to traffic control problems.

4. Creative thinking, to make certain that the planners would not be hamstrung by outworn ideas in their search for new solutions.

5. "Social intelligence," by which the screening committee meant the ability of a man to get along with others in working on a difficult job. Interviews were employed to measure applicants here, with the likeliest candidates being subjected to severe grilling.

From the eight men with the highest combined scores the heads of C. A. A.'s traffic control and communications divisions picked the present four.

The team went to work in November, 1948. It is now under direction of E. R. Mehrling, who recently returned from duty in Germany as air traffic control adviser in the Berlin airlift operations of the air force.

One of the first major projects to engage the planners' attention is the so-called "private line." This is a proposed system calling for automatic two-way transmission of traffic control information between planes and the ground. Its goal is to assure a "position check" on each plane every 10 seconds, comparison of that position with the position of other aircraft, and relay of approval or change in a plane's flight path within 10 seconds.

If a relatively foolproof device of this sort can be developed, it may go far toward preventing repetition of mishaps like the tragic collision over the capital airport. And this is but one of the projects under study by the able C. A. A. planning squad.

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Dec. 3.—(AP)—The Florida Gator basketball team won its first Southeastern Conference victory here tonight by defeating Mississippi State, 63-45

It was also Florida's second win in two starts this season.

The game began sluggishly with both teams making bad passes and missing numerous shots. Mississippi State rang up five points before Florida scored.

The Gator five stepped up its scoring pace to pull ahead and lead 21-8 at halftime. Florida maintained command of the contest during the second half and the closest Mississippi game was eight points about midway of the period.

Ted Jaycox, Florida guard, was high scorer of the game, sinking seven field goals and three free throws. Mississippi State's leader was Haggett, also a guard, with 12 points.

It was the season opener for Mississippi Southern.

Pensacola led most of the way. In the last ten minutes of play, Southern narrowed the margin but could not overcome the airmen's head start.

High-point man was Forward John Barrows of the Air Station, with 11. Forward Bob Searle made nine points.

For Southern, Forwards A. T. Bishop and Jack Gallagher accounted for nine points each.

KOSCIUSKO NARROWLY WINS

GREENWOOD, Miss., Dec. 3—(AP)—Winner of the class A football championship of north Mississippi is Kosciusko High School.

Kosciusko defeated Aberdeen 26-25 in a game here last night. Kosciusko led 13-6 at the end of the first half.

Five touchdowns were scored in the final quarter.

Aberdeen Fullback Tuffy Bourland climaxed the razzle-dazzle by a 48-yard run. He tried to plunge over for the extra point to tie the game, but was stopped by Kosciusko forwards.

Johnny Mize and Enos Slaughter, who finished among the top ten National League batters in 1939, still were active last season.

S. W. LOUISIANA OVERPOWERS RICE

Puts Tight Defense And First-Half Scoring Spurge To Good Use At Houston

LAFAYETTE, La., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Southwestern Louisiana Institute parlayed tight defense and a first-half scoring splurge into a 42-26 win over Rice Institute of Houston here tonight.

S. L. I. took a commanding lead in the opening minutes and held it throughout the hotly-contested tilt.

Rice failed to score until five minutes had gone in the first half and had to wait four minutes longer for their second tally.

Bill Moody, 6-foot 6-inch S. L. I. center, took scoring honors with 16, accumulated on six field goals and four free throws.

Rice Guard J. D. White tallied nine points on four goals and a charity toss to finish behind Moody.

BAD BREAK—Frank Codolo was the only casualty in Rensselaer Poly's eight games. The cheerleader grew too excited when the Troy, N.Y., Engineers shook a back loose, fell from the horse that is the school mascot, and broke his arm. For him, football is a rough game—to watch.

INDIANS SLATE 4 BASKETBALL TILTS

Will Meet Francis T. Nichols Jr. College In First Games Thursday And Friday

Sgt. Edward Payne, newly-appointed head basketball coach at Northeast Junior college, yesterday revealed the Indians' 1949 basketball schedule.

In their first games, the Indians will journey to Thiboudeaux, La., Thursday and Friday for doubleheader tangles with Francis T. Nichols Junior College of L. S. U., N. J. C.'s sister college.

On Dec. 12, the Northeast Junior College cagers will stay home and face the freshmen of La. Tech. The next day they will take on the same team at Ruston. Other games will be announced when the schedule is completed.

This will be the first year N. J. C. has entered inter-collegiate basketball competition since 1946.

The new coach, while looking his teams over, said he "was more than pleased with his cagers."

He stated he could put two five-men teams of equal ability on the court and had five more players in reserve. Ten of the players, he said, are over six feet tall, which always helps in a tight game.

The squad members for N. J. C. and their respective positions are:

Shag Carpenter, Bob Cole, Luther Gilliary, Red Holley, Freddy Sims and Snooky Cerneglia, forwards; at the pivot position at center are Harold Short and Dean Corbell, and guards are: Gregory LeBlanc, Julius Dean, Lewis, Wolfe, Tommy Danks, Joe Jacobs and Gene Smith.

Tidwell Selected As Most Valuable Player

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Travis Tidwell of Auburn is the selection of Southeastern Conference coaches as the S. E. C.'s most valuable football player of the year.

Tidwell, whose team has only won one game this season, was a heavy favorite in the Nashville Banner's 16th annual poll of conference coaches announced today.

The Auburn quarterback was first on eight of the 12 ballots. Trailing him were Tulane's Eddie Price, John Dottley of Ole Miss, Jerry Claiborne of Kentucky and Ed Holdnak of Alabama.

Tidwell was the nation's leading ground gainer in 1946 with 1,715 yards and this season has a total offense mark of 1,033 yards.

He will receive a silver football at a banquet here next month. Gaynell Tinsley of Louisiana State University, who was named S. E. C. "coach of the year," also will be honored at the banquet.

PRE-HISTORY

LONDON—(AP)—Northern Rhodesia's prehistoric peoples left behind some carefuly done purple paintings. The colonial office says the rock paintings were discovered in a remote cave near Musofu Mission by J. Desmond Clark, curator of the Rhodes-Livingstone Museum at Nachitalo. They show antelopes, and possibly zebra. They are the first of their kind found in northern Rhodesia.

John Gilman, Michigan State's regular left end, scored the first touchdown of his college career against Temple this season.

American Who Didn't Forget British People Grateful To

MRS. WARREN PEARLE: Next to the cup the British gave her is the picture of the son she gave England in World War II.

By Julius Huml
(NEA Service Staff Correspondent)

LONDON — (NEA) — The big silver cup on Mrs. Warren Pearl's desk in London bears the simple legend: "To a great American—from the British People."

It was presented the white-haired, gentle-faced woman as high tribute to a foreigner by Royal Princess Marie Louise—tribute for generosity that began in 1915 and will go on, Mrs. Pearl says, "even when they have to wheel me around in a bath-chair."

Her generosity is not confined to England alone. Now 69, Mrs. Pearl was doing charity work in the slums of New York before she was 20.

Today she is connected with more than 240 charitable organizations, about 100 of them in the U. S. Friends estimate the money she has spent on the needy runs into the millions, although only she and her bank manager know the exact figure. And she has helped raise millions more.

In 1915, Mrs. Pearl and her husband, a one-time U. S. embassy official in London, were on the Lusitania when it was torpedoed. Two sons were lost in the disaster, and she came back to England determined to dedicate her time and money to needy children. Although she had planned to stay only five years, Mrs. Pearl has been in England ever since except for annual visits to New York.

"I am lucky," she says. "I was born with money and a social position. But ever since that fateful day in 1915, I have known somehow that unless I could share my happiness with those less privileged, I would get little satisfaction in my life."

During World War I she financed and organized a 100-truck Civil ambulance outfit. Between the two wars she became famous in London society for the parties she organized for charities.

During World War II tragedy struck again. Her son Duncan, a pilot officer with the R. A. F., was killed in action over Britain. That second disaster only seemed to have spurred further activity, directed specially for war orphans and widows. She spent three hours daily packing parcels for prisoners of war. She made daily visits to hospitals, bringing gifts to the wounded, providing taxis for soldiers going home on convalescent leave. But she seldom left clues to her identity.

"Over the years I have given cinema shows, balls, parties and tried dozens of ways of raising money for the poor," she says. "I suppose I have a gift that way, maybe it's because I have kissed the Blarney stone.

"I am still an American," she adds with emphasis. "But I love England, and am in the luck position to have roots both here and in America, where I have a married daughter." She also has another son now a practicing lawyer in London.

"Most charity organizations have become used to appealing to me for funds, and most of my friends have become used to my appealing to them," she admits. "I don't know how much I have raised, but I know it's not enough."

At the moment Mrs. Pearl is busy organizing a bridge party to be held sometime this November. She herself does not play bridge, but she will see to it that within a week of the party a check of more than 1,000 pounds ($2,800) will go to some charity organization.

CHINA REDS MAKE ADDITIONAL GAINS

Chiang May Be Forced To Flee Mainland To Island Fortress

HONG KONG, Dec. 3.—(AP)—A rapid Communist advanced through China's far west raised the prospect today that Chiang Kai-Shek soon may abandon the mainland for his island fortress of Formosa.

There seems little to stop the Red rush in the west, which rapidly is being cut in half.

Even the best Nationalist Armies left, those of Gen. Pai Chung-Hsi, are being driven into an ever-shinking corner in the south.

An official announcement in Chengtu, the new refugee capital in the west, said Pai was shifting his headquarters to Hainan.

The newspaper Sing Tao Min Po of Hong Kong, with Nationalists leanings and connections, said officials in Pai's Kwangsi province capital of Nanning are being urgently evacuated to Hainan.

The Generalissimo is in Chengtu directing Nationalist defenses and soon may take back the presidency. Acting President Li Tsgun-Jen is leaving Hong Kong by plane Monday for the United States.

The China Mail, quoting Nationalist sources in Hong Kong, said there were indications the Generalissimo soon will abandon the mainland as a lost cause. He and his retinue would return to Formosa.

The newspaper said the Nationalist forces in the south, the 250,000-man armies of General Pai, would be "left behind to fight the Communists without the Generalissimo's intereference or help."

Pai is a close friend of Acting President Li. Li walked out presumably because Chiang would not give him a free hand to fight the Communists.

The Mail's sources said Chiang's decision to abandon the mainland probably would be announced after the fall of Chengtu.

Dispatches from Chengtu have indicated the fall may come within two or three weeks. The Communists already have cut one of the three main roads to the south at a point about 180 miles from Chengtu. They also may be almost halfway to Chengtu from Chungking, which is 170 miles to the southeast.

The Chengtu reports said Premier Yen Hsi-Shan was making plans to move his government farther west. Sichang, in the mountains 225 miles southwest of Chengtu, has been mentioned.

(In the only mention of military activity, an Associated Press dispatch from Formosa said heavy bombers struck at Chungking's outskirts Friday. The Nationalists asserted the air field and military vehicles were hit, causing big fires. It wa the first air raid on Chungking since it was abandoned by the Nationalists Wednesday.)

But while Campbell was a speedy runner, he was not alone. A group of boys and men, made after the fleeting animal which for a time seemed to have it all his own way. But after three or four blocks had been passed with the speed of the wind, Campbell gained on the four-legged speedster and believe it or not, he was run down in a fence corner and there taken captive.

A few hours later, Sexton E. M. Stringer, at Riverview Burial Park, in company of two Negro helpers, suddenly observed a big fat coon, peering coyly from behind a granite tombstone.

"Ahs suah nuff a goin' ter git out ob heah! Dat aint no coon, dat am a hant!" averred one of the black men as he started a record-breaking plunge toward the entrance of the cemetery. The other Negro, trembled perceptibly but insisted he wasn't scared at no coon, but he made no overtures to effect a capture. Mr. Stringer was the man who landed the creature.

Eight students from Neville High and seven from the Rayville High School have been selected as the most outstanding students from these schools and their writeups will be included as the most outstanding students of these schools in the 1949-1950 edition of the high school register.

This book is issued annually and contains biographical sketches from schools accredited by regional associations or by the several states.

They are chosen on the basis of scholarship, leadership, service to school and community, personality and probable future usefulness to society.

The Neville students are listed as follows:

Anne Weir Varino, John Payne Noel, Betty Jo Roach, Clara Guthrie Munholland, Jo Ann Roberts, Elizabeth Maurine Linquist, Mary Agnes Rizzo and Ran Lorenzo Phillips.

The Rayville High School students are recorded as follows:

Henry Warren Blakeman, Jr., Ethel Loree Dampier, Olive Ann Doughty, Donald Roy Faust, George Pete McAllister, Jr., Bobbye Nell Meeks and Wilma Joyce White.

Two more birthdays not so far off: Mrs. A. J. Lester, who first arrived on a Christmas day and Mrs. I. W. Rogers, December 18, Mrs. Lester admits that she labors under a handicap when single presents for Christmas and birthday can, for the sake of economy, become combined.

Miss May Read, now recovering from a recent operation, and located in her brother's home in Farmerville, writes that she is being showered with attention from her unnumbered friends. She writes that she has just received a total of 32 get-well cards and a small greenhouse of plants and cut flowers. She expects soon to be able to return to her position as secretary to Dean Rodney Cline at Northeast Junior College.

The pages of time were turned backward Saturday by Miss Mary Clay, librarian at Northeast Junior College.

The transportation of "One Hundred Million Bushels of Corn for Louisiana"—back in April, 1913, was the occasion. A train through here carried this shipment accompanied by Dr. P. J. Holden, original professor of agronomy in the University of Illinois. There was a stop made in Monroe and a writeup appeared in the small sized daily, forerunner of today's News-Star. In the preparation of an article or book on the subject, Dr. Holden seeks information obtained from the news story in Monroe, more than 36 years ago. Quite fortunately the information was available.

ORDER PROBE

of it at the time. This as before any public whisper of the atomic secret.

He said there were "tremendous quantities" of state department documents. He described suitcases of blueprints and scientific data bearing then top-secret atomic terms.

Jordan called Harry Hopkins, President Roosevelt's lanky right-hand man, "the button the Russians touched every time they needed emergency help."

He said that Hopkins, who had charge of lend-lease matters, telephoned him to speed up the Russians' shipments in every way, to "disregard the manifests" and refrain from reporting anything he saw to his superiors.

Lewis said that after first talking to ordan about the matter he laid the whole thing before the Federal Bureau of Investigation and F. B. I. agents then questioned Jordan.

The F. B. I. declined to comment on any phase of the subject.

Senator Hickenlooper (R.-Iowa), top-ranking Republican on the joint atomic committee, said he would "insist" that the committee look into the story.

"It's a very important thing," he said in an interview at Fort Dodge, Iowa. "It brings up the question of what Russia is getting out of this country, what they did get and what they have.

"It certainly sounds like Russia might have been able to develop an atom bomb more quickly because of this."

Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo.) said: "Unless these very serious charges can be cleared up promptly, congress must explore them fully." Johnson likewise is a member of the atomic group.

If the atomic committee doesn't act promptly, Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.) said, he will urge that a senate investigating committee headed by Senator Hoey (D-N. C.) hold an inquiry of its own.

McMahon, in ordering the atomic committee staff to look into Jordan's statements, said: "It occurs to me that the patriotic and efficient military men who were directly responsible for the security of our atomic bomb project can throw some light on the matter. I have requested our committee staff to inquire from these gentlemen as to what they know about it."

The Manhattan district, controlled by the military, was in charge of the atomic bomb development during the war. After the fighting ceased, control was vested in the Civilian Atomic Energy Commission.

Great Falls, where Jordan was stationed, was a key point on the route over which planes for Russia were flown in 1943 and 1944. He told Lewis his suspicions were aroused by the "ever increasing amounts of baggage" carried by Russian officers on the planes.

He said he began to search their rope-bound suitcases and discovered quantities of state department documents, maps, engineering drawings and scientific data. Some of these, he said, referred to such things as uranium, and "energy produced by fission or splitting."

Jordan said the Russians displayed "great excitement" over two large shipments of material, one weighing about 500 pounds, the other about 1,150 pounds. That was the stuff, he said, that the Russian commanding officer at the station, Colonel Anatole Kotikov, listed as uranium.

He said Kotikov got the second highest Soviet decoration for his work at Great Falls—"Mr. Stalin seemed to like the job he did."

Jordan said one of the things he found in the Russians' baggage was a White House memo signed "H. H." which mentioned "having a hell of a time getting these away from goves."

His interviewer, Lewis, interrupted at that point to ask whether Maj. Gen. Leslie Groves was not head of the Manhattan project Jordan said he knows now that Groves did head the project, whose existence did not come to light publicly until 1945.

Groves, reached at his home in Connecticut, said he was waiting to see "what the defenders of Harry Hopkins would say" to the report. Groves said he did not see how congress could ignore the charges.

REPORT PROGRESS IN ATOM CONTROL

U. N. President Says World Shouldn't Expect Miracle, However

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(AP)—U. N. Assembly President Carlos P. Romulo said tonight the U. N. is progressing in its work toward control of atomic energy, but the world must not expect any miracle of instant agreement.

Romulo made this comment as he released letters from the six countries in the U. N. most directly concerned with atomic matters. These acknowledged receipt of his four-point program of work on the atomic problem and indicated their governments would give his ideas serious consideration.

The six countries are the United States, the Soviet Union, France, Britain, China and Canada. They are called the sponsoring powers on atomic energy because they sponsored a resolution creating the U. N. atomic energy commission in 1946. This is the only point on the atomic question on which they have agreed unanimously.

Announcement that the United States will conduct tests of atomic weapons at Eniwetok atoll has been received here with interest, but it has made no discernible difference in the intentions of the western delegates to carry on talks with the Soviet Union behind closed doors in a continuing attempt to see if any answer can be found.

The general assembly on Nov. 23 called on the Big Five and Canada to continue consultations. The Soviet bloc opposed this plan, insisting the U. N. atomic energy commission should resume sessions and work on Soviet proposals for atomic control.

Previous sessions of the six have made no progress, but the delegates are preparing to resume the talks when the assembly adjourns.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky told Romulo in his letter dated 28 Nov. that his government did not believe the assembly's decision helped "in the least" toward solving the problem.

But Vishinsky left the door open by saying the Soviet government is prepared to examine any proposals directed toward a successful solution of the issue.

Warren R. Austin, United States chief delegate, Sir Alexander Cadogan of Britain, Lester B. Pearson, foreign minister of Canada, and Dr. T. F. Tsiang, Chinese Nationalist delegate, all said their governments would give full consideration to the problem. Marcel Plaisant, French delegate, acknowledged receipt of the Romulo communication, which was dated Nov. 3.

Summing up, he said he felt that "we are making progress."

CHALLENGE

1951. The key vote was: 35 in favor, seven against and 13 absentions.

The assembly rejected a White Russian proposal which would have obliged U. N. members to send back to Soviet areas next year thousands of displaced persons who do not wish to return to their former homes in Russian-controlled territory.

Soviet bloc delegates attacked the policies of the I. R. O. That organization consistently has refused to allow forced repatriation of refugees.

At Lake Success the assembly's special political committee approved overwhelmingly a resolution welcoming the recent Dutch-Indonesian agreement at The Hague to create a sovereign United States of Indonesia. The vote was 43 to five, with four absentions.

Russia, the Soviet Ukraine and Poland tried vainly to hold up action until the security council could investigate whether the Hague agreement actually means independence for Indonesia.

Ukrainian Foreign Minister Dmitri Manuilsky charged the Dutch still are conducting "ferocious" war in Indonesia, and holding 70,000 political prisoners.

Manuilsky said The Hague agreement was concluded by "traitors" to the Indonesian Republic.

Netherlands Delegate J. G. Van Heuven Goedhart announced that it was his "honor and privilege to defend the statesmen of the Indonesian Republic," including Premier Mohammed Hatta, against the charge of being traitors.

The Indonesian Republic put down a Communist uprising at a time when Republican troops were fighting the Dutch in the now-concluded hostilities in the islands.

DIFFERENT TYPE X-RAY PERFECTED

New General Electric Invention Makes Seeing Through Steel Bars Easy

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 3.—(AP)—General Electric Company today disclosed production of an X-ray microscope that can show the inside of things through which light cannot pass.

In other words: It can look into a bar of steel or a bar of candy.

The new instrument was shown for the first time at a meeting of the American Society for X-ray and electron diffraction.

Charlys M. Lucht of the G-E research laboratory told the group the X-ray microscope is still in the laboratory stage of development.

But Miss Lucht pointed out it "may result in much sharper images and higher magnifications than are possible using visible light.

"The instrument may compete with electron microscopes in the future."

Right now, electron microscopes are the most powerful magnifying instruments in use. These use a beam of electrons rather than light to form an image of materials under study.

Miss Lucht said the X-ray microscope does not need to be used in a vacuum like the electron microscope.

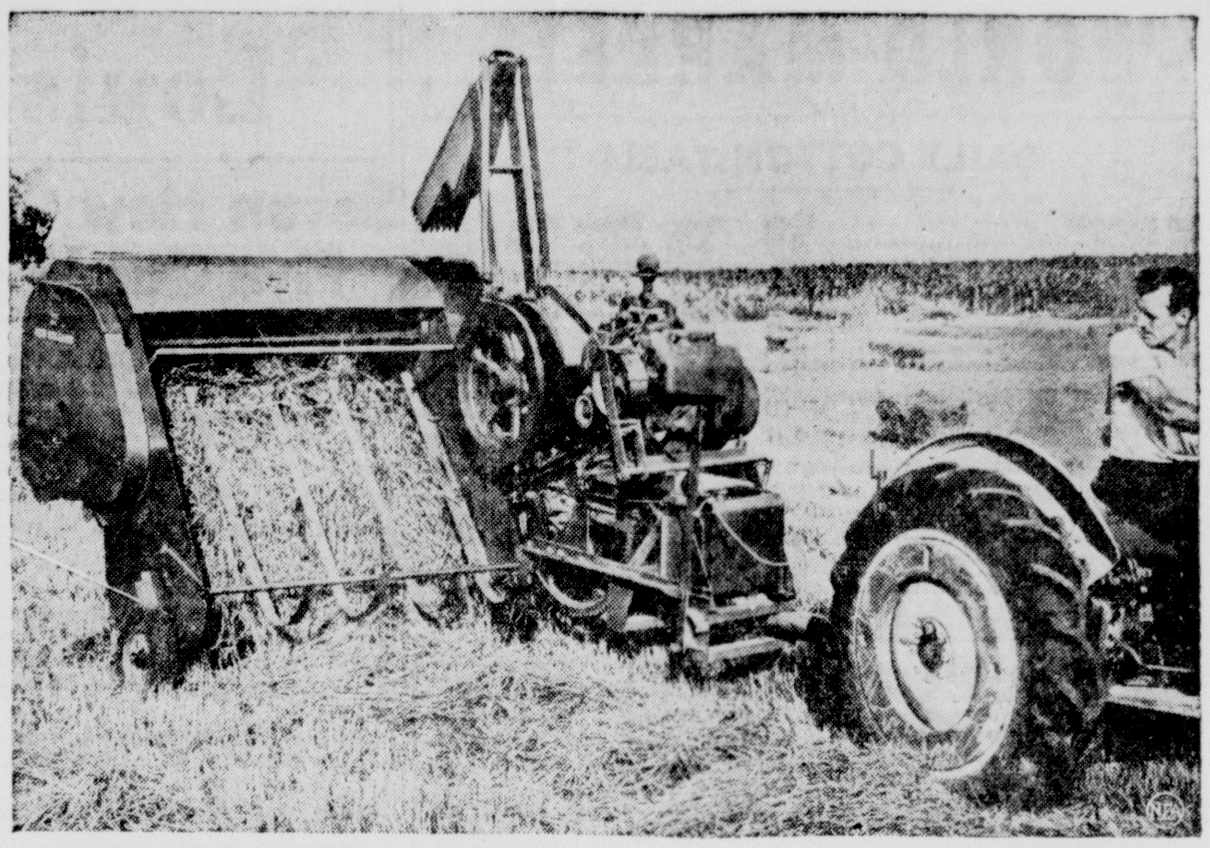
"Because of this advantage," she said, "it may be possible to examine living materials at much higher magnifications than ever before."

She reported that "clear, sharp X-ray images, magnified 10 times have been produced in the laboratory, and these images have been magnified 10 times further by photographic enlargement without serious loss of detail.

So far the X-ray microscope has been used only to study the insides of fine mesh screens. And Miss Lucht says the instruments' ability to reveal tiny details has been excellent.

The microscope operates on the principle that X-rays can be reflected from polished surfaces, as can visible light, provided that the rays strike the surfaces at very small angles.

The instrument consists of an X-ray tube and a pair of curved mirrors. The X-rays strike the mirrors at an angle of less than one-half degree. The mirrors bend the beams in such a way as to cast a magnified X-ray image of the sample on a photographic film.



HAY BALER TAKES ON SLEEK LINES—This new, streamlined hay baler was just introduced at New Holland, Pa. The 1950 model has 20 per cent fewer parts than older balers. It scoops up the hay, slices it and presses it into wrapped bales, all automatically, at the rate of seven bales a minute.

A. F. L. Delegates Plan Educational Program

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Seventy-five delegates to the Southern regional convention of the American Federation of Labor will draft a political education program here tomorrow.

W. A. Calvin of Jacksonville Beach, Fla., A. F. of L. regional public relations officer, said the program "certainly will oppose the Dixiecrat movement which has done nothing for labor."

The delegates, representing 14 states, today studied plans for a membership drive designed to bring in 1,000,000 new members and programmed state conventions scheduled for January.

Calvin predicted that 500,000 of the new members would come from the south.

"That is partially attributable to an awakened trade union consciousness in the south and to an accelerated migration of industries to the south," Calvin said.

J. L. Rhodes of Atlanta, Ga., regional director in charge of organizing, presided at today's meeting.

and Gail Clayton, 4, sustained only minor cuts.

State police had not determined the cause of the accident last night.

Two Columbia youths were in the St. Francis last night and two others escaped injuries following a collision with a gravel dump truck three miles out of West Monroe on the Jonesboro road. The boys were riding in an A-model Ford.

Willie Brister, 19, sustained a severely lacerated ear, brush burns on forehead and right cheek. Ralph Gregory, a passenger in the front seat of the A-model with Brister, sustained a slight back injury.

Billy Brister and C. W. Jones escaped unhurt.

Jones said that they were coming toward West Monroe when a gravel dump truck attempted to pass a car going in the opposite direction. Driver of the truck, also uninjured, was T. C. Geiger, Rt. 3, West Monroe.

A discrepancy in stories of the young men and the truck driver was still being investigated by state police last night.

What About YOUR PAY CHECK AND ADVERTISING?

Perhaps You've Never Heard It Explained This Simply Before

WHAT OTHERS THINK

SECRETARY—I work in a company that advertises a grocery product. That's what has made our office grow from 17 people to 27. I've been promoted twice in 3 years. Advertising helped.

FARMER—My prices depend on supply and demand. Good advertising seems to make folks buy more goods. So I guess in the long run advertising helps my produce find a ready market at a good price.

PLUMBER—Since I've been advertising my shop I've added 2 men. It's helped my business and my income all right.

SALESMAN—Ads do the same kind of work salesmen do—sell more goods. My company's advertising certainly increases my volume of business. That means both safety and more income to me.

SHIPPING CLERK—When the ads run, we are busy and happy. When our outfit cuts down on advertising, first thing you know our business slacks off and they have to cut down on help.

YOU'LL agree that the advertising you see and hear has one main purpose . . . to sell goods and services.

When a company sells more goods or services, there's just naturally more work to be done in that company. That means more jobs, better jobs, more security, more chance for promotion.

What's more, the mines and mills and farms and businesses that supply that firm also have more work to do. So do the transportation lines, dealers, stores, etc., who handle the goods. So they have more and better jobs as well.

Today producing goods is a relatively simple problem. In many fields, selling the goods is the big job. And advertising is one of the lowest-cost methods of selling goods on a big scale . . . a scale that makes more jobs and plenty of them.

So whether or not you work for a company that advertises, remember—that modern method of mass personal selling you see and hear everywhere, is important to your job

It's often the spark plug that keeps the motor humming—full speed, full power. And that means more security, greater opportunity for you—and for yours!

Other Ways Advertising Helps You:

1. Brings you better goods for less money.
2. Makes shopping more pleasant and easier.
3. Has given us the world's highest standard of living.

PARENTS FACING PITIFUL GAMBLE

Undecided Whether To Try To Save Son's Life By Imposing Blindness

SEATTLE, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Parents of two-year-old Dean Ault face the tragic dilemma: Should they gamble on removal of his only eye in the hope of saving his life?

One of the boy's eyes was removed six weeks ago. A cancerous growth has spread to the other. The trouble started after he fell off a chair and struck his head five months ago.

A Seattle specialist says the eye's removal "is the only way to save the child's life."

"He will die if he doesn't have the operation," said the specialist who asked that his name not be used.

The doctor has counseled the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ault, against wasting valuable time by delay.

But the parents cling to a slim hope that there might be some other way out. Mrs. Ault expressed belief that if they could get a diagnosis by a top national specialist, he might offer hope.

"It would be worth gambling on even a slim possible hope," she said last night. "Then we'd know we had done everything we could."

Meanwhile, donations and offers of aid poured into the office of a Seattle newspaper. The Seattle specialist, recognized as one of the city's best, offered to perform the operation without charge.

The 32-year-old father is unemployed and physically handicapped. He lost an arm as a boy when a streetcar ran over it. The Aults have two other sons, aged 6 and 7.

Hal Boyle's NOTEBOOK

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Jean Tennyson runs one of the world's biggest concert bureaus—and is quite happy because it is losing money.

Some 300 top singers and musicians work for nothing on her programs, arranged to entertain disabled ex-servicemen in 130 veterans hospitals across the country.

Her list of artists include Lily Pons, Margaret Truman, Ezio Pinza, Artur Rubenstein and Gladys Swarthout.

"We started out with strictly long-haired performers," she said. "But now we have Benny Goodman, choral groups—even a magician."

Like many another American woman at war's end, Miss Tennyson, an ex-Vanities star and operatic soprano, was grateful to the men who had fought. She wanted to do something to show her gratitude—but what?

"I was told that musical therapy was helpful to the 1,000,000 veterans in hospitals," she recalled, "so I decided that was the field I could help in best."

With Symphony Conductor Leo Stowkowski and a few other friends she organized the artists veterans hospital programs in 1947. By the end of this season this organization will have arranged for more than 350 concerts in some 90 veterans hospitals.

"Eventually we hope to reach all the hospitals, particularly those in out-of-the-way places," she said.

Miss Tennyson, helped only by a secretary, scheduled the concerts herself and pays all expenses of the operation. Whenever the seasonal tour of one of the artists on her list brings him near a veterans' hospital, she arranges in advance for him to appear there, too. And he'd better not plead weariness or laryngitis when she gets on the long distance phone. For a cheerful blonde she can be mighty stubborn with lazy singers.

"But most of the artists have been very cooperative," she said. "Only two out of more than 300 have turned us down—and I'd rather not talk about them. Once an artist sees the effect he has on these shut-in vets he usually wants to come back and entertain them again.

When one singer was forced to cancel an engagement at a Chicago hospital,, Jean flew out herself and kept the date.

Her office files are full of letters from doctors praising the programs for their therapeutic value to patients, some of whom are mentally as well as physically sick.

'After Claudio Arrau finished one of his piano numbers a vet sighed 'that's beautiful,'" said Miss Tennyson. "We learned later they were the first words that boy had spoken in months."

A letter from Dallas, Tex., hospital said:

"Today Jarmila Novotna came to our ward and sang for us. I can't tell you how important that hour was to us."

The letter was signed by a blind veteran.

Miss Tennyson expects to operate her concert bureau indefinitely.

"People don't realize," she said soberly, "that we aren't going to have fewer veterans in our hospitals as time goes on. There will be more—and more."

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Cotton futures advanced here today on trade buying and week-end short covering.

Trading was exceptionally active for the short two-hour Saturday session. The demand for contracts apparently was stimulated by the official announcement of the potential cut in cotton acreage next season and steadiness in other markets.

Middling 15/16ths-inch spot cotton advanced 50 cents a bale to 29.75 cents a pound. Local sales amounted to 708 bales.

New York

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Cotton futures were firm today. The nearby March contract established new highs for the season with the December, 1949, delivery duplicating the previous seasonal peak. Trade buying predominated on the rise and there was a scarcity of contracts. Part of the demand was said to represent covering against export sales, although dealers observed that some of the buying was also for the account of textile mills.

Futures closed 5 to 45 cents a bale higher than the previous close.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Look For Tumble In Crude Oil Production Next Week

By Max B. Skelton

HOUSTON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Crude production figures can be expected to tumble sharply next week.

Production allowable cutbacks approximating 243,000 barrels daily became effective Thursday in Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas.

It is a sharp contrast to the optimism in September when industry spokesmen said no more cutbacks would be needed to balance supply and demand.

The optimism had brief life and domestic production last week declined 18,650 barrels daily after several consecutive weekly increases.

Last week's small drop in crude, however, was offset by encouraging declines in refined products stocks.

Gasoline, as is customary at this time of the year, took a jump, but kerosene and light and heavy fuel stocks had their sharpest drop in weeks, despite less crude flowing to refineries.

Bureau of Mines figures report that refined products demand the five weeks ending November 19 was 1.6 per cent below the same 1948 period.

Problems arising from the mild winter last season and its slowness in arriving this year are reflected in the bureau's products demand statistics for the first nine months of the year.

Principal products demand was off only 0.9 per cent from 1948, but light fuel was down 8.5 per cent, heavy fuel 2.1, gasoline was up 3.7 per cent.

Another bureau report added fuel to the independent oilman's fight for limitation of foreign crude oil imports.

Foreign oil brought into the United States the first nine months of the year was said to total 163,039,000 barrels, compared to 133,786,000 last year.

Crude accounted for 111,603,000 barrels of this year's total, against 89,-051,000 in 1948.

The remainder was refined products.

The head of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, the leader in the anti-imports fight, this week left little doubt that the problem will be tossed into congress' lap again next year.

J. D. Warren, Midland, Tex., said there is only one hope if the national petroleum council fails to realize how harmful imports have become to the domestic industry.

He wants the council to find the solution, if possible.

If not, he said, the only hope is to go to congress.

The Texas company this week opened as $60,000,000 40,000 barrels-a-day refinery at Eagle Point, N. J.

The plant immediately entered the imports situation in that Texaco officials indicated it will operate on foreign crude.

A Texas congressman is worrying about imports from two points of view.

Back from a visit to Central and South American countries, Rep. Omar Burleson (D.-Tex.) said:

"The economy of Venezuela is tied up with imports. If there is a drastic reduction in their foreign shipments they will suffer.'

Then he added that imports are affecting the United States adversely.

Venezuela supplies a large percentage of foreign oil the independent operators are worrying about.

Scurry Predictions

Another geologist has given his predictions on the future of Texas' Scurry county, the nation's biggest oil strike in nearly 20 years.

J. R. Day, Pan American Production Company, told the West-Central Texas Oil Gas Association:

Scurry's current proven reserves approximate 1,000,000,000 barrels.

The county's new oil fields eventually will be linked, forming a producing area about 20 to 25 miles long and five miles wide.

The current 200 producers eventually will total 1,250, possibly next year. (Two big producers were completed this week, one at over 2,000 barrels daily, the other 1,000 daily.)

Large Producer Sparks Oklahoma's Production

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 3.—(AP)—A 1,200-barrel producer, the first in that class for several months, sparked Oklahoma oil drilling reports this week.

Wilcox Oil Company's No. 2 Walker—C SW NW of 24-10-21W in the Elk City field of Beckham county—was completed at that daily flow through choke from 10,100 feet.

Completions were up slightly from 87 to 92 with 56 oilers, seven gassers and 29 dry holes, the Tulsa World reported.

Statistics included a daily production average of 6,941 barrels of crude and 47,649,000 cubic feet of gas. Drills went down an aggregate 320,898 feet.

Exploration dropped from 112 to 94 tarts in 24 counties, Stephens county leading with 18 new locations.

OIL PRODUCTION CLIMBS UPWARD

U. S. Output Gains For Ninth Straight Week; Louisiana Increases Production

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 3.—(AP)—The upward trend of United States oil production has reached its ninth straight week, the Oil & Gas Journal reported last week.

Daily average production for the week ended Nov. 26, The Journal said, was 5,164,100 barrels ,an increase of 2,400 barrels over the previous week.

Top gains were reported in Colorado, up 1,600 barrels to 66,400 barrels; Illinois, up 3,500 to 182,200; Michigan, 3,-600 to 46,900, and Wyoming, 1,400 to 155,900.

Other increases were recorded for Arkansas, up 150 barrels to 75,900; Indiana, up 500 to 29,100; Louisiana, 250 to 530,000; Mississippi, 750 to 97,250, and Montana, 200 to 26,200.

Major losses were in Kansas, down 5,150 barrels to 290,150; Oklahoma, off 2,100 to 426,500, and California, down 1,100 to 867,900.

The eastern area dropped 800 barrels to 57,700, Florida was down 100 to 975, Kentucky declined 200 to 24,900, Nebraska fell 50 to 1,150, and Utah slumped 50 to 3,300.

Production was unchanged in Alabama, 1,350 barrels; New Mexico, 132,-900, and Texas, 2,169,425.

WON'T ACT SOON ON HOUSING AID

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Government housing officials indicated today it will be 60 days or more before the government invokes its new rule against writing race and religious barriers into federal-aided housing in the future.

They said it will take that long to print and distribute the necessary documents providing for the changes in regulations announced yesterday by Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman with President Truman's full backing.

The new rule will bar federal home mortgage guarantees where written restrictive covenants are placed on record after the effective date.

When the new anti-discrimination policy goes into effect, Perlman said, it will cover (1) FHA financing guarantees for single homes and housing projects, (2) G. I. loans for veterans housing, and (3) slum clearance and redevelopment projects authorized in the multi-billion dollar housing bill which congress approved last summer.

Federal housing officials pointed out, however, that the new regulations are not retroactive and will apply only in those cases where there actually is recorded a covenant after the key date against sale or rent of the property to persons on the basis of race or religion.

Franklin D. Richards, commissioner of the federal housing administration, told a reporter that very few of the nation's dwellings will be affected, but just how many he did not say.

"It will be an exceptional case," he said, "where property cannot receive federal mortgage aid."

The FHA does not make loans for purchase or construction purposes, but does insure the mortgages issued by other government agencies or private concerns.

In an explanatory statement sent out to a" FHA field offices, Richards said:

"These amendments do not attempt to control any owner in determining what tenants he shall have or to whom he shall sell his property."

He said the changes were being made to bring the FHA regulations "fully in line with the policy underlying the recent supreme court decisions to the effect that, although individxuals may be free to impose or comply with restrictive racial covenants, governmental support of such covenants is contrary to the public policy of the United States and cannot be enforced by state or federal courts."

Southern congress members meanwhile loosed sharp attacks on the administration action.

In New Orleans, Representative Boggs (D.-La.) declared the ruling is a "repudiation of the wishes of congress." He pointed out that previous efforts to write anti-discriminatory clauses into housing bills had been rejected by the lawmakers.

Boggs asserted that the entire FHA program in the south might be abolished by the government move. He said "this Truman-engineered move takes away any local jurisdiction."

Representative Hebert (D.-La.) also complained that the "administration is again taking advantage of the south."

Representative Rankin (D.-Miss.) termed it "one of the most dangerous communistic movements ever known."

"It is about time," he added, "congress exercised its power of impeachment in order to protect this nation from destruction at the hands of the enemies within our gates."

Senator George (D.-Ga.) said he had been expecting the move for some time.

"I think that hereafter all federal appropriations will be based on the same principle," he said.

Tank Towns Of America Are Vanishing From R. R. Scene

MOBILE, Ala., Dec. 3—(AP)—The Gulf, Mobile and Ohio railroad is putting to the torch 300 steam locomotives, and erasing an American byword—Tank Town. The railway has become completely diesel.

Winding up a $60,000,000 modernization program, the railroad is cutting its old coal burners into useful junk at steam engine graveyards at Jackson, Tenn., and at Bloomington, Ill.

The numerous water tanks which the rail system built to keep its 300 iron horses running are being destroyed, too.

Diesels take water through hoses at stops hundreds of miles apart. "Steamers" had to get a drink every 50 miles. The term "Tank Town" had its derivation from the picturesque barrel-shaped water tanks.

The replacement of steam engines with diesels began on the GM&O in 1935. It ended at Columbus, Miss., recently when engineer J. A. Wood climbed from the cab of his freight locomotive for the last time.

It was the last steam engine on a regular run. When Wood stepped into the cab of a nearby diesel, the GM&O says it became the first major line railway to achieve complete dieselization.

The 300 veterans have been replaced by 231 diesels. The roundhouses in which they were groomed for smoking, wailing runs through seven states are becoming prosaic factories, or being converted to other uses.

While the iron horses go to the scrap heap, their former engineers and firemen go to school to learn diesel operations.

Less romantic about the old engines than tank town lads who thrilled to their thundering passage, the crews like the change.

For a hot cab, filled with the heat of a firebox and the hiss of steam, they trade a comfortable, glass-enclosed work place. They start the diesels with the touch of a button.

The GM&O has salvaged some of the expense of the modernization program by selling the old engines as junk.

CHINESE DELAY DEFEAT IN U. N.

Vote On Resolution Condemning Soviet Union Postponed Three Days

LAKE SUCCESS, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Nationalist China staved off a certain defeat in the United Nations today by getting a three-day delay in a vote on her resolution condemning the Soviet Union and demanding general non-recognition of the Chinese Communists.

The chief Nationalist delegate, Dr. T. F. Tsiang, told the U. N. assembly's political committee he expects new instructions from his government. The committee was on the verge of voting when Tsiang asked the delegates to wait.

The committee then adjourned until Monday. Tsiang told newsmen he had no intention of withdrawing his strongly-worded resolution. But informed circles said they expected him to tone it down a bit to meet objections brought out in the debate.

Elsewhere in the U. N.:

1. The full assembly, driving toward final adjournment some time next week, met at Flushing Meadows. It overrode British objections and approved ten measures designed to throw more light on conditions among the world's non-self-governing peoples. The British made it clear they would not tolerate what they call interference in the way they run their colonies and trusteeship territories.

2. Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky called off plans to sail for home today because his deputy, Jakob A. Malik is ill. Malik has a heart ailment. British Minister of State Hector McNeil sailed on the Mauretania, the vessel Vishinsky had hoped to take.

3. Nashrollah Entezam, chairman of the special political committee, rebuked an Arab delegate, Ahmad Shukairy, of Syria, for a speech charging Israel seeks to "eradicate" Arab refugees. Entezam said such "offending words" only lead to counter attacks.

In the political committee debate, Salvador Lopez of the Philippines, said Nationalist China's plea for help against the Communists came too late. He said action should have been asked two or three years ago.

Sir Carl Berendsen of New Zealand said the vast majority of delegates around the table sympathized with Nationalist China, but asked what could the U. N. do. He said if the assembly intends to wash its hands of the China case, it should say so.

Britain's Sir Terence Shone answered Tsiang's slap at the British yesterdaw. Tsiang said the British, who have been reported preparing to recognize the Communist government, were jeopardizing the future of China's 450,000,000 people to protect a British stake of one billion dollars in China.

Shone replied this was "an entirely unjust allegation." He said he could not agree that the point of recognition would affect the vast majority of people. He said it could be argued that if the Chinese Communists control the destinies of the people it might be advantageous to have diplomatic representatives with the Communists.

PERCY GRAINGER FOUND GENIUS

Discovered Peasant That Wrote Music On Wall Paper Of His Room

A man who writes music on his own wall paper and then tears off nine feet of the manuscript for his visitor to take away with him, is Percy Grainger's idea of a real music lover.

The world renowned composer-pianist, who will appear in concert at Northeast Junior College on December 15, met the man who literally "tore off" music while he waited, during the time that he was carrying on his favorite pastime of folk song hunting in a little hamlet in Lincolnshire, England.

Grainger had heard that a man knew a version of a folk song in which he was particularly interested. The peasant was so enthusiastic over the idea of helping the young Australian to get what he wanted that he wrote the whole song on the wall and then ripped off nine feet of wall paper and gave it to Grainger.

The celebrated pianist still has this interesting "Snatch of Song" among his most cherished possessions.

Folk lore has always been an important phase of Grainger's work. Music critics have considered his arrangements of folk songs and folk dances "gems in music, uniting the singing love of the people with the highest standard of technical means in music."

Brunno Usher, Los Angeles newspaper critic, declared, "They are inspiring because their form does not predominate their contents, the message of the music. To hear him play them reveals their simplicity of charm, for under his fingers the elegy of Ireland, or the bouyant skill of the highland bagpipes speaks from the heart of one people to that of another. Thus Grainger is a universal musician, one who through the power of his individuality is among the few who claim that yet unconferred degree of 'doctor humanis causs.'"

Grainger's appearance in Monroe is being sponsored by the Music Club of Northeast Junior College. Concert tickets may be secured at Hewitt-Dew Piano Company, Grammont street, Hewitt-Dew Music Company, DeSiard street, and the music department, Northeast Junior College. Anyone may reserve tickets by telephoning James F. Monroe, head of the music department.

Persons residing in Ruston may secure tickets at the music department of Louisiana Polytechnic Institute, Mr. Monroe announced Saturday.

Cotton Production Will Be Cut One-Fifth

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The agriculture department announced today a division of the 1950 national cotton planting allotment of 21,000,000 acres among the various producing states.

The program is designed to cut production about one-fifth below this year's output to prevent accumulation of a top-heavy surplus.

The state shares range from 7,637,029 acres for Texas to 110 for Nevada.

Only growers planting within their allotments will be eligible for price support on cotton.

The allotments will form the basis of a marketing quota program if growers approve quotas at a referendum to be held December 15. If quotas are to go into effect they must be approved by at least two-thirds of the growing voting.

Under the quota program, each grower would be free to sell all the cotton produced on his allotted acreage. Sales from excess acres would be subject to a penalty tax equal to 50 per cent of the parity price of cotton, which would be about 15 cents a pound.

The vacuum bottle was invented by Sir James Dewar about 1892.

OAK RIDGE CHURCH IS SCENE OF IMPRESSIVE WEDDING RECENTLY

The First Methodist Church in Oak Ridge, La., was the setting of the wedding November 18, at 8 o'clock in the evening, of Miss Una Lee Colson daughter, of Mrs. J. F. Colson, and the late Mr. Joseph Franklin Colson, of Oak Ridge, to Mr. Charles Robert Shelton, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Shelton, of Gallion. The double-ring ceremony was read by Rev. S. P. Emanuel in the presence of a large concourse of friends and relatives.

Tall ribbon linked baskets of white chrysanthemums and fern were placed against a background of southern smilax. The altar was centered with an open Bible and outlined with burning candles set in rosettes of daisy chrysanthemums. Pews for the family were marked with white satin bows.

Miss Gloria Carroll played a concert of pre-nuptial music. She accompanied Mr. James Rolft who sang "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life." The traditional wedding marches were used and "Indian Love Call" was played softly during the ceremony. At the close, Mr. Rolfe sang "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride's only attendant was her niece, Miss Mary Nell Colson, who wore a gown of pink satin with fitted bodice and short capped sleeves. She wore a bandeau veil of white and short white mitts. She carried a colonial bouquet of miniature chrysanthemums with blue streamers.

Mr. Norwood Hudson of Gallion was best man. Mr. William Earl Nolan and Mr. Samuel Whithorne served as ushers.

The bride, who was escorted to the altar by her cousin, Mr. William Nolan, was lovely in a dress of ice blue crepe and lace. Her shoulder-length veil of white nylon fell from a small bandeau. She wore white lace mitts and carried a white Bible topped with a purple throated white orchid surrounded by split carnations and satin streamers.

Mrs. Colson was gowned in a dress of navy blue crepe with matching hat. Her corsage was of white chrysanthemums.

Following the ceremony an informal reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Nolan. Specimen Lavender stock and purple chrysanthemums in beautiful arrangements decorated the entrance hall and living room. In the dining room the stock and chrysanthemums were white.

Mrs. Jack Nolan greeted guests at the door. Miss Marnell Shelton, of Gallion, sister of the groom, was in charge of the bride's book placed on a candle-lit table in the hall. Mrs. G. R. Younse, of Monroe, ushered guests into the living room where Mrs. Nolan and Mrs. Colson received with the bridal party. Miss Gloria Carroll showed guests to the dining room.

The bride's table covered with a lace cloth was centered with a silver epergne of white miniature mums balanced on each side by tall white tapers in matching candle holders. Mrs. Robert Hatcox was in charge of the punch bowl at one end. The tiered cake, surmounted with a miniature bride and groom under a wedding bell, was placed at the other end. Here, after the cake had been cut by the bride and groom, Miss Angie Williams, of Ruston, presided. Serving in the dining room were Miss Carolyn McDaniel, of Mer Rouge, Miss Ruth Herron and Miss Eugenia Valentine. Assisting in the courtesies were Mrs. A. B. Carroll, Mrs. J. L. Whitborne and Miss Elma Carter, of Mer Rouge. The girls wore chic arrangements of flowers on white velvet ribbons in their hair. Corsages for the ladies were of white chrysanthemums.

The bride, for traveling, changed her wedding dress for a suit of slate blue gabardine with which she wore black accessories and the orchid from her bridal bouquet.

The couple left for a honeymoon trip to an unannounced destination and on their return will reside in Mer Rouge, La.

IMPRESSIVE BATON ROUGE WEDDING IS OF INTEREST IN THIS SECTION

The Capitol room of the Heidelberg hotel in Baton Rouge was the setting recently for a large gathering as many friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. James Graves Sherman met there for the reception honoring the couple after their wedding in a 5:30 o'clock ceremony.

The Rev. Philip Werlein officiated at th service, held in St. James Episcopal Church.

The bride, the former Sherry Ann Root, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert L. Root, while the groom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. D. O. Sherman of Columbia.

White chrysanthemums and gladioli were used with ivy in the church decorations.

Halsey Werlein lighted the candles for the service, while Mr. Buddy Stuart served as vocalist and Miss Phyllis Werlein as organist. Nuptial music included the "Lord's Prayer" and "Because."

Champagne Satin Gown

To set off her ballerina-length gown of champagne satin the bride wore a bar pin of platinum set with diamonds. The pin had been a wedding gift of her father to her mother.

A cameo ring which had been sent the groom's mother from Germany by her husband also was worn by the bride. A six-pence for luck was loaned her by Mrs. Emile Roques.

An exquisite handkerchief of linen and lace brought from Switzerland by the bride's aunt, Dr. Adele Hampton of Miami, Fla., formed the background for the bride's bouquet of white stock and tulle clustered around a white orchid.

A fitted bodice of black imported lace over satin formed a striking effect against the champagne color of the rest of the bride's gown. With the dress she wore a bolero and short gauntlets of champagne satin.

A headband of feather-curled satin strips held in place her veil of champagne illusion. The champagne color was repeated also in her pearl earrings.

An old fashioned arrangement of tiny bronze chrysanthemums tied with green velvet ribbons was carried by the maid of honor, Miss Peggy Lunny of Franklin. She wore a cloche arrangement of ostrich feathers in a sea form shade matching her ballerina-length gown. The dress was made with a fitted bodice, Queen Anne's neckline and a full skirt cut with a front pleat.

Dr. Sherman was best man for his son. Mr. Wesley Root, Jr., and Mr. Norman Coates, Jr., of Columbia were ushers.

At The Reception

A three-tiered wedding cake topped with spun sugar chrysanthemums centered the bride's table at the reception held after the wedding.

A sheer cloth of appliqued organdy overlaid the table. Tall tapers in silver candelabra flanked the cake which was mounted on a silver lazy daisy and encircled with fern interspersed with lilies of the valley.

Arrangements of white and gold chrysanthemums were used with magnolia foliage to decorate for the reception.

The mother of the bride wore a gown of evening blue chiffon featuring a pin tucked bodice. Her black velvet hat was topped with an ostrich plume in the matching blue. Mrs. Sherman, mother of the groom, chose a gown of pink de mist wool crepe designed with pink rhinestone trim at the neckline. Her hat was of black velvet. Both wore orchid corsages.

After the cake was cut by the bride and groom it was served to the guests by Mrs. Wesley B. Root.

Soft music was played during the reception by Miss Betty Reed.

Tea girls included Miss Jerry Jamison, Miss Sydna Christianson, Miss Pat Hilsmeyer, Mrs. Ray Selig, Mrs. Emile Roques, Judy Wilkinson and Patricia Wilkinson.

Mrs. James O. Mueller of Franklin, the bride's grandmother, presided at the punch bowl and was assisted in serving by Mrs. Minnie Wallis, of New Orleans, the bride's great aunt. Also serving were Mrs. Hardy Edminston, Mrs. Lyle Elliot, Mrs. John Milton Root and Mrs. Leonard P. Root.

An antique wedding wishing dish of silver was used to hold the tiny squares of wedding cake tied with white satin ribbon and topped with lilies of the valley. These were served to the unmarried guests for "luck" by Mrs. E. E. Barnett.

Mr. Sherman and his bride left later for a wedding trip to the gulf coast.

For traveling the bride chose a nautical outfit. The royal navy wool gabardine jacket, cut on long fitted lines, was accented with white wool bands on the cuff and edging the collar. The skirt was of white wool gabardine. With this she wore a royal navy velvet beret with a navy and white quill across the front. Her other accessories were of navy and she pinned a pink corsage at her shoulder.

The bride is a graduate of Baton Rouge High School and of the Coronet school of modeling in Miami, Fla. She is a senior in the college of commerce at the university where she is a member of the Delta Zeta social sorority.

Mr. Sherman is a graduate of Columbia High School and L. S. U. where he is now doing post gradutae work. He is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon social fraternity.

News From The Girl Scouts

We're delighted to learn that Brownie Troop No. 4, Mrs. Louis Turner, leader, packed baskets of fruit and candy and went to pay a visit to the folk at St. Joseph's Home. A. least 12 rooms were visited, and a highlight of the trip was the gathering together of a group in the sun room while several members of this troop played musical selections at the piano. Members of this troop are Susan Austin, Corey Sue Turner, Betty Hines, Judith Harrison, Judy Paul, Jo Lockhart, Marie Nelson, Patsy Gully, Sandra McBride and Shirley Richardson.

Troop 27, Intermediates, Mrs. N. L. Huckabee, leader, completed their bicycle badges recently by riding all the way to Selman Field. Nineteen of them! Upon arriving at the field, Mr. Joseph, manager, very kindly took them in hand and explained all visible parts of an airplane. This was quite an experience for the girls, who ended their visit with a picnic lunch at the field.

Troop 17, Intermediate, Mrs. Frances Peterson, leader, celebrated its birthday last Monday with a "pot-luck" party. Each member brought her favorite food for refreshment. The menu resulted:

"Sugar 'n spice and everything nice" such as candy, gingerbread men, doughnuts, cookies, cake, and cold drinks; only one, whose tooth was possibly not so sweet, favored the party with sandwiches. Besides these luscious treats there was a large chocolate birthday cake with a fat pumpkin candle on it. This was indeed a real party!

Girls of Intermediate Troops, 1, 31, 26, 17, 32, 23, 27, 14, and 6, helped with the Salvation army Christmas kettles yesterday.

Girls of Troop 6 are living up to their motto of "Be Prepared" by working on the first aid badge under the direction of Mrs. Harold L. Reinhardt. Their leader, Mrs. F. J. Brennan, says the girls are so fascinated by the bandaging and artificial respiration that they look forward to Mrs. Reinhardt's visits.

Mrs. DeMott Fisk, program chairman, has asked us to announce that girls who have been chosen to represent their troops on the Christmas carol program are to meet with Mrs. F. J. Willey in the recreation room at the First Baptist Church on St. John street, Tuesday afternoon, December 6, at 4:15, for the first practice.

LARGE CROWD AT SORORITY DANCE

The Beta Sigma Phi "Turkey Trot" was a complete success, according to Miss Melvyn Tucker chairman of the ticket sales committee.

The dance, held Saturday, was sponsored by the group for the benefit of the Red Shield Community Center building fund, to which the sorority made a pledge of $1,500 last April.

The ballroom, decorated in the sorority's colors of black and gold, was centered by overhanging gold-spangled Greek letters signifying Beta Sigma Phi. The crowd arrived early to hear the excellent music of the Debonnaires who had lovely Miss Jane Hill as their vocalist.

One of the highlights of the evening was the intermission entertainment furnished by the Clarice and Goldah Roan school of dancing. An exceptionally well-planned and well-executed show, the program included such numbers as a "Spanish Tap," an "Adagio Dance," "Can-Can Dancers," a 10-year-old "Sophie Tucker," and tiny twin tap dancers. The Misses Roan and the dancers were highly complimented on their most entertaining program.

All in all, the members of the sorority and their dance guests agreed upon one thing—another successful and highly entertaining dance by the Beta Sigma Phis.

The rose is the favorite flower of the western world; the chrysanthemum, of the Orient.

Article of Faith No. 4. "We believe that the first principles and ordinances of the Gospel are: (1) faith in the Lord Jesus Christ; (2) repentance; (3) baptism by immersion for the remission of sins.

(a) "Faith in the Lord Jesus Christ" is essential because in Heb. 11:6 we are told that "without faith it is impossible to please Him (God)" and Acts 4-12: tells us that there is no one else we can have faith in and gain salvation.

(b) "Repentance" is essential because this is an important step toward getting forgiveness of sin and Christ said "except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish."

(c) "Baptism by immersion for the remission of sins" is the way set forth by Christ through example and teaching and is an unchangeable law of God. Without "baptism by immersion," in the way appointed by Christ, there can be no remission of sins and without the remission of sins in this appointed way there can never be any forgiveness for those sins.

(d) "Laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost" is clearly set forth in Acts 8:14-17 and unless a person is born of the spirit he can not enter into the Kingdom of God.

The Sabbath school attendance is good. Are YOU regular in your attendance? If YOU will attend today it will not be long until our goal is reached, which is 300. The leadership of all classes will be happy to have you, and your children will take most seriously your religion.

"Congregational Victory Assured" is the subject of the morning message. The "status quo" cannot be maintained. The church is their going forward or backward. It is not hard to determine which direction the church is going. And to guarantee perennial progress we are thinking today.

"The Tests of Love" is the theme of the evening message. It pertains t othe kind of people we are to be as believers in the Christ. If we are like Him then we are more than conquerers and evincing regeneration.

A hearty welcome awaits you at all hours of worship.

CALHOUN HIGH ON ACCREDITED LIST

Gains Membership In Southern Association Of Schools

Word has been received from Houston, Tex., that the application of Calhoun High School for membership with the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools had been accepted by that group. This news was a fitting climax to the study of the school that had been made by the faculty of Calhoun High School.

About a year ago the faculty of Calhoun High School began a study of the school and its many and varied problems. To help in this study the faculty used "Evaluative Criteria" published by the cooperative study of secondary school standards. After having made a complete study of the school, a visiting committee came to Calhoun on November 7. This committee spent two days in class visitation and reviewing the self-evaluation made by the members of the faculty. The visiting committee gave an oral report to the faculty and school board officials and a written report to the Louisiana committee of the association.

The Louisiana committee made a study of this report along with the application that had been sent in by the school. This application had been approved by the Ouachita parish school board. The Louisiana committee also made a report to the reviewing committee of the southern association that met in Houston. From this committee a report was sent to the commission on secondary education and then on the association as a group. Since all of the groups that made a study of the reports concerning the application of Calhoun High School recommended that Calhoun be accepted, the association placed Calhoun High School on its accredited list.

Being on the accredited list of the southern association will mean much to the future graduates of Calhoun High School.

We Might Be Able To Have Atomic Cake And Eat It Too

By Frank E. Carey

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—We'll be able to eat our atomic cake and have it too if the atomic energy commission's projected "experimental breeder" is a success.

The commission hopes the proposed device will create more atomic material of the type used for bombs and peaceful uses than it consumes as fuel to keep going.

Into the thing, to spark the breeding process, would go some precious fissionable stuff from which atomic energy comes—along with a quantity of material which is not fissionable.

If the experiment works—and the scientists who designed it on paper are confident that it will—it will conceivably lead to full-scale production "breeders" with these results:

1. Greatly easing the scarce-supply situation on atomic materials, bringing into play potential sources that have been tapped but little up to now.

2. Relieving at least the economic problems confronting researchers who hope to develop atomic energy for industrial power in a practical way.

That is, if a power plant could generate new atomic fuel in the same operation that heat for electric power was produced, as the "breeding" system might do. It would be a mighty efficient operation.

3. Even if we were confronted with a war—and the necessity for keeping our atomic bomb stockpile at a maximum—breeding would conceivably assure maintenance of non-military uses of atomic energy.

4. The ability to create atomic materials would perhaps assure development of atomic energy machines for propelling ships and aircraft—even if disappointments are encountered in research now under way. Greater availability of atomic materials would allow repeated efforts in the face of such set-backs.

To understand this "breeding" idea, you have to recall that in nature, uranium exists in two forms. One kind is called U-235, the hot stuff that can be used to make bombs. The other kind is called U-238. The latter is 140 times more prevalent in nature than is U-235 but unfortunately it cannot be used directly as an atomic material because it's not "fissionable"—that is, its atoms can't be "split" to release atomic energy.

But U-238, by a complicated process, can be ultimately converted to another element—called "plutonium"—which is an atomic material.

That's the way the AEC makes plutonium" for bombs and other uses, but the rub is this:

In order to convert the U-238 they have to consume some precious U-235 to start the atomic "fire" going. It's a case of burning Peter to produce Paul.

The AEC has never disclosed the efficiency of its plutonium-producing process, but you can bet that if they were already producing more fissionable material from a given process than they put in to start the reaction, they wouldn't be bothered about "breeding."

In the breeding experiments, they are going to try to achieve a net gain of plutonium by utilizing U-238 in combination with a fissionable material

Dr. Lawrence Hafstad, a commission scientist, said that if the breeding tests pan out the way the designers of the device expect, this is conceivable:

That the world's total supply of U-238—which is 140 times more prevalent than U-235—could eventually be converted to atomic hot stuff.

Another material which would come into great prominence if breeding is perfected is the metal "thorium" in nature.

Thorium is not in itself a fissionable material, but with the aid of such a material, it can be converted to uranium-233, which, like U-235 and plutonium, is fissionable.

MILLSAPS WINS LOCAL TROPHY

Captures Loving Cup For Making Biggest P.-T. A. Membership Gains

The P.-T. A. membership cup was presented to Millsaps for the greatest percentage increase in membership at the regular meeting of the Twin City Council P.-T. A. Thursday, December 1. Mrs. D. B. Martha gave a recitation with a spiritual emphasis as the council is observing "Spiritual Education Month."

Mrs. C. P. Guerriero, Twin City Council P.-T. A. membership chairman, presented the P.-T. A. membership cup to Mrs. E. T. Stack, membership chairman of Millsaps P.-T. A., and Mrs. S. M. Burford, president of Millsaps P.-T. A. Millsaps showed a 46 per cent increase in membership over that of last year.

In the interest of "Spiritual Education Month" Mrs. D. B. Martha, teacher at Central Grammar School, was introduced to the assembly by Mrs. M. L. DeFreese, director of extension, Louisiana P.-T. A. Mrs. Martha recited a beautiful story of sacrifice which received a reward with these words:

"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

The story also revealed a thrilling love story and engagement of a young couple, Elizabeth and Phillip, who through circumstances had to wait some years for their marriage; and then at the feast following the wedding ceremony, the calamity of running out of wine, which brought forth the miracle of Christ of changing the water into wine.

The Twin City Council P.-T. A. voted to help with the Christmas Kettles of the Salvation Army.

Mrs. James Larkan, fifth district director, announced plans to charter a Pullman car for the trip to Long Beach, Calif., for the national P.-T. A. convention, with hopes of filling it with delegates from the fifth district.

Mrs. Fagan Cox announced that December 15 was deadline to have dues sent into the state office. Those units that have not done so, to take care of this matter immediately.

Mrs. Julius Irving, Twin City P.-T. A. council president, announced that Mrs. J. K. Butler, Louisiana P.-T. A. state convention chairman, was unable, due to a death, to be present at this meeting as scheduled but would be here for the January meeting, at which time plans would be discussed for the state P.-T. A. convention which will be held in Monroe.

WE MUST AND WILL WITHIN THE SHORTEST TIME POSSIBLE REDUCE OUR INVENTORY AND HERE'S WHY PROFIT IS OF NO CONCERN . . .

Delta is growing fast . . . growing like a cream-fed kitten. Takes plenty of money to operate a business this size, too. And . . . you can easily get jammed up AS WE HAVE DONE. We bought too much stock . . . too late to cancel some of it. It rolled in . . . came from everywhere . . . jammed our store. Takes money to pay for it. We're in a jam so's to speak with too much inventory and WE WOULD RATHER TURN THE MERCHANDISE INTO CASH THAN KEEP THE STOCK. We consider it GOOD BUSINESS—a good investment—to sacrifice our stocks for cash. Any business can't survive without making a profit—that's true. But—a few days of NO profit in a year won't hurt anybody. It will pay you to get the cash—borrow it—take it out of savings and take advantage of this sale. This is one time when CASH talks turkey in a BIG WAY. ONE TIME WHEN YOU . . . THE PUBLIC . . . CAN BUY ON THE SAME BASIS WE DO . . . AT WHOLESALE and LESS than WHOLESALE. Just like going to the factory and getting it shipped direct. All we want is CASH and we're willing to forget the profit to get it. Have you got it? Well . . . come on and we'll talk business.

PERHAPS NEVER AGAIN WILL CASH BUY SO MUCH FOR SO LITTLE

Ice Show Participant Entertains Optimists

The Optimist Club was entertained Friday at their luncheon by Jack Cooper, musical director of the Ice Capades now playing at the Neville High School.

Cooper was introduced by Max Eisen who is the publicity manager of the same show. Cooper rendered several vocal selections and sang his own composition, "Counting." The club applauded the program which was in charge of Optimist Gochenour.

President Tommy Agnew turned the meeting over to Optimist Sylvan Masur, chairman of the dance committee. The Optimist Club is sponsoring a dance December 30, 1949 at Selman Field Officers Club, Jerry Lane and his orchestra playing for the occasion. Optimist Masur urged all committees to get behind this dance which incidentally is the first dance the Optimists have ever sponsored. All profits derived from the sale of tickets will be used to defray the cost of the club's Boys Week program.

Two guests were present, Roy Rickerson and Jack Matthews.

Uncle Has Nephew Put Under Arrest

JONESVILLE, La., Dec. 3.—(Special)—An affidavit for the arrest of Richard Mercer of Epps was sworn out at Sheriff Fred Fairbank's office Monday by Mercer's uncle, A. K. Mercer of Sicily Island.

The elder Mercer stated that he was beaten and thrown out of his nephew's car on Friday night in the vicinity of Manifest.

Early Saturday morning, his groans attracted the attention of Truett Doughty, who drove him to Harrisonburg, where they contacted State Policeman J. Y. McGuffee.

Richard Mercer was arrested in Jena last week end for drunken driving and is presently in jail there, Fairbanks said. When he is released he will be turned over to Catahoula officials.

Christian Science To Be Discussed

A free lecture on Christian Science will be given in the Ouachita Parish High School auditorium December 6 at 8 p.m.

Christian Science lectures, it is explained, provide a way for people to learn facts about this religion from an authoritative source. For example, the lecturer, who will speak next Tuesday night, and who is Will B. Davis, C.S.B., of Chicago, Ill., is a member of the board of lectureship of the mother church, the First Church of Christ Scientist in Boston, Mass.

The First Church of Christ Scientist of Monroe is sponsoring this lecture and the public is cordially invited to attend.

C. Y. A. WILL BE IN SUNDAY MEET

Session This Afternoon Scheduled In College Place Church

The College Place Baptist Church will today be host to the Christian Youth Association of the Twin Cities. This inter-denominational young people's organization will hold its December meeting this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Max Dillingham, vice-president of the C. Y. A., will be in charge of the program at the meeting. Christmas activities will be discussed in the business session of the meeting as well as the planning of the Easter Sunrise service which is sponsored by this group. It is expected that there will be a bigger and better Easter service this year than ever in past years.

The work of the Christian Youth Association is shared by the youth of all denominations in the Twin Cities. Officers are chosen for their broad mindedness and ability to work with other groups than their own.

All interested young people are invited to attend the meeting and any churches that have not in the past worked with this group can do so now by sending representation to the meeting that is held this afternoon.

Bernice Youth Injured On Hunt

BERNICE, La., Dec. 3.—(Special)—James Larkin Denny, 18, suffered a badly mangled right hand in a hunting accident Thursday at a duck blind six miles from town near Corney Bayou.

He had his gun leaning on a tree and as it started to fall he tried to rescue it, when it went off and the charge struck his right hand. The right side of his face also was badly burned and right eye damaged.

He was rushed to a hospital in Ruston, where he is still in serious condition.

U. S. Cool To Nehru's Bid

By Sigrid Arne
(A. P. Newsfeatures Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON—The most recent request for American help comes from India. It was made by Pandit Nehru while he was here. Nehru wanted to swap American wheat for Indian manganese (used for toughening steel) but State Department experts are still vague about how he wanted to do it.

U. S. trade experts would be willing to listen if they felt that we could ship wheat for manganese, dollar for dollar and month by month. But Nehru was not clear about it. Then, from New Delhi, the Indian minister of finance, Dr. John Matthai, seemed to make it more clear. He thought India might get American wheat on some sort of lend-lease arrangement.

That seems to mean here that India would like our wheat as soon as possible—"on the cuff," as one state department man says—with payment in manganese coming when convenient for the Indians. The idea leaves the state department somewhat cold, and for several reasons.

Such help, one expert says, would open the gate for U. S. aid to any nation where the living standard was not as high as ours. That just about takes in the world.

Up to this point the U. S. has limited aid to nations which didn't have enough to sell abroad, to pay the bills for what they needed to buy. That doesn't seem to be true of India. It has plenty of goods for sale that have always found a ready market both here and in other nations. Actually, for years on end, India has sold more abroad than it has brought. Its foreign trade has been so good that the Indian money, the rupee, has been more stable in value than a good many of the European currencies ever since World War I.

America has bought big yearly amounts of goods from India. Take 1946. The commerce department reports in that year the U. S. took $91,000,000 worth of jute; $16,000,000 worth each of pistachios, cashews, and manufactured jute; $15,000,000 worth of hides; $11,000,000 worth of lac for paint bases; $10,000,000 worth of cotton, and 9,000,000 worth each of goat skins, leather and wool. America still wants those products, and some U. S. experts feel that India could ship them in return for whatever wheat it wants.

There are other problems about the Indian bid, state department says. If the U. S. takes more manganese from India it may have to cuts buying in Brazil—and it is just as interested in helping along a healthy economy in Brazil.

U. S. experts are not too certain that India can actually produce enough manganese to match the amount of wheat it wants, and they are less certain the Indians can deliver it to U. S. docks.

Further, India's neighbor, Pakistan, has a wheat surplus right now. But the price to India went up when many nations devalued their monies. India cut the rupee value, but Pakistan didn't. India's move meant it had a better bargaining position in trying to sell its goods abroad, but India is so unwilling to pay the price of Pakistan wheat that trade between the two nations has almost come to standstill.

Even if Indian were to get all the American wheat it needs, U. S. political experts would have to take into consideration India's tremendous birth-rate. Between 1930 and 1940 Indian's population jumped 5,000,000 a year, says the privately-endowed Population Reference Bureau. In dealing with a nation where poverty is so great that famines are recurrent experts here suffer a feeling of futility at the idea of dumping more food.

Musical Notes From The Choral Club

By Helen V. Agnew

Christmas lights sparkling in West Monroe—streamers still going up across the streets in Monroe, and aren't they pretty in the sunlight—high school students, and grownups, too, still celebrating the heart-warming football victory last Friday night. . . . Salvation Army kettles tinkling . . . the town chock-full of Christmas shoppers . . . we're all caught up in the breeziness of the Christmas month.

Did you see the ice show this past week end? Grand, wasn't it! I've been wishing for some time we could have something like that coming to Monroe regularly, but I'd put it aside as a forlorn hope, since we don't have a large municipal auditorium. But I thought they did awfully well considering the stage and auditorium were hardly planned for such a spectacle.

We seem to have quite a few people on the sick list—hope there have been a lot of recoveries by now. Jean Zeigler missed last Monday because of illness. . . . Mr. Hinton and Ann made it to rehearsal, but they came straight from the hospital where Mr. Hinton's father has been in critical condition. . . . We missed Mrs. J. F. Brothers. . . . Hope she isn't sick too. But the best I've ever heard of—did you know Shirley Tousineau had an appendectomy just a week ago last Monday—and she was back at rehearsal Monday night! That's real interest for you. We're so proud of Shirley.

The date has been set for the concert—December 20, at Junior College—8:00 p.m. Tell all your friends. There will be more in the papers about it next week.

Our director gave us a little bonus this past week, by calling off the Thursday night rehearsal. We're glad he is so pleased with the progress we're making toward the concert. But please, don't any of you folks think that means you're excused from the Monday night rehearsals. We'll be looking for everyone tomorrow night, down at the Educational Building of the First Baptist Church. Don't disappoint us.

Training Union Meeting Monday

JONESVILLE, La., Dec. 3.—(Special)—Baptist young people from over Catahoula and several adjoining parishes will meet at the Baptist Church in Harrisonburg next Monday night. The occasion will be the annual Baptist Training Union meeting of the Ouachita Association.

Jesse Whitlock of Sicily Island is BTU director for the association.

The program will include "A Training Union Study Course in Every Church in 1950," by C. E. Prudhomme of Manifest; "Sharing the Training Union With Others" by Devere Sanson of Wildsville; "Can We Revitalize Our Churches Through Spiritual Ministry?" by Rev. Larry Walker of Utility.

Special music is being planned for the meeting.

Fire Alarms

A Selman Field barracks was destroyed and another damaged by a grass fire which swept through them at 12:09 a. m. Saturday, according to Monroe firemen. Companies 3 and 5 extinguished the blaze.

At 1:55 a. m. firemen from company 4 extinguished a bridge fire in Bernstein park. The bridge was only slightly damaged, firemen said. It was reported to have caught fire from burning grass nearby.

All western hemisphere nations are expected to take a census in 1950.

JAMES REID IS RETURNING HERE

Lay Evangelist Will Have Charge Of Service In Methodist Church Dec. 11

James V. Reid, lay-evangelist of Fort Worth, Tex., has several engagements in Monroe on next week end. He will have charge of the evening service at the First Methodist Church, Monroe, on Sunday evening, December 11. On Saturday evening he will be guest at the Y. W. C. A. home on Jackson street. At 7:30 Saturday evening Mr. Reid will present a program at the Memorial Methodist Church.

Mr. Reid is well known in this area where he has appeared on several different occasions. Last year he preached at the Memorial Presbyterian Church in West Monroe, at the Nazarene Church, West Monroe, and at the First Methodist Church, Monroe. His experiences as a missionary and evangelist into the Central American countries and the West Indies Islands are presented in colored motion pictures which depict journeys among the natives and into the mission churches in these areas. Mr. Reid has made thirteen journeys into these Central American countries, and is now preparing for his fourteenth journey, sailing from New Orleans on December 30.

Many Monroe persons who know Miss Julia Reid of Lake Charles will be interested in knowing that one of Mr. Reid's motion pictures will show Miss Reid in her work in Cuba during the past year. Miss Reid has spent many years in Cuba, and in other mission centers, and her friends here will be happy to see pictures of her latest work. On Mr. Reid's journey last year he had the opportunity of taking these pictures of this mission center.

Mr. Reid has recently spent several weeks in the Alabama conference with Bishop Purcell in interest of The Advance for Christ program, showing pictures and giving first-hand information on work in Costa Rica.

Friends are invited to hear Mr. Reid, by attending the services at Memorial Methodist Church on Saturday evening, December 10, or services at The First Methodist Church Sunday evening, December 11, at 7:30 o'clock.

India Will Avoid All Power Blocs

NEW DELHI, India, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru said tonight India would not join any power bloc because it would worsen the world's present fear complex.

In a 30-minute broadcast talk to the nation Nehru told his countrymen his United States tour resulted in "tremendous benefits" to himself and India.

He said of his American tour:

"There have been no treaties, no commitments, no binding agreements, but something more substantial than all these—something everlasting."

For himself, he continued, the tour resulted in the double benefit of "a closer view of that great country" and an opportunity to look at India from the outside.

He said that while India was respected abroad because of Mohandas K. Gandhi, the people inside India tended to forget the assassinated spiritual leader and his teachings.

Restocking Jones Bayou With Fish

JONESVILLE, La., Dec. 3.—(Special)—Game fish from shallow bodies of water in the vicinity of Larto Lake are being hauled by state wildlife agents to restock Jones' bayou, according to George Hudson, agent of the department of wildlife and fisheries.

Larto Lake lies in the southern part of Catahoula parish and Jones' bayou is some 10 miles down Black river from Jonesville.

Hudson said the fish are being transported in tank trucks built especially for the purpose. Each year the water level of a number of lakes and streams in this vicinity goes so low that it is necessary to remove fish and plant them elsewhere to keep them from dying.

SEEK PERMIT FOR FEEDER AIR LINE

Arkansas Company Asks Permission To Operate On Regional Basis

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Dec. 3.—(AP)—The Northwest Arkansas Times said today an application for a permit to operate a new feeder air line service out of here to Arkansas and five surrounding states has been sent to Washington.

The application has been submitted, the paper said, to the Civil Aeronautics board by the South Central Air Transport, Inc., (S. C. A. T.) of Fayetteville. This company operated an air service for a short time several years ago.

Raymond J. Ellis, president of the firm, said S. C. A. T. proposes to carry passengers, mail and freight over four routes and connect a number of smaller cities not now served by air transportation with major air terminals in Arkansas, Oklahoma, Missouri, Texas, Tennessee and Mississippi.

It is proposed to operate a dozen single-engined planes (Cessna) capable of carrying five passengers and a cargo. The ships have a cruising speed comparable to a DC-3, Ellis said.

The air terminals on Scat's proposed operation would be: Joplin and Springfield, Mo.; Oklahoma City and Tulsa, Okla.; Dallas, Tex.; Memphis, Tenn., and Jackson, Miss.

The proposed routes:

Route one, 472 miles: Tulsa to Memphis with stops at these intermediate points: Siloam Springs, Fayetteville, Fort Smith, Russellville, Hot Springs, Little Rock, Stuttgart, and Helena, Ark.

Route two, 431 miles: Joplin to Dallas, with stops at Rogers, Fayetteville and Fort Smith, Ark.; Poteau, McAlester and Hugo, Okla., Paris and Bonham, Tex.

Route three, 516 miles: Oklahoma City to Memphis, with stops at: Okmulgee, Muskogee and Talequah, Okla.; Fayetteville, Harrison, Batesville, Jonesboro and Blytheville, Ark.

Route four, 457 miles: Springfield to Jackson, with stops a: Harrison, Batesville, Little Rock, Pine Bluff and Monticello, Ark.; Greenville and Yazoo City, Miss.

Irrigation Project Pays Off For Wisner Farmer

By Otis Hassell
(World Staff Correspondent)

WISNER, La., Dec. 3.—An irrigation project in D. P. L. 15 cotton has paid off this year with over two bales per acre for L. A. Braswell, Wisner automobile and tractor dealer and farmer.

The irrigation project consists of 50 acres of a 280 acre farm located 5 miles west of Wisner.

Last fall after a very short cotton crop on this farm due to extremely dry weather, (he only picked three-fourths bale off of this 50 acres), Braswell built a reservoir out of earth down the center of this 50 acre field, which is also the highest ridge on the farm.

The resevoir is 40 feet wide and one-half mile long, can hold three million gallons of water and cost $1,250 to construct the resevoir.

Braswell then put down a well and installed a gasoline pump at one end of the resevoir at a cost of $700.00. This pump will fill the resevoir in approximately nine days. It is a 3-inch well with a 2 1/2-inch discharge and can pump 300 gallons per minute.

A subsoiler was used on this project to enable the ground to hold more moisture. The land was leveled and combed to perfection before planting. There was no cover crop planted on this ground last fall.

The cotton crop was fertilized with 48 units of nitrogen; 48 units of phosphate; and 48 units of potash on part of the project. 40 units of nitrogen; 40 units of phosphate; 40 units of potash, ,and a side-dressing of 16 units of nitrate soda was used on the rest of the project.

As every one knows, this spring and summer was very wet in northeast Louisiana. In some of the adjoining parishes the cotton crop was cut almost in half by the heavy rains.

An irrigation project this year looked foolish to lots of people, especially for cotton,, as it is considered a dry weather crop, but the result of this project showed that it really paid off. Braswell stated that during the growing season this year, there was one period of 21 days without rain. This was the first and only time he irrigated the cotton. The syphil method was used to take the water from the resevoir to the cotton land.

This irrigation project produced 110 bales of cotton averaging 504 pounds per bale or a total of 55,539 pounds lint from the project. Adjacent land under ordinary conditions made one bale per acre this year.

Vetch has been planted on the project and Braswell does not think as much fertilize will be needed next year as was used this year. Braswell plans to have a larger irrigation project next year. He intends to build another smaller resevoir and supply the water for it with the pump he now has. He will include 18 acres of sweet potatoes in the project next year.

Press Impressive Among Foreigners, Student Finds Out

By Gail Fowler

SEATTLE—If you want to impress some officious somebody in Europe, just flash the word PRESS. At least, that's what a Swedish student at the University of Washington learned this year while making a photographic trip through France, Belguim and Denmark.

And it brought chuckles to whimsical Jack Jarvis, night city editor of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, when Nils Fritzner, the student, told him about it on his return the other day.

Seems that before Nils headed for a summer in Europe he came across some of Jarvis' screwball cards. Jarvis has his own basement printshop as a hobby, and delights in issuing membership cards to such zany organizations as "The What's In It For Me Association," the "Don't Let Anybody Tell You Different Association" and scads of others, which he grinds out weekly. Most have "Press" printed along the end.

Jarvis had no idea that one which he gave to Fritzner would prove such an open sesame.

Nils was telling about it.

"We were in Copenhagen. There was a garden party, with the king and queen as guests. I wanted to get in to photograph the royal guests. The doorman said 'NO.' I flashed some credentials. The doorman happened to look at one card protruding from my billfold. The word Press stood out like a beacon. The doorman oh'd and ah'd, bowed from the waist, opened the door and fairly pushed me into the royal presence.

JACK JARVIS and his cards.

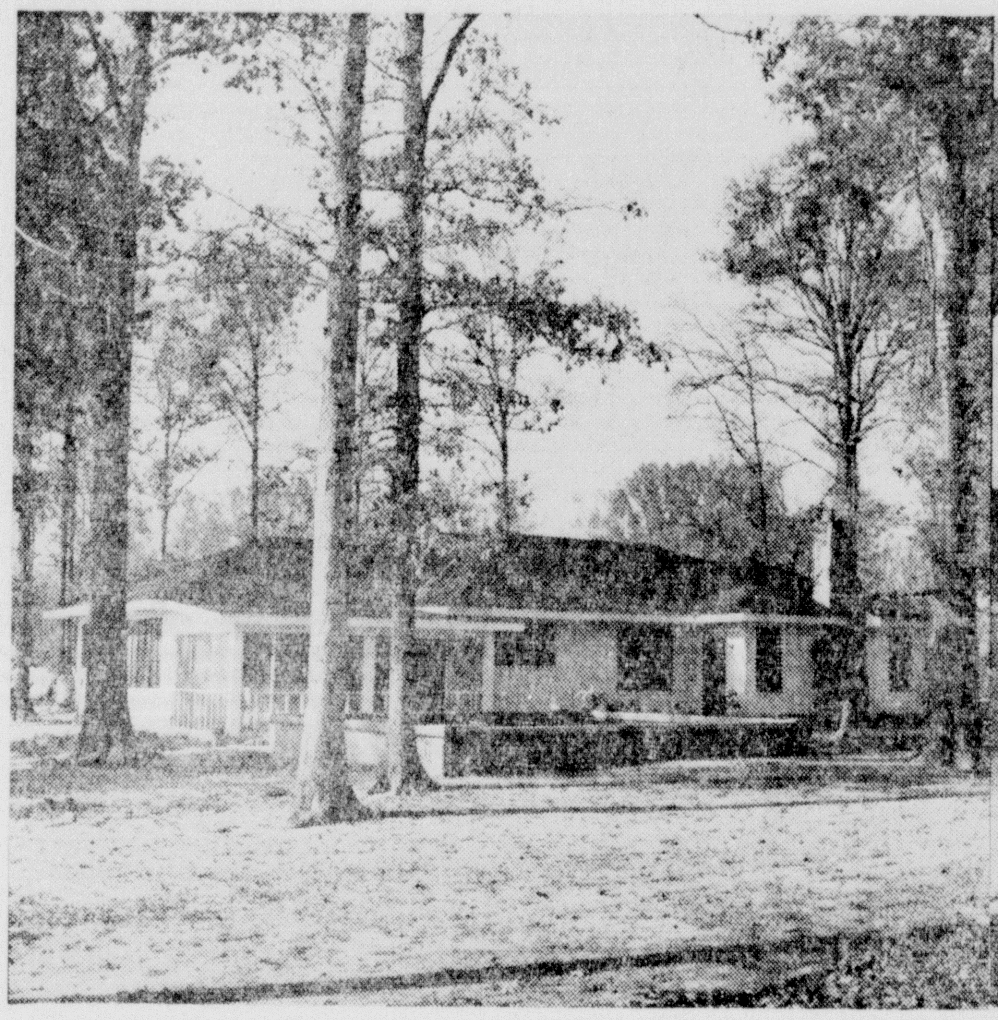
"From then on I was 'in' in a big way. Whenever I discovered that the person trying to keep me out of something didn't understand English, I flashed the card. Everyone knew the word Press. Officials at a sailing meet even put me aboard one of the boats so I could get better pictures."

In Belgium a customs official was going to hold his cameras. Out came the card. The customs man read the word Press and apologized.

Managements of Paris night clubs showered him with guest cards. They fell all over themselves to extend the courtesies to the "American press photographer."

Same thing atop the Arc de Triomphe. A guard demanded a fee for Nils to take photograps. Nils showed the Press to a gendarme. The gendarme then gave the guard the French equivalent of What For, for interfering with the "American press photographer."

ASWELLS LIVE IN HOME FISH BAIT BUILT



Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Aswell are sure proud of their new $11,000 home (above) two miles north of town on the Sterlington road. They say its the "house that fish bait built" because the money which has paid for the new structure was obtained entirely through the sales of worms and shiners. If you'd like to see the new house, why don't you drop by when the Aswells stage their "open house" between 8 a. m. and 8 p. m. Saturday? Modern India Turns To Past For Symbol

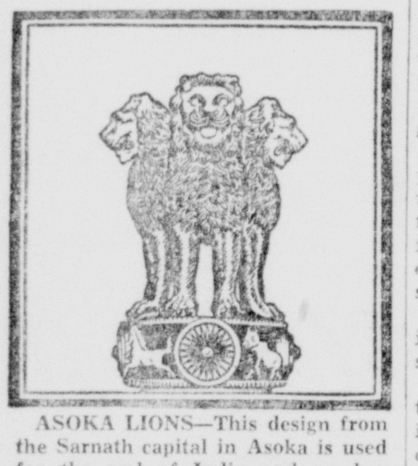
India is going back to her golden age for symbols on her flag, coins and seal. Torn by religious strife, she is turning to a religion which has declined to minor tsatus in her territory for the same symbols.

The Asoka pillar, the Asoka lions and the wheel of law also recall a great emperor and stress peace and virtue. They are used where America would use the eagle, Britain the lion.

Asoka, the emperor, ruled India from 264 to 228 or 227 B. C. He was the grandson of Chandragupta who founded the Maurya or Peacock dynasty. Chandragupta took provinces of India from Seleucus who was one of Alexander's successors.

When Asoka came to the Peacock throne, he ruled all but the southern tip of what is now India and much to the north which was never part of British India. Ruling while Rome was still rising to power, he was probably the most powerful man of his time. India still remembers him as a kindly, virtuous and efficient king.



ASOKA LIONS—This design from the Sarnath capital in Asoka is used for the seal of India and on her coins. The wheel of law below the lions' feet is also the design in the Indian flag.

In the ninth year of his reign, Asoka went to war. When he saw the horrors of war, he turned to religion. His work with the Buddhist faith has been compared with that of Constantine with the Christian. He made large grants to the Buddhists and encouraged their work. However, as far as India is concerned, Buddhism declined after Asoka. It is of little importance there.

There are many who feel that Asoka's personal religion was purely ethical with no theolcgy and no ritual. To help spread his faith and his precepts, he set up pillars in 14 different places in India. They were inscribed with texts and symbols.

It is one of these pillars, the Sarnath capital in Osoka, India, from which the symbols being used by the modern Indian state are taken.

The wheel of law was inscribed on the pillar and has been widely used since. It is a symbolic design said to designate the common man, purity and good sense. Modern India uses it as the central design in her flag.

New Windshield Glass Has Cut Down Headlight Glare

NEW YORK — (NEA) — A glassmaker has come up with a new automobile windshield glass that will take some of he sting out of the glaring headlights of oncoming cars.

Since "sealed beam" headlights were developed some years back, the average car's main lights have been so dazzling they are nearly always a great annoyance to motorists and often a serious danger on the roads.

To meet this problem at least part way, the Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Co. has produced a new glare-reducing safety plate glass for windshields. It has a slight bluish-green tint. Iron added to the raw material mixture largely does the trick.

The new glass has been road-tested and has been found to cut glare materially whether from headlights or the sun. No claim is made, however, that the product will do too much toward protecting a driver's eyes from the direct rays of a rising or setting sun.

Drivers who have used the glass say they don't particularly care any more whether oncoming cars at night dim their headlights or not. They say the tinted windshield softens the glare considerably.

Regular windshield glass allows 88 per cent of available light to pass through. Libbey's new product lowers this figure to 82 per cent. That is just four per cent above the minimum demanded by state laws for safety's sake.

The new glass has a second feature—it blocks about 15 per cent of the sun's heat-producing infrared rays.

Not too many may realize that doctors believe actual physical damage is done to the eyes by the direct rays of bright headlights. And according to the Automobile Club of New York, such glare can cause temporary blindness for as long as three seconds.

The National Safety Council says the high beams most drivers use on the roads constitute a major difficulty in night driving safety. "Annoyance due to glare is frequent in many accidents," it adds.

Connecticut found that in one year 3.5 per cent of his highway mishaps could be ascribed directly to blinding headlights. Illinois recorded a figure of around three per cent, and Minnesota and New Jersey of about two per cent. Most other states lumped these accidents with others caused by different kinds of obstructed vision.

Educating drivers to depress their high beams when approaching other cars on the road is a slow business, and police enforcement of state laws to that effect is almost impossible. There are too many violators.

MINE IS FAMILY AFFAIR

PINEY VIEW, W. Va.—(AP)—A family mining operation, representing more than 150 years of experience, produces an average of 50 tons of soft coal daily in this little southern West Virginia community. It's run by Wilson Smith and his seven sons—Jack, Orville, George, Russell, Lawrence, James and Earl.

Although joint owners and operators, they are members of Local Union 5878 of the United Mine Workers and abide by the work-hour regulations of the union.

The elder Smith has spent 48 of his 67 years in West Virginia mines. The service of his sons, ranging in age from 45 to 25, make up the balance of more than a century and one-half of experience.

Twin Falls In Carolinas Top Niagara Spill

By Alderman Duncan
(Associated Press Newsfeatures Writer)

WALHALLA, S. C.—Twin waterfalls, each higher than Niagara, spill down Blue Ridge Mountain fastnesses along the North Carolina-South Carolina border but surprisingly few people ever view their beauty. Not many more people know they even exist.

The falls, described by a U. S. Forest Service official as "the most spectacular in the Appalachians," are secluded in a remote section not accessible to the average traveler.

The falls are on the Whitewater river, which flows from North Carolina's Nantahala National Forest into South Carolina's Keowee river. The upper falls are about one mile north of the state line. The lower falls, three miles down the Whitewater's steep rapids, are well inside this state and are included in the Gen. Pickens division of the Sumter National Forest.

Both falls are more than 100 feet higher than Niagara. Their exact height is not known but forest service contour maps show the lower falls to be approximately 280 feet high and the upper falls possibly may be higher. Niagara Falls' top height is 167 feet.

The lower falls may be reached by a one-quarter mile hike from a small lodge at the end of an abandoned road, or trail, leading from a paved highway about 10 miles away. The upper falls are reached by a mountain road from Cashiers in Jackson county, N. C.

Besides being hard to reach, the falls probably also have been neglected because they were for many years on property of a maginal lumber company. The area only recently has been acquired by the forest service, which still is running preliminary surveys.

Residents hereabouts long have known of the wonderful fishing in the Whitewater. Native brook and rainbow trout are reported abundant. General knowledge of the falls goes back to at least 1826. They were described then by Robert Mills, noted South Carolina architect who also was a surveyor and geographer.

The only falls of greater height in the eastern United States are Georgia's Tallulah Falls, about 25 miles southwest.

Determination Triumphs . . .

Aswell Satisfied To Live In Home Built By Fish Bait

By Percy Fant

Wiggly earthworms and flipping minnows, figuratively speaking, have just completed an eleven thousand dollar home two miles north of Monroe on the Sterlington road.

It belongs to J. Vaden Aswell and his wife, Johnnie, who sold fish bait for eleven long years. From these sales the Aswells built their home and just because fish 'round these parts had a healthy appetite for worms and minnows.

This elaborate home that "fish bait built" has quite a story behind it, a story of, first, determination and hardship, then success.

The success was realized with the completion of the Aswells' new home, a modern dwelling with three large bedrooms, a shower room, a bathroom with all the latest toilet facilities, kitchen, dining room, living room and back and front porches.

The rooms' insides are walled with stained or painted knotty pine, with the exception of the living room, which has thorny locust walls. The house contains all the modern conveniences, large closets, electric lights, running water and a hallway which affords passage into all rooms in the home. Embedded in the living room's fireplace is an Indian tomahawk, which Aswell ran across at the Alabama landing on the Ouachita river near the Arkansas-Louisiana state line.

Above the fireplace in the living room on a mantel, are two strips of bark taken from the locust lumber which now go to make up the room's walls.

Outside, the house is constructed of board and batten and its chimney rises some ten feet off the roof. The chimney is made of rocks and petrified wood gathered by the Aswells from five different states. In front of the new house is a minnow pond, measuring twenty-two feet by twenty feet.

Aswell said he wanted a two-story construction, but his wife didn't.

"So," he chuckled, "we 'decided' on just one story."

Mrs. Aswell drew roughly 300 sketches of the new home in five years. She kept on drawing plans for their future home until she found a one-story affair that appealed to her husband.

How It Was Done

To quote Aswell: "We built the house with sacrifices and determination. A lot of nights we went to bed too hungry to go to sleep."

Both Aswell and his wife are 53. They were married in Ruston in 1938 and shortly after their marriage, they leased 34 acres of land two miles out of Monroe on the Sterlington road. After the five years was up, they purchased the home and land and recently, completed the construction of their new house.

Mrs. Aswell is the former Miss Johnnie Davis, of Choudrant, La.

Aswell, who said he's a wholesale and retail bait dealer, prior to his marriage, was in the sign business here.

Shortly after they moved into their two-room, wooden house back in July 1938, the Aswells went into the "minnow business."

Aswell stretched a sign across the highway. It read: "A Million Shiners. Let's Go Fishing."

"But I only had a couple of thousand shiners," he said later.

After the fish bait business began to pick up a bit, the couple journeyed to a worm farm in Tennessee to learn how to raise the wiggly fish feed.

Now they have well over ten million worms, all for fishermen's use.

Aswell catches his shiners in the river and sells them wholesale to firms in Ft. Worth, Texas, Memphis, Tenn., Jackson, Miss. and other points in the South.

"I wish I could catch all the shiners I could sell, but unfortunately, all I can take care of right now is my retail market," the bait seller said.

It is interesting to note that Aswell, with only an ax, cleared all but five acres of his 34-acre plot.

Fifty per cent of the lumber used in construction of the new house, according to Aswell, "I chopped down and took to the sawmill myself."

"I got the idea of the board and batten outside from a falling-down Negro shack five miles up the Ouachita river," he explained.

On the large front porch of the Aswell home is a 22-foot-long storage and freezer locker, jammed full with food, including vegetables and meat.

"We could live on what we have here for at least six months without going to town," Aswell said.

The family is supplied with water by a twelve hundred dollar water system.

Joann White, 14-year-old sophomore at Ouachita Parish High School and niece of Mr. and Mrs. Aswell, has been living with the Aswells since she was five. In the new home is a large, well-furnished bedroom which her aunt and uncle have put aside for their niece's use.

The Aswells have three children of their own: Mrs. Christine Dooley, of Athens, Tenn.; Mrs. Vadine Hyde, of Smith Port, Pa., and the Rev. Shelby Aswell, minister at the Arcadia, La., Baptist Church.

Want To See The House?

If you want to see the new home, just drop around next Saturday. That's when the Aswells are holding "open house" for the public. "Just anytime from 9 a.m. 'till 10 p.m.," Aswell said.

"We would like for everybody to see our new house," they said. "We're proud of it."

(Editor's Note: The Aswells are known to many of their friends as the Vajohns. This was a trade named the couple coined by taking the first two letters of Mr. Aswell's middle name and attaching to it the first four letters of Mrs. Aswell first name.)

Seminole Indians Are Relearning Lost Art

(Associated Press Newsfeatures)

MIAMI, Fla.—Seminole Indians are being re-taught their lost art of pottery making. A paleface, Vernon Lamme, is their instructor.

Florida's Seminoles came originally from the great Creek nation of Alabama and Georgia. In early colonial days, when English Georgia frequently fought Spanish Florida, the Creeks became divided. Some wanted to join the English against the Spanish, while others declared the Spaniards were their allies. Those Creeks who favored the Spnaish broke away and came to Florida.

The name "Seminole" means, in the Creek tongue, "the breakaways" or "runaways."

Creek Indians made handsome pottery ware. But the Seminoles found no clay in south Florida suitable for firing. They used sea shells and gourds for utensils. Pottery making became a lost art to them.

Lamme decided that the Indians could attain an additional source of income if they returned to pottery making. With Mrs. Lamme, he first interested Josie Jumper, a Seminole living on the nearby Dania reservation, who became his principal assistant.

Men and women, young and old, took up the art. They are taught to mold, fire and glaze, but designing is left up to the Indians' natural talent. Clay is shipped in.

Now the Indian handiwork is being sold to tourists, and some is being sent to northern markets.

American Indians used to build totem poles as high as 60 feet.

Tailless Comet Has Scientist Stumped

DENVER—A tailless comet is puzzling astronomers. Not because it has no tail, but because it doesn't run on time. These celestial expresses usually arrive on time almost to the second each time they return for a whirl around the sun.

The tailless comet is D'Arrest, named after a French astronomer who discovered it in 1851. It returns each six-and-two-thirds years, but each time a few hours late.

Dr. W. A. Recht, professor of mathematics and astronomy, and director of the Chamberlin Observatory, University of Denver, is watching for D'Arrest's next return, in June, 1950, to study the mystery of the little fellow's timing.

D'Arrest is one of a whole family of tailless comets, about 40 in number, all known as Jupiter's family, because this giant planet's gravitational pull is believed to have captured them and made them part of the solar system. There are a number of other families of tailless comets.

How they lost their tails is not certain. But the cause is probably visiting the sun too often. Comets, in elliptical orbits, fly close to the sun once each time around.

A comet's tail appears only when it is close to the sun. The tail is dust and probably gases, forced out of the comet's head by the pressure of sunlight.Presumably some of the dust and gas gets lost every time a comet sticks out its tail.

This loss is easy to realize when you remember that the lengths of comets' tails are enormous. In one of its visits to the sun the tail of the famous Halley's comet was estimated at 100,000,000 miles. That is farther than from earth to sun.

Comets' heads appear to be made of gravel and small stones, so widely separated that if the stones were marbles there would be about a dozen to a cubic mile. The heads may be thousands of miles in diameter.

D'Arrest's irregularity should be due to the gravitational pulls of the planets. But all the known pulls fail to explain.

If it proves that none of the ordinary forces can account for D'Arrest's tardiness, that will be a clue to something new and mysterious. There are, for example, theories that our solar system is expanding. Expansion might explain D'Arrest's delays. Should that be proven, then it would follow that this expansion is having some sort of effect on the earth too.

DENVER —(AP)— Novelist William MacLeod Raine does all right turning out western yarns but he admits he's no titan a sa real estate salesman.

In 1887 Raine's father bought 10 lots in the Cherry Hills section for $400. Since then father and son have paid out $100 in taxes. The other day the author sold them for the same price his father paid.

Says Cool Gasoline Is Cheaper, Weighs Less

MINNEAPOLIS—(AP)—Gasoline has little in common with ice cream, except that in each case one might be surer of getting his money's worth if he bought it by the pound.

Dr. Waldo Kliever, research director of the Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Company, has revealed that warm gasoline—like fluffy ice cream—weighs less per gallon; and you get correspondingly less fuel from it. So his tip to motorists is to do their gassing-up early in the morning instead of in mid-day heat when the gasoline is expanded.

In aviation, Dr. Kliever explained, where exact knowledge of remaining fuel is often vital, an electronic gauge is used which shows the fuel supply accurately, regardless of temperature variations

Czech Women Attempt To Push Up Work Quota

PRAGUE —(AP)— The Communist rulers of this "People's Democracy" have a sizeable women's Stakhanovite movement going here. Participants are the eager beaver workers who compete in exceeding their work quotas. One woman, in a textile factory, was tending 36 automaitc looms. She pledged herself to start work on another 12—or double the normal number.

Later she started to tend 60 looms, said the official Czech news agency. Only a few days later "Rude Pravo," Communist party organ, announced that a woman in another factory had broken the record and was handling 66 looms.

The first woman then declared she would start work immediately on an additional 12 looms, making a total of 72 and putting her ahead.

Fifty Years Of Science Has Substituted Tractor For Ox

By Robert E. Geiger
(Associated Press Newsfeatures)

WASHINGTON—In 50 years science and machines have just about doubled agriculture's ability to produce.

That's the score-card of farm experts summing up progress in the first half of the 20th century.

They estimate each acre of American land can produce 89 per cent more of the foods and fibed needed for human consumption than it could produce in 1900.

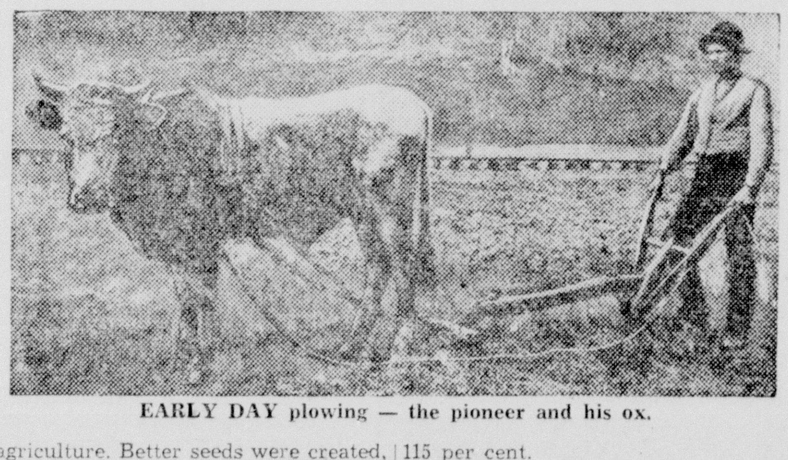
And because of mechanization the farmer himself is 115 per cent more capable of producing materials for human use than was the farmer of 1900.

Mechanization was well under way before 1900. This was the changeover from hand tools such as the scythe to horse-drawn machines like the mower. These animal-drawn machines made the farmer more efficient, but the animals themselves—mostly horses and mules—required hours of care, and many acres were needed to feed them.

In the early 1900s steam and gasoline vehicles began appearing on farms. This placed the farmer behind the steering wheel. It not only made the farmer more efficient but released additional acres for raising more food and fiber for human consumption.

While horses and mules were declining from around 30,000,000 head to about 8,000,000, farm tractors, trucks and automobiles were increasing from zero to 10,000,000.

In the past few years science has become a full-fledged hired hand of agriculture. Better seeds were created, more knowledge was uncovered about the use of fertilizers and insecticides, better animals were bred and more know-how was accumulated about how to grow crops.



EARLY DAY plowing — the pioneer and his ox.

In estimating the efficiency of land and farmers the statisticians add up to the total farm production. Then they subtract the products needed to feed the animals that supply farm power. That gives the eficiency factor in terms of the ability of land to produce needed foods and materials—for clothing, etc.

In 1900 this factor stood at 240 and now is around 455, an increase of more than 89 per cent. (The year 1870 was rated 100.)

The total farm output divided by the volume of agricultural effort (total hours worked) gives an estimate of the efficiency of each worker.

In 1900 this factor was 151 and now is around 325, an increase of more than 115 per cent.

Actually, fewer agricultural workers now are producing far more feed and materials than were produced in 1900—and from approximately the same number of acres of croplands.

Breaking down the increases that have taken place, the experts rate each improvement as follows:

1. About 30 per cent of the increase in supplies for human needs has come from acres no longer needed to feed horses and mules. Almost 60,000,000 acres were transferred from raising livestock feed to producing things for humans.

2. Most of the other 70 per cent increase comes from improved farm seeds and animals, from the increased efficiency of machines and improvements in farming methods.

Of the savings in manpower, one agriculture department expert says: If the farmers in World War II had used the same types of machines and methods commonly in use by farmers in World War I, it would have required 4,500,000 more farm workers to raise the crops this nation produced in 1944.

Miner Moans Fact That His Christmas Earning Stripped

By Jim Holton

LIBRARY, Pa., Dec. 3.—(AP)—A tall, gangling man and his plumpish wife stared coldly at a sign on a store window in this little coal mining community.

"Only 19 more shopping days till Christmas," it warned.

"So what?" the man grunted. "For us it's just nine more working days till Christmas. What shopping can we do?"

For those nine days this digger—and 480,000 of his fellow United Mine Workers members—will earn an average total of $139.50 each.

What he'll get to take home, though, probably will be little more than half of that.

Besides the usual deductions, his pay will get an additional paring because of debts which he accrued at the company-owned stores during the four coal strikes of 1949.

The miners' labor boss, John L. Lewis, pulled the bituminous workers out of the pits just momentarily in the last walkout. But he ordered them back only on a three-day week basis.

Altogether, the U. M. W.'s recurrent idleness this year has cost its members an average of $1,200 in wages. That is a whopping loss for men who invariably have large families and who seldom have any sizeable savings.

How do they feel about all this?

The real answer can't be documented because of the miners' usual close-mouthed attitude.

They have a stock answer for reporters:

"It could be worse."

That's for the record.

After their tongues have been loosened by a couple of beers in a neighborhood tavern some of them will venture a different sentiment—with assurances their names will not be mentioned.

This comment was typical:

"It's just no darned good. We'll just earn enough to keep up with the grocery bills. Maybe we'll have a little left for Christmas."

Many of them will be broke and in debt by them. But none of their families should go without toys or a good holiday meal.

Company stores will extend unlimited credit for these items—no matter what the individual's record of payments has been in the past.

"We'll see that they all have a Christmas," said J. S. Mebrasky, manager of the U. S. Steel Corp.'s union supply company store at nearby Sygan.

"Some of the boys already are pretty heavily in debt," he remarked. "And we'll have to watch them on some items. But they can have toys and food."

All the U. M. W.'s workers will toil only the first three days of each week, starting Monday. Anthracite diggers in eastern Pennsylvania have been working round the clock this week—their last for some time under the normal schedule.

Lewis has not indicated how long the short week will be in force.

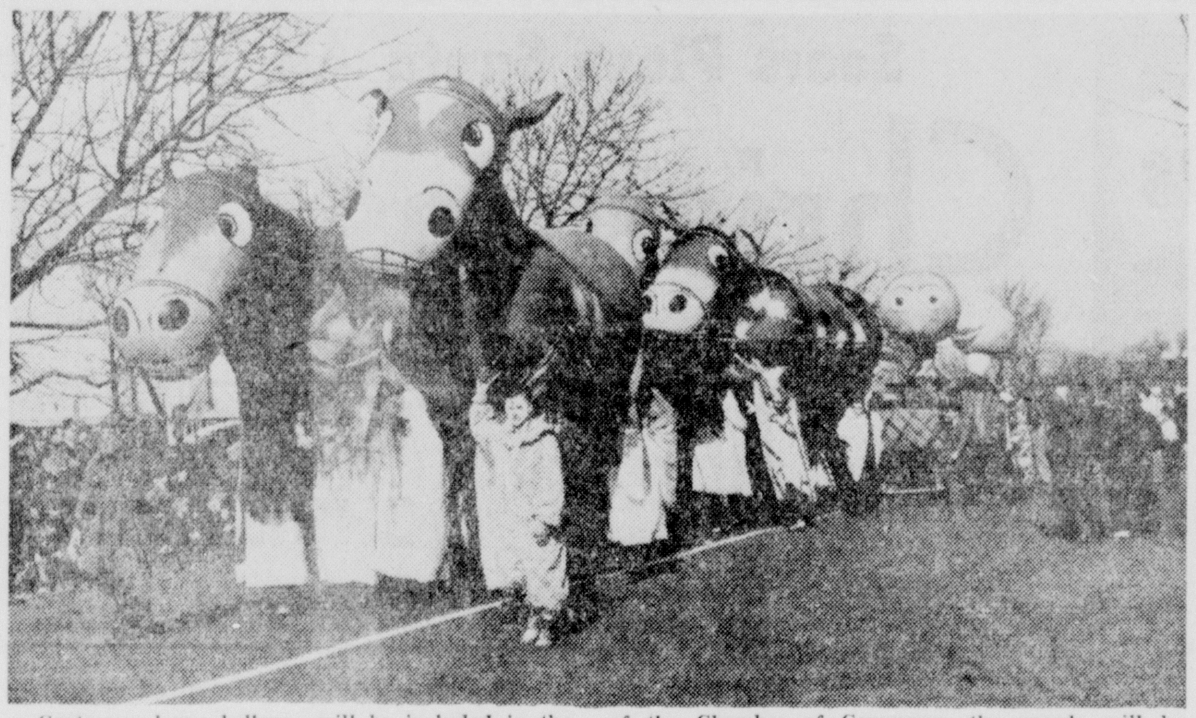
Col. Richardson Commands Reserve

RAYVILLE, La., Dec. 3.—(Special)—A local man, Colonel Lasley Richardson, 36, has just been elected to command the reserve army division.

He was commissioned in the R. O. T. C. when attending Louisiana State University in 1934, and has been active in the reserve army affairs for many years, going into active duty in October, 1941. In February, 1946, he was made a full colonel, serving in the quartermaster's office with the Sixth army armored division.

Colonel Richardson is president of the Glover Hardware and Furniture Company in Rayville. He is married to the former Miss Katherine Earle. They are parents of one child, Patricia Ann.

TO APPEAR IN BALLOON PARADE



Grotesque horse balloons will be included in the second annual pre-Christmas balloon parade scheduled for December 7. Sponsored by the Merchants Division of the Chamber of Commerce, the parade will be comprised of enormous balloon figures of comic strip characters, dragons, caterpillars and clowns.

Little Theatre Curtain Call

"Angel Street" opens at Little Theatre playhouse, Selman Field on Monday evening, December 12.

All plays for this season were tentatively scheduled for a five night run, however, public acclaim for the first comedy hit, "John Loves Mary," indicated that a sixth night performance should be taken into consideration. Director Stocker Fontelieu and the board of directors have scheduled "Angel Street's" opening in order that Saturday night might be included in the run on demand.

"Angel Street" is a swift change of pace in theater but we promise you that it is one of the most gripping dramas ever to be presented in any Little Theatre or for that matter we might challenge the legitimate stage.

Although, Director Fontelieu, in the interest of type casting, has not considered himself and Jim Reynolds as the perfect types for this play, it stands as a matter of record in the past ten days of rehearsal that they are perfect foils for one another. It suffices to say that after seeing their rehearsal it is completely out of the question for us to imagine anyone else playing these roles. If the director will pardon us, we will get in a little private opinion of our own, to wit: An actor with sympathetic understanding of dramatic character is just naturally versatile. Jim Reynolds was acclaimed as John in "John Loves Mary," but we lay you odds that he will add even greater laurels to his credit as Inspector Rough in "Angel Street."

Annie Laura Laymon is one of those rare individuals who without the shadow of doubt possesses naturally inborn talents of interpretation. Her Bella Manningham is all that Author Hamilton could possibly ask in characterization of his play. She is so completely Bella that her performance transcends the ordinary and touches upon reality that will leave you emotional and cheering for a splendid little actress.

Frankly, its good. It is very good and it is even better than that but our association in Webster's field of the English language is still limited, so we'll leave it at that.

SKETCH NOTES: Another attic has been raided . . . another old trunk gone into. And what have we this time? Form the days which are now family history, Mrs. Henry Hinkle has unearthed the exact velvet drapes we need for "Angel Street." Seeing our plea she dug deep and came up with just the fitting window and door coverings to go with Mrs. Mize's Victorian furniture. Thank you, Mrs. Hinkle. You have helped us ready "Angel Street" for Monroe production. Now who will be next with a Victorian desk or table? . . . Mrs. Johnny Smith Elbert is another angel for the "Angel Street" production. She is lending us a handmade tapstry bell cord. She made it herself twenty-five years ago . . . If you see Director Stocker Fontelieu looking a bit unhappy this week end, its because his housemate, Lon Heuer has up and deserted him for the week end. Lon has gone to Stocker's native New Orleans and will be guest of Stocker's mother and father and occupy Stocker's own room while he sees "Street Car Named Desire," leaving our director back home in Monroe to work.

LITTLE THEATRE SKETCH

FRANCES RITTER: Attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Ritter, who will make her debut on Little Theatre stage as the saucy Nancy in "Angel Street," is a native Monroyan of exceptional talent.

Frances has alternately attended St. Matthew's, Georgia Tucker and Ouachita Parish High schools in Monroe, as well as two years at St. Vincent's Academy in Shreveport. She is a senior this year at Neville High School.

While attending St. Vincent's in Shreveport, Frances appeared in the title role of "The Song of Bernadette". This is her only major production prior to "Angel Street."

She is active in school and campus life and is at present secretary of Beta Delta National sorority and is outgoing president of Delta Kappa Pi local sorority. She is in her second year as sponsor for Delta Sigma fraternity and was sweetheart of the Key Club at Ouachita High last year. She is also a member of the Sodality of St. Matthew's.

Frances loves dramatics and won first place in interpretative reading in a declamation contest at St. Vincent's but she plans to make music her career. This is her sixth year in piano and she has studied under Sister Rose Marie and Mrs. Courtney Benton and for the past two years has been a pupil of Mrs. Florence Zeigler Albritton.

She qualifies as an all American girl with her love for parties, dancing, picnics, surfboard and swimming. Her interest also extended to Swedish embroider which she does very well.

Organize Troops Of Boy Scouts

JONESVILLE, La., Dec. 3.—(Special)—Two troops of Boy Scouts of America are being organized in Catahoula with "get acquainted" meetings for parents held this week in Jonesville and at Central School and additional meetings scheduled for next week in both places.

Monday night a group of Jonesville parents met to hear Gerry Harrigill, field scout executive, discuss the Boy Scout organization. Wednesday night at Central School parents met to hear a discussion of scouting. A committee to represent the school in sponsoring the troop will be selected at a meeting next week.

Harrigill will meet with parents of Jonesville and members of the Jonesville Rotary Club on Tuesday night to show pictures and discuss additional phases of Boy Scout activities. Wednesday night he will meet with parents and sponsors of the troop at Central.

PENNEY WILL PAY CHRISTMAS BONUS

The board of directors of the J. C. Penney Company has authorized a special payment of an amount equal to two weeks' pay for all full-time associates who have been employed for the full year of 1949 and on a proportionate basis for extra and part-time associates and for those employed less than a year.

All Penney associates throughout the company share in this payment except those who are members of the management staff and whose earnings are determined largely by the company's long-standing profit-sharing plan.

F. L. Ferrell, manager of the J. C. Penney Company store, said that more than 50,000 Penney associates all over the United States will participate in this payment, including 43 of the Monroe store. He further emphasized that this was not a Christmas bonus in the usual sense and was non-recurring.

The company some years ago substituted a thrift and profit-sharing plan for the more usual Christmas bonus and into this plan is annually paid a proportionate share of company earnings. The current extra payment, just announced, is additional to these thrift and profit-sharing benefits.

JAYCEES HIT AT U. S. RED TAPE

Organization Is Taking First Steps In 'Operation Economy'

A war against red tape and its grip on the federal government began this week as Jaycees throughout Louisiana began the first steps of "Operation Economy," number one project of Junior Chambers of Commerce across the United States, according to Jack Howard, local Jaycee president.

"Operation Economy," a national move to obtain favorable congressional action on the Hoover report, was presented to the local young businessman's organization together with a specific plan to get public interest aroused at federal waste in government spending, Howard said.

The Junior Chambers of Commerce of every state hope to get millions of letters directed to congress when it goes into session in January. Each of these letters will be a request that congressional representatives approve the Hoover report, recently published analysis of government operation which generally exposed wasteful duplication of effort at high cost to taxpayers. Jaycees will conduct a series of informative talks, newspaper articles and other promotional efforts during the intervening weeks, all designed to show the various ways in which millions of dollars of tax-derived money can be saved annually through adoption of the Hoover commission recommendations. Opposition groups have already been formed by bureaucrats and certain nationally known federal employes who would be affected by streamlining the government.

The people must learn there is no wealth in Washington. All the wealth is contained in the 48 states. When the United States government gives aid, the 48 states are actually paying through taxes, and for every tax dollar a 34-cent brokerage fee stays in the federal government.

Jaycees throughout Louisiana are organized under the general direction of R. C. White, chairman of the state effort and board member of the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe. White, who recently gained national recognition for Monroe because of his work in creating better relations between the people of the United States and Germany, has promised this Jaycee Club a step by step campaign to bring the factual story of the Hoover commission findings to the people of northeast Louisiana.

To Start Work On Levee Floodwall

JONESVILLE, La., Dec. 3.—(Special)—The long-delayed pouring of the floodwall sections of the Jonesville ring levee is scheduled to begin this week end.

It's been first one thing and then the other that have keep Harper and Gravier, contractors, from obtaining gravel for the concrete. Difficulties have ranged from strikes to specifications, but now everything seems to be settled, according to W. C. Brown, Tensas Basin Levee board member from Catahoula.

Last week end, operators of the gravel pit near Pollock found they could not furnish gravel of contract specifications. Conferences of Harper and Gravier with United States engineers in Vicksburg and visits to the gravel pit seem to have straightened out the difficulty satisfactorily and the first loads of gravel should arrive in Jonesville Friday, Brown said he had been informed.

Contractors will begin pouring concrete at the Three Rivers mill on Saturday and will work "overtime" through the week end to get it done as soon as possible. The mill began logging after the end of the Missouri Pacific strike but cannot begin sawing until the floodwall behind it is poured.

COMMISSION TO MEN IN GUARD

Wadlow And Kimbrell Of Monroe Named As Second Lieutenants

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 3.—(Special)—Peter E. Schexnaydre, 408 Athania Parkway, Metairie, is listed among five enlisted members of the Louisiana National Guard to be appointed as commissioned officers of the Guard.

Others named as second lieutenants include, in addition to Lt. Schexnaydre, Edward D. Wadlow of Monroe; George R. Kimbrell of Monroe; Bryan E. Cornell of Shreveport and L. K. Herlong, Jr., Shreveport.

"It has been traditional in the Louisiana National Guard that its officers are drawn from the enlisted ranks," Brig. Gen. Raymond F. Hufft commented in announcing the latest appointments.

"The great majority of officers in the Louisiana National Guard today rose from the ranks., and we expect to continue this worthy tradition," Hufft, a former Guard private himself, added.

Other officer appointments announced today were those of Major Albert F. W. Habeeb, assigned as neuropsychiatrist with 39th infantry division headquarters in New Orleans; Capt. Stanley X. Lewis, assigned to command Company M, 199th infnatry, at Ruston; and 1st Lt. Antoine P. Burguieres, 2nd Lt. Wallace J. Moll, Jr., and Chief Warrant Officer Phillip B. Clerc, all of New Orleans.

Hufft said the new appointments boosts present officer strength of the Louisiana Guard to a new high figure of 536 air and ground officers.

The entire Guard now numbers 5,909 officers and men.

MAC SAID TO BARK THREE TIMES IF WE SAW ANYONE SNOOPING AROUND, BUT THEY DON'T SEEM TO HEAR ME!
DON'T WORRY ABOUT IT, SLUG. WE MAY STILL BE HERE WHEN YOU COME OFF DUTY.
WELL, GIRLS, NOW THAT WE'VE FOUND THEM, DO WE STORM THE BASTILE, OR DO WE GO MEEKLY HOME AND WASH THE DISHES?
LET'S LET THEM ALONE TONIGHT, AND TOMORROW WE'LL ALL GO DOWNTOWN AND BUY NEW HATS.

HUH!
GEE WHITH, MYRTLE, I'M NOT GOING TO THNEEK AWAY FROM YOU!
WELL, WE'VE DONE OUR DUTY. LET'S GO BACK TO THE DRUG-STORE.
PUT YOUR EAR AGAINST THE WALL AND YOU CAN HEAR THEM TALKING.
WE COULD SAVE THE DISHES AND MAKE THEM WASH 'EM WHEN THEY COME HOME.
I'LL SAY YOU'RE NOT.
I'D LIKE TO DRAG GUS OUT BY HIS HEELS JUST BECAUSE HE THINKS HE'S SO DARN SMART
LET'S ALL GO OVER TO OUR HOUSE AND PLAY CANASTA.

The PHANTOM
By LEE FALK and WILSON McCOY
LASSOING THE GORILLA WITH THE ROPE THAT TRIPPED HIM, THE PHANTOM HURLS THE LOOSE END OVER A BOUGH, TIES IT TO A HEAVY OIL DRUM WHICH HE SHOVES INTO THE SEA.
HOW COULD TOTO GET UP THERE?
TOTO, TRAINED TO KILL, COULD DESTROY A REGIMENT
THUS DO KALI AND HIS THUGGEES FIND THE DREADED TOTO—HELPLESS AND FURIOUS.
COULD ONE MAN DO THAT?
GRIM AND FRIGHTENED, THE THUGGEES LOWER TOTO INTO HIS CAGE.
LOOK—ON TOTO'S COLLAR—DEATH'S-HEAD!
SIGN OF THE PHANTOM! NO MAN COULD COME THAT CLOSE TO TOTO—AND LIVE——
THEN, AS THE ANGRY GORILLA SHAKES HIS BARS——
WHAT MAN COULD STRING UP TOTO LIKE THAT——?
THE PHANTOM IS NOT A MAN! HE IS THE GHOST WHO WALKS—
WITH THE STRENGTH OF TEN TIGERS—
SEARCH THE GROUNDS FOR HIM—— COME BACK, YOU COWARDS—— YOU STUPID FOOLS!
BUT THE THUGGEES ARE IN NO MOOD FOR PHANTOM-HUNTING—NOT ON A DARK NIGHT——
SO FAR, SO GOOD. BUT THE HARDEST IS YET TO COME. CLEANING UP THIS MOB—AND GETTING DIANA OFF THIS TERRIBLE ISLAND——

COLGATE DENTAL CREAM HELPS STOP TOOTH DECAY!

Exhaustive Research by Eminent Dental Authorities Proves How Using Colgate Dental Cream Helps Stop Tooth Decay Before It Starts!

NOW! Dental science offers proof that brushing teeth with Colgate Dental Cream right after eating is an effective, safe way to help prevent new cavities, greatly reduce tooth decay!

More than 2 years' continuous research at leading universities—hundreds of case histories—makes this the most conclusive proof in all dentifrice research on tooth decay!

For now—the same toothpaste you use to clean your breath while you clean your teeth—brings you a proved way to reduce tooth decay! Colgate Dental Cream has been proved to contain all the necessary ingredients—including an exclusive patented ingredient—for effective daily dental care. No risk of irritation to tissues and gums! And no change in Colgate's famous flavor, foam, or cleansing action! The Colgate Dental Cream now at your dealer's is the same formula used in these exhaustive tests.

Regular visits to your dentist are necessary for complete dental care. No home method can help everyone; nor can it stop all tooth decay or help cavities already started.

Mothers! Children Love Colgate's Flavor! It's Easy To Start Them On The Colgate Way To Reduce Tooth Decay!

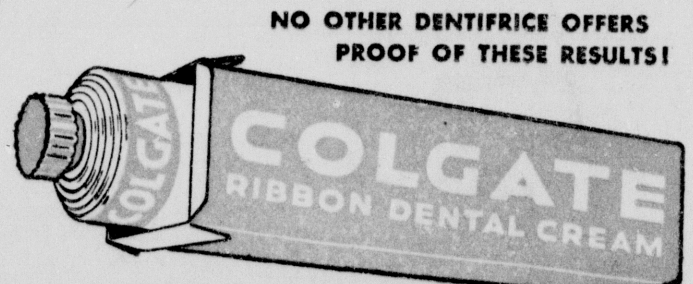
Don't wait another day to start your children on Colgate Dental Cream. Teach them the importance of always brushing their teeth right after meals or snacks. They'll love Colgate's flavor, so it's easy to get them to use Colgate's correctly, give them all the benefits of this safe, proved way to reduce tooth decay!

X-Rays Show How Proper Use of Colgate's Helps Stop Tooth Decay!

Under the direction of eminent dental authorities, one group of college men and women always brushed their teeth with Colgate Dental Cream right after eating—while another group followed their usual dental care. The average of the group using Colgate's as directed, and using Colgate's exclusively, was a startling reduction in number of cavities—far less tooth decay! The other group developed new cavities at a much higher rate.

Modern research shows that tooth decay is caused by mouth acids which are at their worst after meals or snacks. When you brush your teeth with Colgate's right after eating, you help remove mouth acids before they can harm enamel. And Colgate's penetrating foam reaches crevices in teeth where food particles often lodge.

NO OTHER DENTIFRICE OFFERS PROOF OF THESE RESULTS!



Always Use Colgate's To Clean Your Breath While You Clean Your Teeth—and Help Stop Tooth Decay!
